

HYLAN'S EXPOSURE
BIG AID TO MAYOR

Fusionists Say It Will Force
Tiger's Man Into Third Place.

TAMMANY NOW GLIM

Sixty Thousand Expected to March in Mitchell Torchlight Parade To-night.

The first big "bomb" from the Mitchell camp, fired by the Mayor Tuesday night when he lured John F. Hyland, his Tammany opponent, with a pro-German peace movement, had a very noticeable effect in the various headquarters yesterday. The Fusion managers were jubilant, while the Tammany chieftains across the street at 50 East Forty-second street were a depressed lot.

The Mitchell leaders claimed last night that Judge Hyland is losing strength hourly. They even insist now that Morris Hillquit, the Socialist candidate, will finish second. They say the Mayor's popularity is increasing daily.

But while the Mitchell leaders are pointing away at the Democratic candidate, the candidacy of Mr. Hillquit is not being overlooked either by Fusionists or Democrats. There appears to be a general impression that Mr. Hillquit has reached the height of his strength and there were those yesterday who maintained that the Hillquit campaign is "mostly noise" and that he will not poll more than 100,000 votes. Even this morning an enormous increase for the Socialist party. The earlier claims of between 150,000 and 200,000 for Hillquit are heard no more.

Murphy Not So Confident.

As the Fusionists see the situation, the Mayor has now assumed a safe lead and Judge Hyland and Mr. Murphy are not hot places for second place, with the chances favoring Mr. Hillquit for that position if Mr. Hyland continues to slink. The Democratic leaders still maintain the Judge will finish first under the wire, basing their statements on the belief that the regular Democratic organization vote is holding firm.

Charles F. Murphy, who two weeks ago similarly predicted the election of Judge Hyland, appeared at Tammany Hall yesterday with a confident air. In fact, the "Chief" when questioned by reporters said he knew who was going to be elected but wouldn't tell.

Mr. Murphy was sure the Socialist candidate is gaining votes all through the city, but he was equally sure these votes are coming from the Republicans instead of the Democrats.

"Why," said the "Chief," "it was reported to me a day or two ago that at a luncheon here Republicans declared they were going to vote for Hillquit."

"Some time ago Mayor Mitchell made charges against the Democratic candidate for lacking Americanism and patriotism, and he has repeated those charges," the Chief was told. "Have you anything to say on the subject?"

"Has the candidate answered?" inquired Mr. Murphy. When told that Judge Hyland had done so, the "Chief" said:

Reminds People of Peril.

The "Chief" said he had not yet received any figures from the district leader.

An appeal to the people of New York, sent out last night by Jacob H. Schiff, Adolph Lewinsohn, Oscar S. Straus, Joseph Bronfman, Isaac Allen, Bernard G. Richards and Mr. Murphy, said:

"It is often said that the public has a short memory and that it is slow to learn the lesson of experience. We cannot, however, believe that in the light of a few years you can have forgotten the evils of Tammany misrule; its inefficiency; its disregard of the common welfare; its scandals; the demoralization which it brought to the several departments of the municipality; the senseless waste of the people's money; the corruption that prevailed among the police; the protection of vice; the extortion practiced upon the weak and helpless by grafting politicians; and the stain imposed upon our city's honor."

Attacks Hillquit's Peace Stand.

"We cannot believe that you have failed to appreciate the vast improvement that has been wrought in our municipal government by the present administration. The former abuses have been rooted out."

The statement attacked the utterances of Morris Hillquit on peace, and concluded as follows:

"Do not permit yourselves to be misled. You cannot fail to see how these false theories are at this very moment paralyzing Russia and endangering the peace of the world."

Mayor Mitchell last night characterized as a deliberate lie the statement of Bernard Riddler, printed in the newspaper yesterday, to the effect that the Mayor called Victor Riddler to the City Hall some weeks ago and asked for the support of the English-Zeitung. According to the Riddler statement the Mayor "agreed to stop the attacks on the Staats-Zeitung by the English speaking papers if the Staats-Zeitung supported him."

"That is an unqualified falsehood," gaped the Mayor. "I never met for or talked with Riddler about the support of the Staats-Zeitung, and I have never wanted its support."

Emory R. Buckner, the Fusion manager, commenting on the question last night, said:

"The Board of Estimate today adopted the budget for next year. New York City will spend next year $240,000,000. Is Judge Hyland fit to spend it? Is the man who received support from the crooked Eagleaving and Loan Association fit to spend it?"

"Is the correspondence school 'captain' and 'coach' fit to spend it? Is the man who has tried to play fifty-fifty with both the loyal and the disloyal vote fit to spend it?"

Clarence Darrow to Aid Mayor.

Clarence Darrow, labor advocate, will come to New York to speak for the Mayor. He will speak today night at the Union party in the Globe Theatre. A number of other prominent labor men also will speak, and Timothy Healy will preside.

R. A. C. Smith, Dock Commissioner, one of the men accused recently by Judge Hyland of having made money out of the shortage of sugar, said yesterday that the Mayor's accusation last night applied as follows to Mr. Hyland:

"I am part owner of a cane farm in Cuba. We grow the cane for the raw sugar it produces. This raw sugar is sold on the open market the same as other raw sugar products. We have cooperated with the Government in the progress of the sugar industry, and are prepared to give continuous support to that end."

One of the big features of the campaign will be the torchlight parade tonight, ending at Madison Square Garden, where the Mayor, Col. Roosevelt and others will speak. Fully 60,000 men, it is expected, will participate and march in every business profession and trade in the city. The parade will march in six columns from different districts

THE SAME WAY
MOST of you know by experience how carefully
we examine titles.

Would you like your estate managed with the same breadth of view, the same care and attention to detail?
If so—consult our Trust
Officers and name us as your executor.

TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST CO
Capital $ 5,000,000
Surplus 1,000,000
170 Broadway, N. Y. City
200 Fulton St., Jersey City

converging at Madison Square Garden. Mayor Mitchell will lead one column, Col. Roosevelt another, Robert Adamsen another, Arthur Woods another and Henry Morgenthau and Comptroller Frederickson, the two others.

The Socialist managers have planned a warm finish of their campaign. A flying squadron of automobiles, carrying Mr. Hillquit, Dudley Field Malone and others, will tour the city every night from now until Monday.

The first move of the authorities to correct thousands of new suspects of having registered falsely in this city was made yesterday, when Chief Magistrate McAdams, on the application of the Board of Health, ordered the registration of all licensees, returnable Friday. The charge is illegal registration. It is understood that within a few days the Honest Ballot Association will ask for hundreds of such summonses.

HITS HYLAN'S VERACITY.

Mayor Says Judge Knew Name
Was on Friends of Peace List.

Directly charging John F. Hyland with uttering a falsehood when he stated that he did not know that his name appeared on the letterhead of the Friends of Peace as an honorary vice-chairman, Mayor Mitchell last night assailed his Tammany opponent to a declaration to this effect: "In such a way as to make the oath if false perjury under the law."

"I will immediately make public facts to establish perjury," said the Mayor. Mr. Mitchell went further and asserted that Judge Hyland knew that his name was on the letterhead of the Friends of Peace, 1915. Even before he made this letterhead public Tuesday night, asserted the Mayor, "There was every reason to believe that Judge Hyland was dominated by anti-American influences."

Calls Hyland and Hearst Disloyal.

The Mayor bitterly assailed Judge Hyland and his chief supporter, William R. Hearst, "disloyally" in their declaration to this effect: "Regardless of all questions of city politics," concluded the Mayor, "I now call upon the people of this city, for the sake of the honor of the home, to open the Friends of Peace—Deputy, O'Leary, Conlan and Hyland—out of City Hall."

"Judge Hyland has proved in the past that when it suits his purpose he is willing to swear to a falsehood," he said, "and he has repeated those charges." The Chief was told, "Have you anything to say on the subject?"

"Has the candidate answered?" inquired Mr. Murphy. When told that Judge Hyland had done so, the "Chief" said:

"Well, that incident is closed."

Hasn't Repudiated Pro-Germanism

"He has not spurned or repudiated its treacherous activities or its pro-German propaganda."

"In answer to the damning facts which I presented Judge Hyland has replied: 'I now distinctly say and solemnly swear that I am informed for the first time and by the Mayor alone of the existence of the letterhead of the Friends of Peace with my name upon it. I know nothing of this society or its propaganda.'"

"I now say to Judge Hyland that this statement is as false as the false oath he swore last night. Judge Hyland was informed of his membership in this society. He was informed that his name was on the letterhead of the disloyal, anti-American Friends of Peace. He was informed more than two years ago that he was part and parcel of this German propaganda."

"He is disloyal and sympathetic with the purposes of this society."

Ready to Prove Perjury.

"With the entire city watching him, I do not think that even Judge Hyland would be willing to swear to the facts in the statement he gave to the papers at this meeting. To comply with me, I now say to Judge Hyland that if he is willing to swear to his declaration in this morning's paper in such a way as to make his oath of false perjury under the law, I will immediately make public facts to establish perjury. Judge Hyland knew that his name was on this letterhead on August 20, 1915, the day on which this letterhead was sent out concerning the Friends of Peace in Chicago."

"The significance of Judge Hyland's name on this letterhead is that it establishes beyond any possible doubt his connection with disloyal agencies. Even before I made this letterhead public, there was every reason to believe that Judge Hyland was dominated by anti-American influences."

MARRIAGE NO OBSTACLE.

Ohioan Sues for Divorce to Get Into Aviation Corps.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 1.—When Frank L. O'Dowd of Marion was reported when he sought to join the aviation corps in the ground force he was married and filed a petition for divorce. With a copy of the petition in his possession he made another application and was accepted as a pilot by the War Department. His wife, Bernadine O'Dowd, with desertion. She is said to be living in Michigan.

SCOTCH WOOL SOCKS

Medium Weight in Grey, Black, Navy, Green or Blue.
$1.25 Pair
Heavy Weight in Grey, Black, Navy, Green or Blue.
$1.50 Pair
Extra Heavy in Grey, Black, Navy, Green or Blue.
$2.00 Pair
Stewart Sporting Sales Co.
425 FIFTH AVE., at 34th St.

MILK PRICE STAYS
SAME TILL SUNDAY

Dealers to Pay Extra Half Cent
While Dairymen Fix
Course.

LEAGUE HEADS TO MEET

Directors Will Act on Food Administration's Request to Halt Increase.

There will be no increase in the price of milk to the New York consumer before Sunday. What will happen then nobody would venture a guess last night. The days of grace were set yesterday afternoon at a conference of the Federal, State and city food administration heads as the result of an agreement entered into by the principal dealers.

The Dairymen's League milk prices for November go into effect today. The distributors have contracted to pay the farmers half a cent per quart more than during October. Pending any change that may be made in the farmers' price on and after Sunday the dealers, it is understood, will stand the loss of half a cent per quart.

H. D. Cooper, president of the Dairymen's League, presided at the conference to call a meeting of the league's board of directors either to-morrow night or Saturday, when the Food Administration's request that the league do not increase the producers' price for November will be acted upon.

Meet in Williams' Offices.

The conference took place at the office of Arthur Williams, Federal Food Administrator, at 123 East Fifteenth street, and lasted three hours and a half. Those present besides Mr. Williams were:

John Mitchell, State Food Commissioner; Health Commissioner Emerson, Henry Moskowitz, Commissioner of Public Markets; J. Edwin Nathan, secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board; C. A. Welant, president, and H. A. Cronin, vice-president, Borden Farms Products Company; L. A. Von Bonnel, general manager, Sheffield Farms-Stinson Dealer Company; L. E. Carpenter, president, Phoenix Cheese Company; T. G. Caldwell, vice-president, Brown & Bailey; F. E. Stevens, company; E. R. Lewis, representative Horton Ice Cream Company; R. D. Cooper, president Dairymen's League; and H. W. Carter, P. A. Thompson, H. J. Kenaway, Albert Manning, all of the league.

President Cooper explained there had been a meeting of the organization's executive committee in the morning, but that the committee had no authority to take any action that would be binding on the league members. This authority, he said, vested alone in the board of directors.

During the session Health Commissioner Emerson tried to make a resolution asking Mr. Cooper to call a meeting of the board of directors. Mr. Cooper made it clear that under no circumstances would he call the board together at the request of the Department of Health or the distributors, but said he would gladly do so if Mr. Williams, Mr. Mitchell, or Mr. Moskowitz desired it.

Then a sort of truce was declared by an agreement of the leading milk dealers to keep the retail price of milk stationary until November 4.

Seeks News on Lower Feed Prices.

There will be further conferences in the meantime. Food Administrator Williams will endeavor to get information from Washington as to possible reductions in the price of feed that is eaten by milk cows.

At yesterday's hearing of the Mayor's committee on milk, Dr. Brigham, State Commissioner of Agriculture of Vermont, testified that figures of the extension department of the University of Vermont, as tabulated from 212 out of 32,000 farms in the State, showed that it cost 6.80 cents to produce a quart of milk. The commissioner said his belief would be able to produce grain and fodder cheaper than if they bought it individually. He said that Vermont farmers are getting $1.82 per 100 pounds of milk for manufacturing purposes and he believed they were losing money. He declared there is a feeling of unrest among the farmers as a result.

J. M. Fuller, professor of dairying of Durham, N. H., testified it cost 200 dairy farmers $9,619 to produce a quart of milk in that State. That the product price in New Hampshire is 6 cents a quart. Prof. Fuller said that up to October 1, New Hampshire farmers had been selling their milk at a loss.

Prof. William Lockwood of the Massachusetts State Agricultural College said investigation among eighty-seven dairy farms in that State showed that it cost $9.24 to produce a quart of milk and that averaging the results of further investigations the cost was $9.16 cents a quart.

OUTLOOK IN POLAND
GLOOMY FOR ALLIES

Unless Speedy Action Is Taken
Germany May Win Diplomatic Victory There.

NEGOTIATIONS NOW ON

If Successful Many Teuton Divisions Would Be Free to Operate Elsewhere.

Copyright, 1917, all rights reserved.
Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun from the London Times.

Stockholm, Oct. 31.—The situation in Poland at the present moment appears to be extremely critical. Events lately have taken a turn which, unless checked by strong and immediate action on the part of the allied governments, seem likely to lead to the most complete fruition of the German hopes in this quarter. There is no reason to doubt that Polish sentiment still is strongly anti-German, but there is almost equally little doubt of the inclination to make the best of a bad job and come to terms with the occupying Power.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

CROWD CAME TO SEE
NOT HEAR HILLQUIT

12,000 Hurred for "Jim Unfit, Vexed, He Ejaculated.
"Aw, Shut Up."

It was Hillquit night at Madison Square Garden last evening. On the floor and in the galleries of the big arena were more than 12,000 admiring friends of the Socialist candidate, and on the platform were all the recent recruits to his staff of campaigners. Some of them, including Dudley Field Malone and Amos Pinchot, spoke.

But the big crowd went to see Hillquit rather than to hear him. When the bands had stopped playing and the marchers had stopped marching, and the speaker who had to come out for the Socialist candidate, finally long after 10 o'clock, Hillquit was introduced.

The applause and cheering lasted almost ten minutes, and then the candidate became impatient. Each time he attempted to start a new cheer, some remote corner of the room at last he could stand it no longer and an indignant, "Aw, shut up," came from his lips, audible to a large part of the audience.

The crowd did "shut up," but it also "went out." By the time Hillquit had started his speech the galleries were half empty and long lines of people were being turned away. A large number wanted to hear him, but a steady stream of spectators filed out through the doors. When the speaker was over one-third of the original crowd would be a low estimate for the absentees.

According to announcements the meeting was organized by the Professional Men's League, the Collegiate League for Hillquit, the Irish Progressive League and the Hibernian Non-Partisan League. The cause of Judge Hyland was raised by two Camp Upton soldiers who raised Hillquit on their shoulders and Williams will endeavor to get information from Washington as to possible reductions in the price of feed that is eaten by milk cows.

At yesterday's hearing of the Mayor's committee on milk, Dr. Brigham, State Commissioner of Agriculture of Vermont, testified that figures of the extension department of the University of Vermont, as tabulated from 212 out of 32,000 farms in the State, showed that it cost 6.80 cents to produce a quart of milk. The commissioner said his belief would be able to produce grain and fodder cheaper than if they bought it individually. He said that Vermont farmers are getting $1.82 per 100 pounds of milk for manufacturing purposes and he believed they were losing money. He declared there is a feeling of unrest among the farmers as a result.

J. M. Fuller, professor of dairying of Durham, N. H., testified it cost 200 dairy farmers $9,619 to produce a quart of milk in that State. That the product price in New Hampshire is 6 cents a quart. Prof. Fuller said that up to October 1, New Hampshire farmers had been selling their milk at a loss.

Prof. William Lockwood of the Massachusetts State Agricultural College said investigation among eighty-seven dairy farms in that State showed that it cost $9.24 to produce a quart of milk and that averaging the results of further investigations the cost was $9.16 cents a quart.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

OUTLOOK IN POLAND
GLOOMY FOR ALLIES

Unless Speedy Action Is Taken
Germany May Win Diplomatic Victory There.

NEGOTIATIONS NOW ON

If Successful Many Teuton Divisions Would Be Free to Operate Elsewhere.

Copyright, 1917, all rights reserved.
Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun from the London Times.

Stockholm, Oct. 31.—The situation in Poland at the present moment appears to be extremely critical. Events lately have taken a turn which, unless checked by strong and immediate action on the part of the allied governments, seem likely to lead to the most complete fruition of the German hopes in this quarter. There is no reason to doubt that Polish sentiment still is strongly anti-German, but there is almost equally little doubt of the inclination to make the best of a bad job and come to terms with the occupying Power.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be impressed with the argument that Poland has nothing to expect from the Allies and would better therefore conclude a bargain with the other party while she still has something to bargain with.

In the absence of direct communication with the outer world Polish public opinion naturally tends to view military events through German eyes and to be