

This is Gen. Carey, who, when the Germans were breaking through the British line in the Amiens drive, gathered a nondescript force of Americans, Chinese and laboring battalions and saved the day.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

The German raider Alexander Agassiz being convoyed to an American port by a United States warship. The vessel had done considerable damage to shipping and her capture was hailed with delight. A small gun had been installed on her and she preyed upon unarmed merchantmen.

Copyright, 1918, Committee on Public Information.

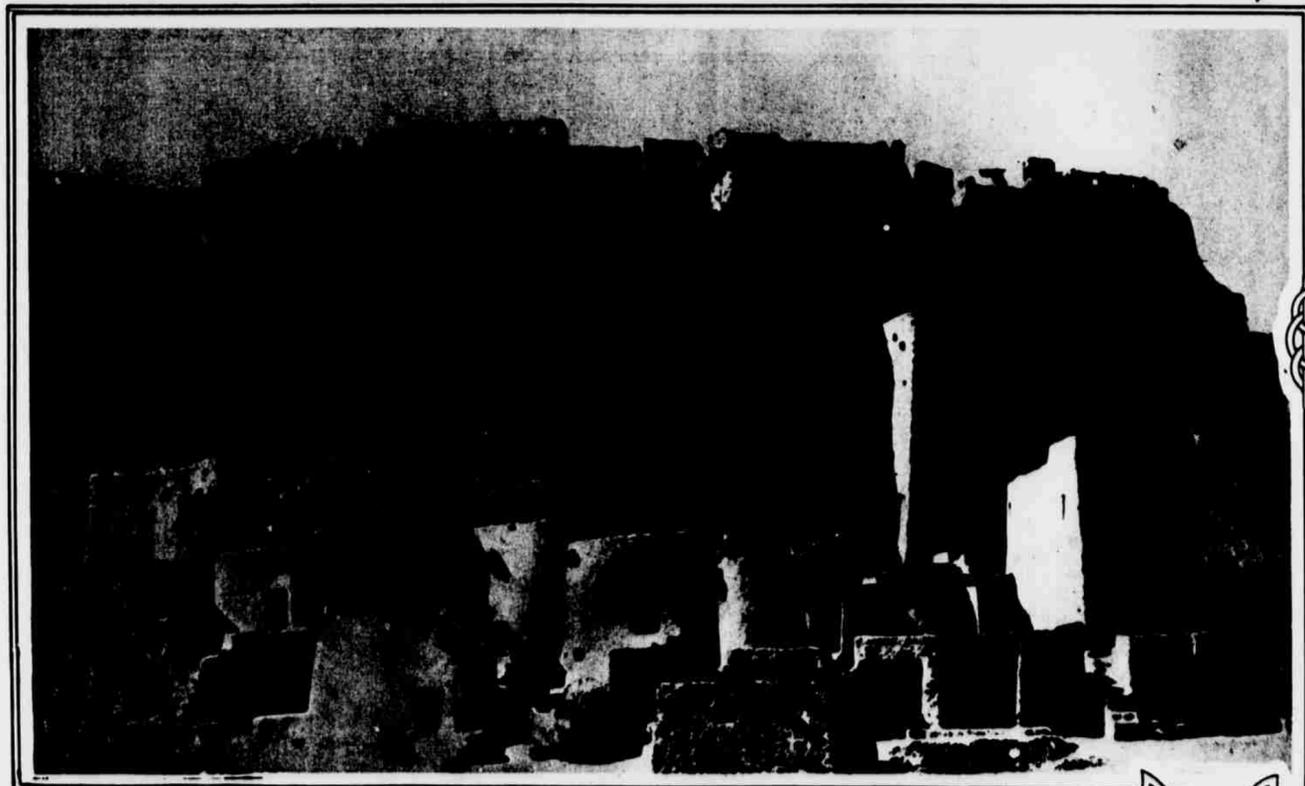

With the memory of the fate of worshippers in another Paris church fresh in their minds, these devout women and children attended holy mass in the Church of Notre Dame of Menilmontant while the city was under long range bombardment.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

The Dutch frontier, in this case a ladder and a pole, guarded on the German side by a Land-sturmer and on the other by Holland's regulars.

Photo, Press Illustrating Service.

A tenement city of ancient Egypt—Siwa, in the Libyan desert. The houses were built haphazard upon one another, and the appearance is not unlike that of a modern town. The place is situated on an oasis a mile wide and twenty miles long and is many centuries old.

Photo by International Film Service.

The oldest man in the navy and his grandson. A. L. Lowe, 77, served from 1861 to 1865 and reenlisted as carpenter's mate on May 29, 1917. The grandson, Gaston V. Lowe, aged 20, is serving on a battleship.

Copyright, Committee on Public Information.