

REDS COLLAPSING IN EASTERN SIBERIA

German Aid for Bolsheviki Is Doubtful and Russians Help New Regime.

CHANGE IS WELCOMED

Cossacks From Manchuria Join Czechoslovak Force From Vladivostok.

Special Cable Despatch to The Sun from the London Times.

PERKINS, July 7 (delayed).—The whole Bolsheviki position in eastern Siberia is regarded as on the verge of collapse.

Czechoslovak forces from Vladivostok and Cossack forces from Manchuria have joined hands at Nikolai and the Bolsheviki are retreating northward.

Their total number at this point is estimated at 4,000, of which a majority are Austrian prisoners, styling themselves "volunteer proletarians."

In Transbaikalia the Bolsheviki are retreating toward Irkutsk, establishing headquarters at Verkhneudinsk. Their main force, consisting of 3,000 infantry, 1,500 cavalry, 67 heavy guns, 150 machine guns, 3 airplanes and 200 motor cars, which has been facing Gen. Semenov, but in separate bodies, has gone westward since the collapse in western Siberia.

Owing to the condition of the Amur railroad, communication by the Bolsheviki in Transbaikalia is slow. Doubtless the Bolsheviki will arm all the prisoners possible. Many of the prisoners show no desire to concern themselves in local affairs.

Russians' Aid Expected.

The situation now depends largely upon the character of the new government recently formed at Novonikolaevsk.

There is reason to believe that the revolution against the Bolsheviki will become general throughout the western part of Siberia, since their overthrow has been effected mainly by the aid of the Czechoslovak forces.

There also is an expectation that Russians will rally to the support of the new government.

The question now is to what extent the Russians will aid the Bolsheviki in endeavoring to defeat the new movement in western Siberia.

Russian opinion here is that the Bolsheviki are weakening so fast in Russia proper that they will be unable seriously to assist the Germans to make a counter move in Siberia, while it is obvious that a military demonstration by Germany so far away from home is a formidable task.

Recent developments amount to this: That the Russians themselves, thanks to the intervention of the Czechoslovak forces, have had a fair opportunity to do that which they have been wanting the allied forces to help them do; namely, to restore order and establish a stable government.

The latest news from Irkutsk reports the total overthrow of the Bolsheviki and the arrest of those commissaries who had been involved with the assumption of administration by the municipal council.

Japanese Cabinet Meets.

Tokyo, July 13 (delayed).—A special meeting of the Japanese cabinet was attended by army officers, was held today and the newspapers attach much importance to it.

It is believed that some communication was received from the American Government concerning intervention in Russia.

LONDON, July 16.—Gen. Horvath, recently proclaimed ruler of Siberia, says in a despatch to the Times, dated July 13, he has expressed willingness to facilitate the movement of Czechoslovak troops toward the Transbaikalia.

The Czechs propose to attempt to reach Irkutsk immediately with a view to remaining communication with their compatriots in western Siberia, and will formally ask the Chinese Government for permission to traverse Manchuria.

There are indications, the despatch adds, that some of the Austrian prisoners in Siberia are anxious to join the ranks of the Czechs.

AMERICANS NOT LANDED IN RUSSIA

Secretary Baker Denies Invasion of Murman Coast.

Special Despatch to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Reports that American troops had been landed on the Murman coast in conjunction with British forces were denied today by Secretary Baker.

No troops, he made a plain, had been landed nor were any American troops on their way there.

Secretary Baker's denial dispenses of many reports recently that some understanding had been reached with the Allies by which troops would be despatched to this part of Russia and make it clear that these reports have been based on a misunderstanding.

The despatch also states that the landing of a small force of sailors and marines from the one American ship that is on that coast. This was done to constitute an expeditionary force for intervention.

With the western drive resumed again a disposition was noted today of holding up any Russian plan until the result of this has been made clear. It was pointed out by one of the President's advisers today, following the cabinet meeting, that despatching the troops in the offensive would do much to stiffen the resistance of the Russians to German influences and make the task of the Allies easier.

Senator Hitchcock, Nebraska chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, addressed to the President a letter today in which he suggested tentatively the appointment of a civil commissioner to visit Russia and report to the American Government the exact conditions they find.

PAPER PRAISES HORVATH.

London "Mail" Believes He Can Save Russia.

Special Cable Despatch to The Sun.

Copyright, 1918; all rights reserved.

LONDON, July 16.—The Daily Mail prints an editorial under the title "The Plan to Save Siberia," saying the news that Gen. Horvath, who is intensely anti-Bolsheviki, has formed a new Siberian Government, is of extreme importance.

Gen. Horvath lived in Siberia and Manchuria for twenty years, and is well known to the people of those countries. There is no man in Siberia more worthy of command and the confidence of the Allies—was one of the late writer's chosen men—has an excellent knowledge of the situation there, from which only the Bolsheviki are excluded.

FATHERING UP HIS COPY (OF DENNIS CITATION)

Dead Hackensack Marine Officer Commended for Courage in Battle.

TWO BROTHERS KILLED

Barretts Members of Kenosha Club, Brooklyn—New Yorker Reported Missing.

A carbon copy of a letter from the commanding officer of the Sixth Regiment to the brigades commander of the Fourth Brigade of Marines was sent to W. H. Dennis, father of Lieut. Clarence A. Dennis, who was killed in action June 2.

The communication was sent by the young lieutenant's commanding officer, Major General George Barnett. The letter was as follows:

"A letter from the commanding officer of the Sixth Regiment has just been received in this office. It contains the following citation in reference to your son, Lieut. Clarence A. Dennis, Marine Corps, which I know you will be interested in learning:

"Lieut. Clarence A. Dennis, Company G, was killed in the capture of Bouresches on June 6, after having displayed marked courage in leading his platoon through an artillery and machine gun fire, and kept his firing line supplied with ammunition."

"It is indeed a pleasure to write you that your son so conspicuously distinguished himself in action, and it must be a source of great pride for you to know that he performed his duty to the end in such a fearless and able manner."

Given Cross by Perahing.

Lieut. Dennis was born in Hackensack twenty-one years ago. His mother died in 1916. The lieutenant attended the public schools in Hackensack until he was 14 years old when he entered the Manhattan Military College. On account of his exceptional work in this institution he attracted the attention of the War Department. He graduated in June, 1917. He was a member of the football team, belonged to a number of fraternities and was military editor of the college paper.

Upon graduating he offered his services to the government and was given a commission, being ordered to Quantico, Va., where he remained until June 2 of this year. Gen. Perahing awarded the Distinguished Service Cross to Lieut. Dennis for courage on the field of battle in France, where he never paid special attention to the art of the house. But when for Christmas she came to the country with her mother I found that I liked her very much. And she is a brother. Thaddeus, enlisted in the army in June. We had told each other of — What do you think? — I am as happy as can be. My little girl, Suzanne, is dark, about my size, gay, simple, &c., just my style, and there you are."

The brothers were the only members of the family in this country.

Private Steinkamp was born in Germany twenty-two years ago, coming to this country with his family when he was 10 years old. He entered the army in 1915 and was assigned to the 11th Infantry. He was wounded in the action at the 45th Fort-seventh street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
