

THE RECENT RIOT.

Sober Second Thought on the Subject of the Slaughter.

Additional Details of the Conflict.

Views of the Rank and File in Relation to the Firing.

Funerals of Victims—Complete List of Killed and Wounded.

Disposition of the Arrested Rioters.

A stranger passing through the streets of New York yesterday would never dream of the state of alarm and excitement the people were thrown into for the past few days from the appearance of the riot.

Many contending interests striving to divert themselves of the onus of having had anything to do with something or othering the disturbance, or being in any manner accountable for its results, that they keep up a continual discussion of the different acts of the rioters and those empowered to put a stop to it.

What was the cause of the riot? What was the first word of setting down the riot? The riot was not a sudden outbreak, but a result of months of coming and going.

THE EIGHTH AVENUE FIGHT.

Views of an Officer of the Eighty-fourth and a Private of the Twenty-second Regiment—A Semi-Official Account of the Battle of the Eight Avenue.

On Wednesday last, and therefore a decision as to whether any particular command was to blame more than another for the firing upon the people without orders will be forthcoming in a few days.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" Inquired the reporter of an officer of the Eighty-fourth.

"Think about it? I think it was a great mistake." "Your regiment began the fire first?" "Oh, no! not exactly. The right wing of the Seventh, when posted on the west side of the avenue, near Twenty-fourth street, was the first to fire.

"How about your regiment at Twenty-fourth street?" "Well, I am sorry to say that the Eighty-fourth did not do its duty as it should have done. The men became unmanageable for a while and resorted to the use of their arms.

"They had the right to do so under the general order given by the officers of the Eighty-fourth." "Whenever they fired upon the procession or the troops?"

"I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

"How about the firing on the people on the sidewalks?" "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

The disordered companies of the Ninth were quickly rallied, however, by their officers, who displayed much bravery and coolness. The report that the Ninth was fired into by the rioters, was entirely untrue.

"The Ninth will have next Sunday a very different kind of parade. It will be a military parade, and will be held on the avenue, from the City Hall to the Battery.

"The parade is expected to be a very imposing one, and it is said that out of respect to the memory of the dead heroes many houses will be draped in mourning along the route of march.

Interview with Storekeepers and Residents on the West Side of Eighth Avenue—What They Saw and What They Think.

Determined, as far as possible, to get at the root of the matter, and to learn the true origin of the firing both by the military and the mob on Wednesday, the Herald reporter yesterday went along the west side of Eighth avenue, from Twenty-eighth to Twenty-fourth streets, questioning and conversing with the residents and storekeepers in regard to what they saw and heard about the bloody affair.

Many of them, however, closed up their shops before the procession moved at all and retired to their private rooms, and hence saw little or nothing of it.

The first person the reporter saw who had seen any considerable part of the riot was Mr. Shottick, a constable, at 223 Eighth avenue, corner of Twenty-sixth street. He saw the Irishman (heretofore referred to) who gathered up handfuls of garbage from a box on the sidewalk on the east side of the street and threw the filth in the faces of the soldiers and the policemen.

Another young man in the liquor store on the west side of the avenue, near Twenty-fourth street, saw the rioters firing on the people on the sidewalks.

"The rioters were firing on the people on the sidewalks." "I don't think they did. When the General gave the order, he may not have mentioned that his men should await the command from their officers, out of course that was understood.

and are arranged in alphabetical order and complete form—

MILITARY AND POLICE. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Military and Police. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Military and Police. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Military and Police. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Military and Police. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Military and Police. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Military and Police. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Military and Police. Killed. Wounded. Military and Police. Killed. Wounded.

Sherry, Peter; lives at 144 Ninth street; slightly. Snow, Washington street; shot in thigh on Eighth avenue car. At Bellevue Hospital.

Stanton, Owen, Irish; aged 15; Twenty-fourth street; leg. Hospi. Storn, William, English; knee. At Bellevue Hospital.

Warren, William; aged 12; No. 31 West Thirty-seventh street; shoulder. At Mount Sinai Hospital. Arrested.

Pollet, Martin; arrested by Detective Parley; revolver in his possession. Falcon, John, arrested by Officer Lyons, of the tenth precinct; had in his possession a revolver and eleven cartridges.

Fizilars, Thomas, arrested on suspicion of being a rioter. Discharged. Fines, arrested by Officer Burton of the Eighth precinct; had a dirk in his possession.

Gibney, James, arrested on suspicion of being a rioter. Discharged. Gibney, Henry, arrested by Officer Larkins, of the Twenty-second precinct, for drawing a revolver on an officer.

Patrick, arrested by Officer Dwyer, of the Third precinct; had a six-barrelled revolver. Gallagher, John, of 1-6 Seventh avenue, arrested by Roundman Jackson for discharging a pistol in the street at night.

Kelly, Edward, arrested by Detective Doyle; had in his possession a six-barrelled revolver. Kelly, Patrick, arrested by Officer Roberts of the Nineteenth precinct; arrested on suspicion of being a rioter. Discharged.

Kelly, Patrick, arrested by Officer Lambrecht of the Nineteenth precinct; revolver found in his possession. Kelly, John, arrested on suspicion of being a rioter. Discharged.

eyes behind the walls; but their names were everywhere declined. The friends of the prisoners came boldly into Court and said they would call out the men to any amount.

The following is a list of those discharged for want of evidence to hold them, those held out by friends and relatives and those now awaiting their trial in prison—

DISCHARGED. Thomas McDonald, arrested by policeman Coyne, of the Twenty-third precinct; charged with being a rioter. Discharged.

John Montgomery, taken up on suspicion by policeman Neston, Thirty-second precinct. John J. Darran, brought in by detective Heidelberg.

William Dalton, arrested by detective Elder. Patrick Merrigan, arrested by policeman Lambrecht, of the Seventh precinct.

Thomas Fitzharris, taken up by Blackwood, of the Twenty-ninth precinct. John McNamee, arrested by policeman Clapp, of the Ninth precinct.

John Kelly, taken by policeman O'Neil, of the Ninth precinct. William Tucker, arrested by policeman Dwyer, of the Third precinct.

Frank Russell, arrested by policeman Clapp, of the Ninth precinct. Arthur McClellan, taken by the same policeman.

William Wood, arrested by policeman Woodward, of the Tenth precinct, taken by policeman Tarboe, of the Seventh precinct.