TROTTING AT THE UNION COURSE.

Third Day of the Meeting—Two Remarkable Races—Six Heats in One and Five in the Other.

Out of the fourteen entries for the purse of $500, mile heats, beat three in five, in harness, announced to take place on the Union Course yesterday, only D. Mace's bay mare Lydia Thompson, Dr. Ogie's sorrel gelding Pet, John Murphy's bay mare Lady Sayres, John Chambers' bay gelding Twist and Mr. Roden's black gelding Eight Belles came to the post; but they made a capital race of it, taking six heats to decide who was entitled to the money.

Lydia Thompson, however, succeeded in carrying off the first prize, and in doing so she was the first to win a second heat, and for a larger amount of money, and for horses that had never trotted better than a four, the conditions being the same as those in the previous race. For this contest there were eight entries, out of which Mr. Ward's gray gelding Mercer, Mr. Fawcett's black stallion Star of the West, Mr. Roden's bay gelding Dresden and Dan Mace's chestnut mare Louise started for the money.

In some respects this race was very similar to the first. It was a protracted struggle throughout and necessitated the trotting of five heats before it was decided. It was eventually won by Mercer, by the superior handling of Dan Mace after the first heat.

The attendance was quite numerous, the track in good condition and everything passed off pleasantly and satisfactorily to the great majority of the spectators.

We will now give an account of the proceedings in both races, without any further comment.

THE FIRST RACE. The betting on this event was very brisk, and the following sales are a few that took place, showing the estimate in which the horses were held by their respective backers previous to the first heat:— Lydia Thompson, $10 10 15 20 25 30 35 40 45 50 55 60 65 70 75 80 85 90 95 100 105 110 115 120 125 130 135 140 145 150 155 160 165 170 175 180 185 190 195 200 205 210 215 220 225 230 235 240 245 250 255 260 265 270 275 280 285 290 295 300 305 310 315 320 325 330 335 340 345 350 355 360 365 370 375 380 385 390 395 400 405 410 415 420 425 430 435 440 445 450 455 460 465 470 475 480 485 490 495 500 505 510 515 520 525 530 535 540 545 550 555 560 565 570 575 580 585 590 595 600 605 610 615 620 625 630 635 640 645 650 655 660 665 670 675 680 685 690 695 700 705 710 715 720 725 730 735 740 745 750 755 760 765 770 775 780 785 790 795 800 805 810 815 820 825 830 835 840 845 850 855 860 865 870 875 880 885 890 895 900 905 910 915 920 925 930 935 940 945 950 955 960 965 970 975 980 985 990 995 1000.

First Heat.—Pet won the pole, Lydia Thompson second place, Eight Belles third, Lady Sayres fourth, and Twist the outside. The start was not a good one, as there was too much difference between the first and last horses. As they went around the turn Pet led one length, Lydia Thompson second, two lengths in front of Twist, the latter being several lengths in advance of Eight Belles, who got away last. At the quarter pole Lydia Thompson led one length, Lydia Thompson second, Eight Belles third, and Twist fourth. Going down the backstretch Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet at the half-mile pole, the latter leading Lady Sayres about one length, the others being side and side. At the three-quarter pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side. At the full mile pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side. At the three-quarter pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side. At the full mile pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side.

Second Heat.—Lydia Thompson was the favorite again, and she led the race from start to finish. She won the pole, Lydia Thompson second, Eight Belles third, and Twist fourth. Going around the lower turn the black broke up again, but that was similar to the other break, and the two horses landed on the track. Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet at the half-mile pole, the latter leading Lady Sayres about one length, the others being side and side. At the three-quarter pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side. At the full mile pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side.

Third Heat.—Lydia Thompson was the favorite again, and she led the race from start to finish. She won the pole, Lydia Thompson second, Eight Belles third, and Twist fourth. Going around the lower turn the black broke up again, but that was similar to the other break, and the two horses landed on the track. Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet at the half-mile pole, the latter leading Lady Sayres about one length, the others being side and side. At the three-quarter pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side. At the full mile pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side.

Fourth Heat.—Lydia Thompson was the favorite again, and she led the race from start to finish. She won the pole, Lydia Thompson second, Eight Belles third, and Twist fourth. Going around the lower turn the black broke up again, but that was similar to the other break, and the two horses landed on the track. Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet at the half-mile pole, the latter leading Lady Sayres about one length, the others being side and side. At the full mile pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side.

Fifth Heat.—Lydia Thompson was the favorite again, and she led the race from start to finish. She won the pole, Lydia Thompson second, Eight Belles third, and Twist fourth. Going around the lower turn the black broke up again, but that was similar to the other break, and the two horses landed on the track. Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet at the half-mile pole, the latter leading Lady Sayres about one length, the others being side and side. At the three-quarter pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side. At the full mile pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side.

Sixth Heat.—Lydia Thompson was the favorite again, and she led the race from start to finish. She won the pole, Lydia Thompson second, Eight Belles third, and Twist fourth. Going around the lower turn the black broke up again, but that was similar to the other break, and the two horses landed on the track. Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet at the half-mile pole, the latter leading Lady Sayres about one length, the others being side and side. At the three-quarter pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side. At the full mile pole Lydia Thompson still continued to lead, two lengths in front of Pet and Lady Sayres, the latter leading Eight Belles and Twist side and side.

THE SPORTSMEN'S STATE CONVENTION.

Third Day's Shooting—The Ward and Bogardus Match—The Banquet—The Contest—Names of Winners and the Prizes.

SYRACUSE, June 3, 1899. Lo! the poor pigeon. Skill has done its deadly work, and now as the Convention draws to a successful close the plaintive appeals of the penned up birds have ceased in force, for their number has been considerably thinned. The havoc has been great, and the plumpiest and strongest of the species it is said there never were such pigeons at any match have passed away from earth to the culinary department of water-mouthed epicureans. Strange as it may appear, there are lucky and unlucky birds. Just as the marksmen is about to fire some happy pigeon, placed negligently in the trap, escapes, and never did prisoner beat a hatter retreat. Confessedly a few sympathizing sportsmen are pleased at its good fortune, while the sportsman and gourmandizer who have paid for his dozen in advance grow simultaneously in his mental cell. The result of the day was about as to be expected. The trap was pulled, the bird bursts forth in ecstasy and is about to ascend most joyfully, yet scarcely has it risen a yard when it wriggles in the air and falls to the ground with a heavy thud. Thus perish the feathered tribe before the unerring aim of men who mean to win a prize. So far the shooting might be set down as a fair average. No extraordinary feats have been performed, but the prospects of future superiority have been clearly manifested by the members of the association. If anything the interest in the convention has largely increased, evident by the fact that the attendance has increased on each succeeding day. The Sportsmen's State Association has monopolized, for the time being, the attention of Syracuse; first, because its members have made themselves distinctly heard in the suburbs, and secondly, they have shown a determination to promote by every possible means the objects for which the association was founded—the preservation of game and the rigid enforcement of the laws in that respect—a subject in which even Syracuse must be interested, though it is not so generally appreciated as it should be. The appearance of the city or suburbs will never be thickened with a superfluity of wild birds. But apart from the attractions of the Convention, Syracuse is strong in the romantic to the romantic, and the inviting spot—the romantic who love to wander down the bank of some purring stream and listen to the tolling of some distant bell summoning the evening party to the banquet—will here find not repose, but in one hour the banging of as many as fifty polished guns as will suffice to break the peace of the neighborhood. The dinner table is crowded with the interrupted dingdong going up and night by the trains which cut right through the heart of the city, and the clanging of half a dozen whistles, the blowing of the former blowing and the engines of the latter clanging, and the clanging of the whistles, if possible, the lowest note on any instrument, without cessation, and you have a faint idea of the daily jargon which characterizes the passage of the day. The day is a day of fast-rising locality. Birds are fond of music, which probably accounts for their conspicuous absence from the city, which, however, it is not in the least healthy in many respects, and important features.

The shooting to-day was scarcely so good as that of yesterday. The day was not so hot, and the excitement produced by betting or gambling investments. A little of the latter was displayed on the occasion of the afternoon shooting, but yesterday, as previously mentioned, a private match at fifty birds for fifty dollars a side was arranged between the two leading marksmen of the city. The matter had been discussed, and as there was much rivalry and a considerable amount of betting connected with it, great interest was taken in the match. The competitors proceeded with the contest, bringing down in the first instance a pair of birds, and in the second a pair of birds, and in the third a pair of birds, and in the fourth a pair of birds, and in the fifth a pair of birds, and in the sixth a pair of birds, and in the seventh a pair of birds, and in the eighth a pair of birds, and in the ninth a pair of birds, and in the tenth a pair of
