

SHUBERTS TO BOOK 2000 ATTRACTIONS Arrangements Made With 40 of America's Most Important Producers.

TO REVIVE "FLORODORA" Bothen and Marlowe's Return in Shakespearean Repertoire Planned.

The Shuberts have announced the most ambitious programme of their career for next season, embracing the arrangement of routes through their booking office of more than 200 attractions...

One of the most important undertakings in which the Shuberts will be concerned is the return of Bothen and Marlowe in a Shakespearean repertoire.

Al Johnson will begin his season in "The Passing Show" in September...

New Play for Irene Fenwick. Irene Fenwick will be featured in a new play, Rachel Crothers is to be seen in October in her latest comedy, "He and She"...

Peggy Wood is to appear later in the season in a play which she has written in collaboration with Samuel Merwin...

The Shuberts announce also that they will produce "Officer's Mess," a current London success. From Cleves Kinkaid, author of "Comrades" has been accepted "The Mood of the Moon"...

Other new plays accepted for immediate production are "The School for Manners," by M. Arment and Cerberide; "Clutch of Circumstances"...

In addition the Shuberts will produce the plays of Henri Bernstein, with whom they have a contract for five seasons...

Heading the list of musical productions is the next Winter Garden revue, "The Passing Show"...

Other musical shows are "Mr. Manhattan," with the famous Grossmiths in the leading roles...

'THE WESTERNERS' PLEASAS AT STRAND Screen Adaptation of Stewart Edward White's Novel Made by Author.

It is regrettable that the National Board of Review isn't composed entirely of authors and other writing persons who are supposed to know nothing about the movies...

The picture version of Stewart Edward White's well known tale, which bore in a subtitle the recommendation that it was produced "under the personal approval" of the author...

Mr. White may know nothing about the movies, but he is plentifully supplied with brains. Consequently his personal editing of his story of the gold mine...

The acting is of a well rounded order, particularly in the double role played by Mildred Manning. Roy Stewart does well as the wild young scapgrace of a good Philadelphia family...

Besides orchestral and vocal numbers the Strand programme includes a slow motion analysis of the playing of the Glaxo, which proved even more amusing to the audiences yesterday than a Mack Bennett comedy...

Catherine Calvert, another pantomimist of great personal magnetism was projected into sight at the Rialto with "The Career of Katherine Bush"...

The "Fall of Babylon" enters on its last week at the George M. Cohan Theatre, after which the D. W. Griffith repertoire series, now renovated with "Hearts of the World"...

Harlem Service Men Will Meet To-night in Board of Commerce Rooms.

Organization of two important posts of the American Legion will be effected at meetings this evening at the board of commerce rooms. The time announcement has been made that a charter has been issued to the City Club Post of the City Club of New York, the first club to organize its service men under the legion's rules.

The largest of the organization meetings will be for the Harlem Post, to be held at the rooms of the Harlem Board of Commerce at 250 Lenox avenue. An auxiliary committee has been organized with the cooperation of the board, and the movement to raise funds for the Harlem veterans' club-house will be started to-night.

Major Philip J. McCook, a staff officer of the Fifth Infantry, who was extensively wounded and cited for bravery, will be one of the speakers. Alexander Holtzoff, 27 Pine street, is temporary secretary of the Harlem Post.

The other organization meeting will be held at the old First Artillery Armory, at Broadway and Sixty-third street. While this post, to be known as "Overdore F. Mead Post," is primarily for the men who served in the First Field Artillery any service men of the neighborhood are invited to join.

The City Club Post was also active in all of the civic work connected with the war in New York. It made a record for enrollment in the Twenty-seventh Assembly District for the State military census, registering 105,000 persons.

At the suggestion of President Wilson the club undertook the relief of Russian officers stranded in New York at the time of the revolution. Many of these men were crippled. A committee of the club to aid the fatherless children of France has contributed a thousand dollars a week to that organization for a year and a half.

MERCIER'S CODE IS QUOTED. Rules for Man and for Country Repeated by Americans. Special Despatch to The Sun. OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 3.—"Better be dead than dishonored is the rule for a man. Better to be dead than dishonored is the rule for a country. No man lives for himself; no country exists just for itself."

Thus Cardinal Mercier set forth his code of moral ethics to Lieut.-Col. John Van Schaick, Jr., of the Red Cross in conversations at Malines, while the latter was doing war work in Belgium. Col. Van Schaick spoke at Ferry Beach to-night to a convention of the Young People's Christian Union of the United States. Speaking of his own past, he said that in America next month, the Cardinal is quoted as saying: "I am too old a man to take such a long voyage. I am needed here. I don't see how I can get away. But I shall never be happy until I meet you people face to face and thank them for saving Belgium."

Despite his age the Cardinal will make the trip, and Col. Van Schaick assures him that Catholics, Protestants and Jews would see in him no sectarianism, but merely the man whom the Kaiser could not daunt and to whom the entire world looked with a beacon fire of hope and courage.
