

BILL WOULD RAISE RATES, SAY PACKERS

Testimony at Washington Hearing All in Their Favor, They Contend.

GARBLING IS CHARGED

Twisting of Statements to Gain Points Laid to Federal Trade Commission.

Special Dispatch to This Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Hearings on the various bills designed to place a Government check on the meat packing industry have ended for the time being.

The hearings of the Senate Agriculture Committee on the Kenyon-Kendrick and other bills to regulate and license the packing and allied industries have come to a temporary halt.

The advocates of the bills consisted of a representative of the Federal Trade Commission, a representative of the American National Live Stock Association, of Senator Kendrick, father of one of the most radical bills, and the president of the National Live Stock Association.

Opponents of the Legislation

The witnesses opposed to the legislation included independent packers, the largest live stock producers in the United States, official representatives of chambers of commerce and numerous civic and trade organizations.

Against Governmental interference with business—especially the complex packing business—and the setting up of a bureaucracy to control and even stifle an industry at the will of a politically appointed officer.

It has been shown beyond the shadow of a doubt that the proposed legislation would disrupt the country's packers, live stock and allied industries—the greatest and most vital in America.

Cheating Laid to Probers

The Federal Trade Commission charged that the packers were monopolizing the food products of the country and submitted a long list of products dealt in to prove the assertion.

It has been shown during the hearings that the list of products actually handled by the packers was expanded and warped by the commission, in order to make its point, by the method of listing, for example, thirty-seven different kinds of sausage as thirty-seven different products.

Special Dispatch to This Sun

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Lord Kitchener of Kartoum, elder brother of the late Lord Kitchener, whom he succeeded in the title, is now at Soy, British East Africa. He writes to the Times:

"I have now been six months on the slopes of Mount Elgon, and am more convinced than ever that what is required here for the good of the empire and more especially the natives are hard-working settlers, not rich syndicates. Remember that with small capital to succeed a man must work hard, live hard and not drink."

SENATE WILL TAKE UP LEAGUE TO-DAY

bilily of complication or embarrassment to this country as result of any action that may be taken in the Senate.

Rejection Would Simplify

It is complained that Administration spokesmen headed by the President have sought to make it appear that the country somehow will be left in an awful scrape unless there is early ratification; whereas opponents of the treaty say its rejection would in fact greatly simplify rather than complicate the position of the United States.

If Secretary of State Lansing ever intends to say anything about the testimony of William G. Bullitt before the Foreign Relations Committee, which revealed the sordid bargaining away of principles to procure the League of Nations, the President is well advised to change his attitude toward the League of Nations.

By a flood of testimony during the past four weeks it has been conclusively proved that the Kenyon-Kendrick and similar radical bills would, if passed, bring about lower prices to live stock producers and increase the cost of living to consumers.

What Bullitt had to say was communicated to Mr. Lansing at his summer home at Henderson Harbor. This testimony directly affected the tremendously important work of his official chief in Paris.

Rightly or wrongly, the Premier's appeal is regarded as the signal of new orientation in the Government's policy. The result of the election last week in the House of Commons over the League of Nations is considered in political circles to be the handwriting on the wall for the Coalition Government.

Propriety Open to Question

While there was some intimation of the character of the testimony Mr. Bullitt would present, there was some doubt of the propriety of his revealing to one Republican Senator, it is known, advised Mr. Bullitt against the course he contemplated. However, he chose to make the revelation.

Suspected of Ambition to Create a Strong Liberal-Labor Ministry.

MANY ISSUES UNPOPULAR

Irish Problem, Naval Retrenchment, Trade Policy and Russia Involved.

Special Cable Dispatch to This Sun

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Commenting in the Sunday Observer on Premier Lloyd George's message to the people of Great Britain, J. L. Garvin says:

"Time will show how far David Lloyd George can reassert himself as one of the nation's real leaders. If he can take up the reins firmly again, cut down expenditures, restore sober, systematic administrative methods and call the nation to go forward with him in the name of those who fell to the prosecution of needless reforms then we cannot despair of seeing a new world or of Lloyd George as a prophet."

The Premier's holiday on the Normandy coast has been filled with business. In the garden of the villa he occupied near Deauville he has held many conferences with foreign statesmen, such as Foreign Minister Tittoni of Italy, and with members of his own cabinet, including Mr. Bonar Law, Foreign Secretary Balfour, Sir Robert Horne and Sir Eric Geddes.

FRENCH TOWNS DECORATED

Legion of Honor for Donat and Cambrai.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—President Poincare, who left Paris last night on a trip which was to include the cities of Donat and Cambrai, conferred to-day the Legion of Honor on those municipalities.

In conferring the decorations President Poincare said the towns merited well of the country by their endurance of sufferings and privations due to ill treatment by the enemy in the period of German occupation. He congratulated them for working resolutely for reconstruction.

Coalition in Prospect

With the insistent public demand for retrenchment and the unpopularity of the Government in the matter of its trade policy, the Russian affair and the Irish problem, the Government is surrounded by difficulties which, in general opinion, can be solved only by an appeal to the country.
