

WILSON WON WAR IS DEMOCRATS' HOPE

Election Faith Is Placed in Appeal of President to Hold Congress.

REPUBLICANS CONFIDENT Great Reaction Against a Practical Autocracy Seen by Leaders.

Special Despatch to THE SUN, WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Democratic hopes of success in to-morrow's Congressional elections repose on the belief in the minds of the managers of the President's political party that a sufficient number of American voters will ascribe the success in winning the war by America and her allies to the Democratic party and to its leaders.

Republican hopes of regaining control of one or both branches of the national legislature rest on the belief in the minds of the Republican managers that there is sufficient dissatisfaction with the Democratic party's conduct of internal affairs, its stupendous expenditures of national resources without regard for obtaining even as near a balance of values involved as is possible even in war.

The Democrats adhere to the belief that the nation will yield to the President's appeal for unanimity of political conviction between Congress and the executive branch of the Government and accept it as a necessary assistance to him in working out postwar adjustments of the relations of the Government and the President.

See "Practical Autocracy." The Republicans insist that the nation had enough of a Government the tendency of which has day by day been toward the creation of a practical autocracy.

The political value of the announcement received at 9 o'clock to-night, that the Grand Conference of the Allies at Versailles had reached a definite agreement, which they acclaimed with complete unanimity, is felt by the Republican leaders here can be ignored as of any political value.

The simple announcement that the allied conference had reached an agreement that on apprehensive Washington.

It was not a word in the announcement about the fourteen articles of peace being those which the President had defined ten months ago.

The Democratic day of waiting had a disappointing finish. To the Republicans who had felt all along that the grand coup of the entire campaign of coups was to be forthcoming to-night, the State Department's announcement brought joy.

In the course of the night rumors flew about the capital with persistence and in large numbers. It had been reported once or twice that the State Department was preparing to announce the abdication of Wilhelm II.

Successing Senator Cortlandt Nicoll in the Seventeenth; Harold C. Mitchell in the Twentieth, and William Duggan in the Nineteenth.

As it is normally Democratic, the Republicans are likely to lose the Richmond-Rockland district, now represented by Senator George W. Cromwell.

In New York county the Republicans have eight of the twenty-three Assemblymen. They expect to increase this number to ten through the election of Republicans in the Sixth and Eighth districts, now represented by Socialists.

In the Third, Fourth and Fifth districts in the Bronx, now held by Socialists, the Republicans and Democrats have fused, but are not certain of taking the districts even with the fusion.

Sharp Contest in N. H. Concord, N. H., Nov. 4.—A sharp contest is looked for at the polls to-morrow in this State between John B. Jackson, Democrat, and George H. Moses, Republican, for the unexpired term of the late Senator Jacob H. Gallagher, Republican.

Republican Confidence Grows. Delaware is also a Democratic sore spot. The confidence in victory which pervades the White House is not shared at the Capitol, and somewhere between the White House optimism and Capitol apprehension lies the real truth, only to be divined by to-morrow's ballots.

The Republicans are grimly content of success in the House and hopeful of the Senate. At headquarters it was said to-night that the House would surely turn up Republican Wednesday morning and that nothing worse than a tie was admissible in the Senate and that with any sort of luck the Senate would go Republican as well.

WHERE TROOPS MAY VOTE. Four Places Designated Here for Soldiers and Sailors. The Board of Elections announced yesterday these voting places in Manhattan and Brooklyn where soldiers, sailors and marines may cast their votes in the elections to-day.

which he puts it arouses new interest in his department. We call upon the voters to weigh the frantic appeal to continue the present control in Congress on behalf of the present departmental agencies.

"You complain because Democratic leaders are urging the people to support the President in this serious time of war by giving him a Democratic majority in Congress. And yet this is exactly what Republican leaders urged the people to do in 1912 when the Spanish war was already practically ended.

in the State of New York. Roosevelt was the Republican nominee for Governor. Democrat as I was, I headed the appeal of Republican leaders and supported the Republican nominee for Congress in my district and Roosevelt.

"I believed then, as I believe now, that in time of war the duty of every genuine patriot is to support the President, whether Republican or Democrat, with a majority of his own party in the Congress so that he may be unhampered in the conduct of the war and unity of action be absolutely secured.
