

A group of American nurses in front of their headquarters at Toul, the principal town of the American zone in the Lorraine region. These girls have been taking care of Pershing's men who were wounded in the recent fighting there.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Testing the sword of the Crown Prince of Japan. It must sever three stacks of bamboo and straw.

Copyright, Theo. Mousault.

Launching the new Japanese cruiser Tenryu at the Yokosuka Navy Yard. The vessel is notable in that she was built entirely of Japanese steel.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.

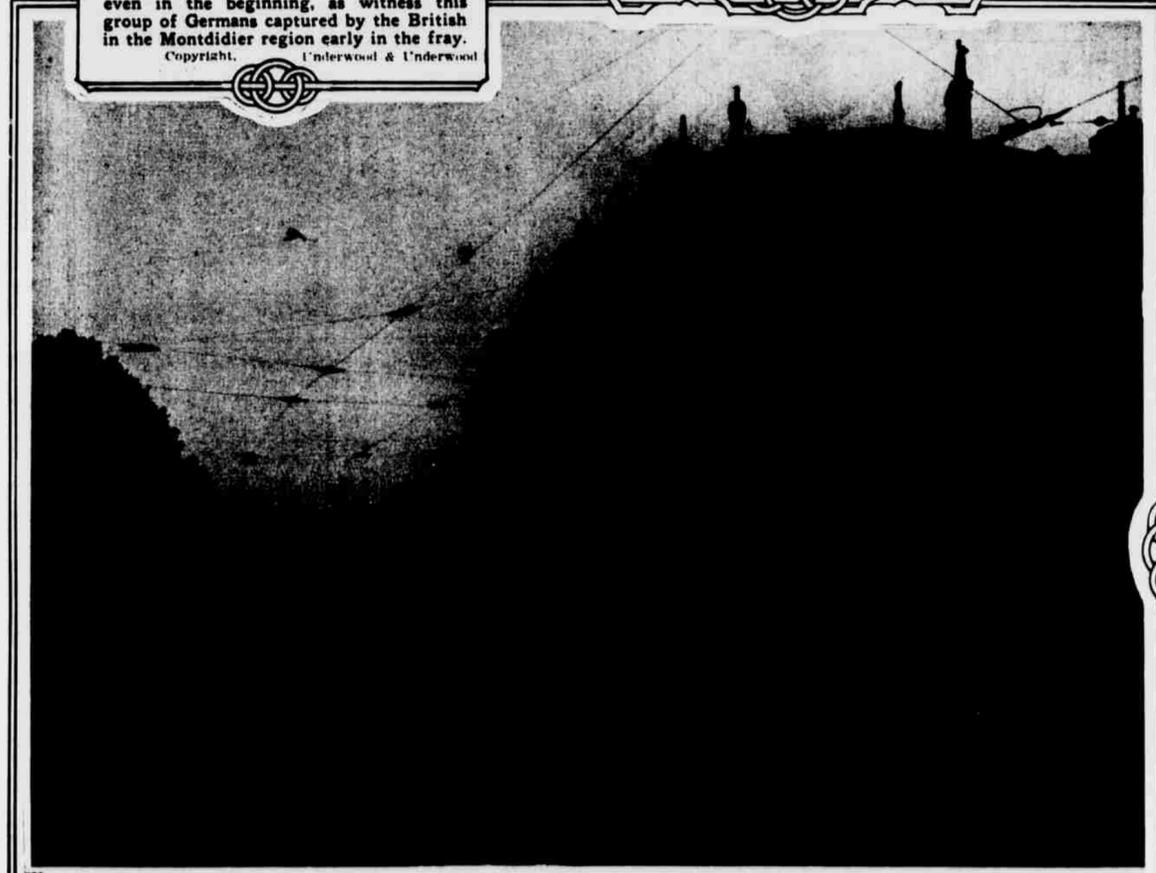

The great offensive wasn't all one-sided even in the beginning, as witness this group of Germans captured by the British in the Montdidier region early in the fray.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

A machine gun company of the White Guard of Finland, which recently crushed the Red Guard (Bolsheviki) army and captured the city of Viborg.

Photo by Central News.

Ruthlessly overrun, crushed but risen again, Belgium yet preserves her national entity. Her own capital taken from her, she directs her affairs from a foreign soil. Here is the present seat of the Belgian Government on Strasbourg Boulevard in Havre, France.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

The arrival in Paris of the first refugees from the towns overrun by the Germans in the great drive. Most of them escaped with only personal belongings. All were sympathetically treated and cared for by the Parisians.

Copyright, Press Illustrating Service.