

ROSA SAW FINAL TRIUMPH OF REDS

Spartacan Leader, in Last Article, Fixed Blame for Setback.

DEFIANT TOWARD EBERT

 PARIS, Jan. 24.—The Berliner Tageblatt quotes the last article of Rosa Luxemburg, which was published in the Rote Fahne the day before her death. After comparing ironically the delight of the bourgeoisie at the government's triumph over the Spartacans with the alleged victories of German troops in the field, she points out that the revolution has no time to lose. She admits there was no chance of upsetting the Ebert-Scheidemann combination, the revolution at this moment having no chance, owing to the unreadiness of the masses of soldiers.

"The rising, however," she wrote, "is a spontaneous reaction of the people against provocation. The revolution is only a form of war, wherein final victory can be prepared only by a series of the defeats such as befell Lyons silk weavers in the 1831 uprising and the 1888 Commune."

See Final Victory.
 These defeats lead step by step to the final victory. The opposite is the case with political warfare, where the series of parliamentary victories during the last forty years led to crushing political and moral defeat and the bankruptcy of August 4, 1914.

But revolutionary victory, the article goes on, depends on the energy which survives each defeat.
 The defeat of the Spartacans in the previous week was due partly to the insufficient ripeness of the situation, partly to the weakness and half-heartedness of the leaders, but although the leaders failed, the masses, who are on the rock on which final victory will be built, will find new leaders. Rosa Luxemburg concluded as follows:

Order Built on Sand.
 "Order reigns in Berlin! You stupid hangers-on! Your order is built on sand. The revolution will declare itself to-morrow, rising and rattling its chains, and to your terror, with the trumpet call, I was, I am, I shall be!"

FOCH SEES DANGER IN DEMOBILIZATION

Warns That Germany Has Not Completely Surrendered.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Marshal Foch rendered the allied Powers a valuable service when he placed before the Supreme Council his report on his negotiations with the German representatives at the time of the renewal of the armistice, says the Echo de Paris to-day in commenting upon the plans for the demobilization of the various armies on the basis of a mutual understanding.
 His report, the newspaper declares, pointed the way toward a proper and wise method, for he laid emphasis on the fact that the coming peace must not merely be a written one, but one in actuality—in other words, that it must be a peace imposed upon the enemy and that sufficient mobilized military power should be maintained to enforce it.
 "Germany," continues the article, "has not yet completely surrendered. She is seeking for accomplices and cannot fall ultimately to find a few such. The governments, therefore, should not demobilize their forces without a common understanding. This course, if persisted in, would rapidly lessen the value of the peace treaty. The Powers should come to an understanding as to the forces which they intend maintaining in Germany. Such an understanding is essential to the preservation of a proper state of things both in Europe as a whole and in France in particular, as France cannot go on bearing indefinitely the mortgage of disproportionate military responsibilities."

FLETCHER ON HIS WAY HOME

Mission Said to Relate to New Loan for Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 25.—H. P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Mexico, left Mexico City to-day for Washington to discuss with the American State Department questions now pending between the United States and Mexico. The Ambassador expects to be absent about six weeks.
 The announcement of his departure was accompanied by a revival of various rumors in Mexico City. These rumors said that the conference in Washington would be connected with the reported loan to Mexico by American bankers and with the decision of American capitalists with interests in Mexican oil and mineral lands to send a delegation to the Peace Conference.

REDS TRY TO RAISE ARMY OF 2,000,000

Campaign in South Russia During Spring Said to Be Planned.

ALLIES RETIRE IN NORTH

Forces in Advanced Positions Give Way to Superior Numbers.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Travellers reaching Copenhagen and Bergen from northern Russia, according to advices received here, say that the Bolsheviks are attempting to raise an army of 2,000,000 men for a campaign in south Russia in the spring.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Retirement of the allied forces holding advanced positions in the Archangel sector before attacks by superior forces of Bolsheviks is reported in an official despatch dated January 23, the substance of which was made public to-day by Gen. March.

The points attacked by the enemy lay generally about 150 miles from Archangel. Gen. March said the interallied commander there had adequate troops to reinforce the advanced elements and to handle the situation.

The message reported the American losses in one of the actions at Ust-Pedenga as ten enlisted men killed, seventeen wounded and eleven missing. A letter despatch said subsequent attacks were repulsed when delivered on the positions taken up by the American forces.
 An interallied force engaged at Shoukurst consisted of a British detachment, two companies of Americans and two companies of Russians. These were attacked on three sides and compelled to evacuate their positions, as well as the allied patrols holding Ust-Pedenga. The American troops falling back took a position midway between this point and Shoukurst. In one of the attacks reported 1,000 enemy troops were in action against the small allied force.

Gen. March pointed out again that the whole military situation at Archangel was under the control of the interallied high command in France. He intimated that should reinforcements be deemed necessary any action to supply them would have to come from the high command and after the recommendation from the British Commander in Chief of the forces in Siberia.

COMMUNISTS CALL WORLD CONGRESS

Programme of Reds Outlined at Moscow.

ZENITZ, Jan. 25.—According to reports received here from Moscow the "International Communist Congress" there has decided to convene the first Congress of a new revolutionary International. The Communist Congress, it is stated, has drafted a manifesto setting forth a program of action upon the programme of the German Spartacan party and the Russian Communist and Bolshevik parties.
 The document declares the present is the period for the overthrow of the world's capitalistic system, and European culture with it. The task of the proletariat today, it argues, is to take over governmental power which must be placed in the hands of a dictatorship constituted by the class of small workers, peasants and agricultural laborers. This dictatorship, it is declared, must immediately expropriate capitalism and suppress private property, transferring it to the state. The first measure to that end, it is said, must be the disarmament of the bourgeoisie and its agents and the arming of the proletariat, which will have to begin an open armed conflict against the ruling power—capitalism.
 The manifesto adds that in dealing with "social patriots who everywhere at the most critical moments oppose the revolution with arms" there is no alternative than to fight without mercy. It says it is necessary to rally together those sections of the proletariat which have given proof of their sympathy toward the revolution.

 PARIS, Jan. 25.—The United States Army has opened a sales department with Brig-Gen. C. B. Krauthoff in charge at the Elysee Palace Hotel, in Paris. Extensive plans have been arranged to draw back some cash for left-over equipment as the various divisions take their departure for home. We will have 200,000 horses and more than 8,000 small wooden barrack buildings to sell.
 French farmers will have the first opportunity to purchase our horses for their agricultural needs, and the barrack buildings will be sent into the devastated regions in northern France for temporary homes for the homeless inhabitants. The army trucks, when they have served their usefulness, will be repaired and knocked down to the highest bidders, likewise used automobiles.
 A large quantity of steel and iron material and some of the buildings will be sold. Several European railroads are figuring upon the left-over rails, freight cars, locomotives and machine shop equipments. Your correspondent has seen an estimate of what it is hoped the sales will approximately amount to and it represents a tidy sum.
