

FRIENDS 'EXPLAIN' REBUFF TO COHALAN

Lay Wilson's Slight to Resentment at Justice's Successful Strategy.

HAD TO SEE COMMITTEE

Democratic Leaders Warned by Jurist They Must Espouse Hearing for Ireland.

President Wilson's excommunication of Justice Daniel F. Cohalan in the Metropolitan Opera House on Tuesday night is ascribed by members of the Irish committee from whose interview with Mr. Wilson Cohalan was excluded.

The President did not want to see the committee; it felt out that he had to; Cohalan managed the strategy of the campaign; the President rebuffed Cohalan by refusing to meet the committee while he was in the room.

Unremitting in Campaign.

From the moment of President Wilson's landing in Boston, February 24, until late last week, when the opera house appointment was made, Justice Cohalan, charged by the Irish Race Convention with the duty of getting the President's ear in the matter of self-determination for Ireland, did not let up a minute.

"We did not want to pester the President, but we simply had to see him, so every time he turned around we found our plea before him and he finally gave in."

"In Washington last week we received no intimation that the Justice was persona non grata. We were amazed when Chief Moran of the secret service entered the meeting room in the opera house last night and whispered to Eugene Kinkead of Newark."

"The President says he will not come in if Justice Cohalan is here."

"It seemed to us rather astonishing that the President should be willing to meet the other members of the committee but not the man who appointed us, Judge Cohalan."

"The Justice and the rest of the committee discussed the interview with the President and the Cohalan incident until 4 o'clock yesterday morning in the Hotel McAlpin. It was agreed that for the present nothing more was to be said."

Sub-committee Named.

Sub-Justice John W. Goff appointed a sub-committee to attend to further developments. It consists of Goff, Major Kinkead, Justice Cohalan, Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia, Bishop Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., and Frank P. Walsh, former United States senator from New York.

Several members had luncheon together yesterday. The consensus of their talk was that the Wilson-Cohalan episode could be ignored for the time being while developments of the Peace Conference were awaited.

When the Irish Race Convention held in Philadelphia February 22 and 23 named Justice Cohalan, its chairman, to go to Washington, the committee of Walsh of Montana about getting the Goff committee, appointed by the President, to see the President.

Walsh replied that he had every reason to believe the request would be granted, but as events proved his confidence was somewhat misplaced.

It was said yesterday that Senator Walsh himself took to the White House the resolutions adopted by the Philadelphia convention. Mr. Walsh knew that the text would not please the President, for it not only advocated self-determination for Ireland but assailed the League of Nations plan.

Irish Warn Democrats. Meanwhile Justice Cohalan had a sub-committee of the Democratic National Committee, which met in Washington, and urged as a party matter that the Democrats send a committee to the White House to ask the President to advocate the Irish cause in Paris.

The Sun learned yesterday that in executive session the national committee unanimously headed by Goff, authorized the new Democratic chairman, Homer Cummings, to send two representatives to the President.

Justice Cohalan told Mr. Cummings that if Ireland was left out when self-determination was granted to small nations the Democratic party in the United States might as well resign.

Mr. Cummings selected National Committee Amundson of Kansas and Quinn of Rhode Island to set the national committee's action before Mr. Wilson, who they and Mr. Cummings, too, did at a luncheon given by the President to the national committee.

Meanwhile Justice Cohalan and a number of his workers were hammering at the House Committee on Rules and obtained unanimous approval of the Gaffney self-determination resolution which had been slumbering.

Committee Visits Tammany. The next morning, no word having been received from Justice Cohalan and the whole committee called upon Mr. Tammany. The spokesman, Justice Goff, said he was chairman of a committee selected by a convention of 2,000 delegates to discuss with the President a subject of the gravest importance and that the committee wished to see him in person.

Justice Cohalan said that he did not know why the British authorities were determined to destroy him, as they would like to destroy every well wisher of Ireland.

When the committee, after Justice Cohalan's retirement, was received by the President Tuesday night Justice Goff spoke even more frankly than was indicated in the press yesterday.

"Mr. President, we are here representing more than 20,000,000 Americans of Irish blood, and you are our representative in the Peace Conference."

"Some of the committee received such a favorable impression of what was going on in the President's mind that they are optimistic enough to believe that he intends to raise the Irish question at the Peace Conference."

"The trial of the divorce action brought by Henry H. McClure against Frances H. McClure came to an abrupt halt in Supreme Court yesterday when Edmund L. Mooney, the defendant's attorney, used the term 'a blundering fool' in referring to Harford T. Marshall, attorney for Justice Cohalan."

"The court records bear him out in this contention, but Justice Ford had a different understanding and demanded an immediate apology. This Mooney refused to give."

As the principals flocked out of the room into the corridor court officers followed to see that the row began inside should not develop into a physical contest in the hall.

Money was summoned up before the jury when he declared his client had made the victim of a 'fool, deliberate frame-up.' He said one of the witnesses in the case was a maid at the Clure home, previously had been used by Marshall as a witness in a divorce and was being dragged from court to court.

"You have gone beyond all propriety," exclaimed Justice Ford. "You have insulted a reputable member of the bar in open court and must apologize."

When Mooney refused to do so the case was declared a mistrial. The two attorneys pleaded to have the case go on to trial before Judge Beckett.

"Do I have to leave this courtroom to avoid being your abusive language?" and declared court adjourned until this morning.

During the scene in the court room Mrs. McClure, who has been on the verge of hysteria during the two days the trial was in progress, broke down. She was led from the court room by her mother, who held her constantly on one side. She underwent a long and severe cross-examination on Tuesday, and when it became apparent that she must undergo the same ordeal again she sobbed loudly.

BROOKLYN COPS TRANSFERRED.

Signs of Shakeup Seen in Move by Enright. Signs of a police shakeup in Brooklyn were seen in police circles yesterday on the announcement of the transfer of Detective Joseph Benzig and John Hines of the Sixteenth Inspection District to the uniformed force.

Both have been detectives four years and are by their associates to have done important work in recovering stolen property. Later it was learned that Detective Charles Lowe, twenty-two, was transferred to the Clure street station.

Denial of a general shakeup was made from Manhattan Police Headquarters yesterday. For the last six years he has done plain clothes duty.

AIDS INCOME TAXPAYERS.

Collector Gardner, Brooklyn, to Keep Office Open Evenings. Benjamin Gardner, Collector of Internal Revenue, with headquarters in the Brooklyn post office, announced today that he would keep his office open until 9:30 evenings in order to accommodate the crowds filing income tax returns.

Collector Gardner announced he had appointed thirty temporary clerks and that he had withdrawn to the central office to prepare for the rush. Collector Gardner also made known today his reasons for the reelection of Mrs. Margaret Fisher and Mrs. Mary Wisan as letters in his office after they had been recommended by John J. McCooey, Democratic county leader. The collector said that they did not have the requisite qualifications.

$5,000 GEM IN CHICKEN COOP.

Stolen Jewels Found Back of New Brunswick Parsonage. Jewels worth $5,000 which were stolen last Thursday from Charles Whittier vice-president of the New Brunswick Trust Company, when he set a suitcase containing them down for a few minutes on the porch of his home in New Brunswick, N. J., were discovered yesterday in a chicken coop in the rear of the parsonage of the Highland Park Reformed Church, occupied by the Rev. Anthony Luiden.

How they got there is a mystery.

IRATE SURGE PLAN BIG PROTEST RALLY

Attack President for His Failure to Call Extra Session of Congress.

'HUBBUB' SET FOR MONDAY

Demonstration in Carnegie Hall to Follow Welcome of 'Prison Special.'

"Our task is to make a hubbub about the President's refusing to call an extra session of Congress. If he had called Congress together before he sailed the suffrage amendment could be put through at once and ratified by the necessary three-fourths of the States in time to enable the women of the country to vote in the 1920 election."

So said Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the National Woman's party, sitting in the suffragette headquarters at 13 East Forty-first street yesterday, calm and collected as if she hadn't been in the center of the battles that followed the attempt of the militants to break through police lines around the Metropolitan Opera House on Tuesday night.

Miss Paul said that she was nursing the bruises she received that night and Miss Marya Ratawitch came into headquarters limping, with a patch on her cheek and a red line around her throat where, she said, a policeman had struck her.

Not Fighting League of Nations. President Wilson, Miss Paul declared, should not allow his fear that the Republican Senators might imperil the League of Nations from preventing him calling Congress together to pass the suffrage amendment.

First Presentation New Millinery

Every hat in this little informal opening of ours is a bit of Paris brought home by our just-returnd commissioner in the form of an idea and developed by our own clever milliners.

Some of the hats are direct copies of the most successful models of the great Paris houses. These hats are labeled copies, and the labels say definitely who is the Paris creator of the hat.

Some of the most attractive details of these new hats are: High hats crowned with drooping cascades of ostrich; tall-hats with new ways of placing wings;
