

THE CHILDREN.

A Nation's Gratitude for a Year of Peace and Plenty.

PRACTICAL BENEVOLENCE.

The Rich Blessed in Giving and the Poor in Receiving.

A WIDESPREAD CELEBRATION.

The story of the annual Thanksgiving always presents a joyous picture—a picture of mingled peace and merriment, thankfulness and feasting. Yesterday was no exception to what the past has been—what the future will be. The bright sunshine of a November day ushered in Thanksgiving morning, and the balmy autumn air wafted on its soft wings to many listening ears and thankful hearts the chimes of old Trinity announcing the Tabernacle Feast of the Ingathering. In most of the Roman Catholic churches there was an early mass as a preparation for the festivities of the day. The Episcopal churches generally gave a full church service having special reference to the national feast of plenty. In the Congregational, Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches, there faith and repentance were preached on Sundays, there was a grateful depression incalculable the sacred taught by abundant harvests and restraining prosperities. But while the Thanksgiving bells were chiming from the church towers and the worshipping multitude was bowing in the churches, while the streets were full of people in holiday attire, going hither and thither in search of enjoyment, while the great national holiday was manifesting itself in its outward forms and observances, there was a more prosaic background to the picture and to the cooks in the kitchen there were the labor and preparation that would make the feast perfect in the dining hall.

As was to be expected, Fifth avenue was a living panorama. Had the bright sunshine of the morning lasted throughout the day, the festal atmosphere would have been more gay, but, in spite of the sky, leaden clouds which overshadowed sun and day, it was alive with youth and beauty. The young men and the maidens, whether going to church to pray or to the park for a stroll, whether going abroad to dinner or returning to dine at home, all knew of no way to their destination except through Fifth avenue. From Fifty-ninth street to Washington square the sidewalks were lined with the multitude, and in the afternoon the street was filled with vehicles on their way to the drives and boulevards. "Have you said turkey yet?" was the customary salutation, and even in the air there was a savory smell from the spit in the kitchen on which the emblematic bird was turning.

Why no Thanksgiving songs? was a question that was asked more than once; and in one household full of the spirit of the day the feast of plenty was supplemented by a celebration of the colors of the rainbow. There were turkey and plum pudding, and the turkey had come and gone and the fruits and the dessert were disposed of the following ode was sung to music like that of Mr. P. S. Gilmore's heaven inspired anthem:—

THANKSGIVING DAY.
In sixteenth century England,
When the Pilgrims first year's work was done,
When the golden grain and the Indian corn
Were gathered and stored against the winter's wrath
Far into the woods, on following foot,
Four good men Governor Bradford sent
To let us have, 'neath the shadow of a tree,
A joyful and merry festival day.
A day when all the hearts were glad,
And the voices of the young and old
Were raised in praise of God and His love,
And the birds were put on the spit to roast,
And this first annual Thanksgiving Day
Was the beginning of a noble custom,
Which has since grown to a national feast,
And we thank God for His goodness and love,
Who has made us a people so free,
And who has given us a land so good,
And who has made us a nation so true,
And who has made us a people so brave,
And who has made us a nation so free,
And who has made us a people so good,
And who has made us a nation so true,
And who has made us a people so brave,
And who has made us a nation so free.

six hundred children were marched into the dining room, where eight long tables, extending nearly the entire length of the room, awaited, tastefully decorated with flowers. The children were seated around the weight of roast turkeys, sucking pigs, roast beef, corned beef, cranberry sauce, oranges, apples, grapes, bananas, cranberries and many other good things. Mrs. Josephine Adams, president of the association, presided most assiduously for the past thirty years in this mission; Mrs. W. B. Skidmore, treasurer; the Rev. Superintendent C. S. Bonifant, Rev. Dr. T. J. Conroy, Rev. Dr. J. J. Conroy, Rev. Dr. T. J. Conroy, and many other ladies and gentlemen connected with the charity, including the assistants, assisted in the distribution of the feast. The feast ceased only while they devoured the good things set before them. The meal over, hundreds of tiny vessels were held out to the children, in which were placed apples and candies in its pockets—pockets which had apparently been made for the occasion. There was a large number of visitors, and the entrance was of a merry merriment.

THE FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.
