

CHANGE URGED IN CENSORSHIP TO OUST CREEL

Put Strong Man From Army or Navy in Position, Critics Say.

NEW BLUNDER IS MADE

Announcement of Arrival of More Troops Arouses Secretary Baker.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The censorship is in a worse muddle than ever. Indecision and a lack of cooperation and coordination are the most glaring defects in the system which has resulted from the plan of appointing George Creel as censor. Refuse to Kill News.

After the publication of the news today all over the country the Committee on Public Information began its customary drive to prevent publication. It refused to "kill" the news, which was appearing in extra editions everywhere, and complicated the muddle. The Associated Press refused to accept the Creel bureau's ruling that the news was "killed" even if it had already been printed, asserting that there was no prohibited information in the story.

Secretary Baker Aroused.

Secretary Baker was aroused to-day over the fact that the news of troop arrivals had not been suppressed, as he had every reason to suppose it would be. He was indignant at the announcement that the first transport contingents of the Pershing expedition had arrived. Secretary Baker had a long talk with Mr. Creel as to the vital importance of this matter.

Plan to Keep Army Secrets.

In elaborating his plan Mr. Creel said that he would not only have the matter taken up with American censors abroad, but with the British and other authorities. He admitted that these authorities would not be likely to know the damage which such publication of military secrets might do to the United States, but added that it was his duty to try to put into effect. It is suggested that Mr. Creel, not being a military man and having no conception of the technicalities of military censorship, may have given the authorities a confused idea of what was intended here.

More U. S. Troops Land in Europe.

A EUROPEAN PORT, July 28.—Another American contingent has safely arrived and disembarked. The American troops arrived by the same steamer wherewith Kermit Roosevelt, his wife and child travelled. When tenders went alongside the vessel Friday the men were in high spirits and frequently shouted "Are we downhearted?" which was answered with a roaring "No!" given with great enthusiasm. Representatives of the General Staff watched the disembarkation. There was no civic demonstration. Only a few spectators knew of the landing. These cheered and the troops cheered back. The men entrained quickly and left for their new quarters. A signal company remained at the port for some hours. These were the only representatives of the contingent which the public saw.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The Government withholds information or comment on the foregoing despatch.

PARIS AIR RAID IS FRUITLESS

PARIS, July 28.—For the first time in a year and a half German aircraft raided Paris last night. As a military venture the raid was fruitless. If it was intended to terrify the populace, it had just the reverse effect, as the people took it and the chase of the Boches by French planes more as a public spectacle than a deadly invasion. Only two bombs were dropped on the capital. In official circles the opinion is held that the raid was made to ascertain the strength of the anti-aircraft defenses of Paris, possibly with a view to a later raid similar to those recently made on London.

Airplanes Not Zeppelins.

The last raid of aircraft on the capital was made by Zeppelins on January 23, 1914. Twenty-four persons were killed and a number were injured. Last night's raid was made entirely by airplanes. A few minutes before 11 o'clock watchers of the French aviation service in Paris heard the noise of a motor and then an explosion, followed after a brief interval by another. The Prefecture of Paris was accordingly instructed to give the alarm throughout the city. Soon after the warning of the raiders' approach was given the sky over the city was lit by the defense airplanes, twinkling like stars. Flames dashed through the streets sounding alarms on powerful sirens, and one by one the street lamps flickered out.

U-Boats Cannot Stop Soldiers' Smoke Rations

Another contingent of our soldiers have arrived at that unnamed port in France. They have been started toward the camp back of the lines where their grime-soaked uniforms are being changed.

When they are quartered according to their regimental units they will find awaiting them their old familiar brands of cigarettes and tobacco, the shipments of THE SUN Tobacco Fund. And as regularly as their food rations they and their arrivals will get their favorite smokes. The chain of supply has been established and not even the U-boats can break it.

It is our air service that will decide the means for the decision of this war."
