

Where the death toll was greatest in the terrific hurricane which swept Corpus Christi, Tex., costing 200 lives and causing a $10,000,000 property loss. The picture shows wreckage piled up outside the Nueces Hotel.

Copyright, Keystone View Co., N. Y.

Above — Seeking bodies of hurricane victims amid the ruins in Corpus Christi, Tex.

Copyright, Wide World Photos

At Left — The opening of the army quartermaster retail store in the Cluett Building, West 19th street, drew an eager crowd to buy blankets, apparel and many other articles far below the regular market prices.

Copyright, International

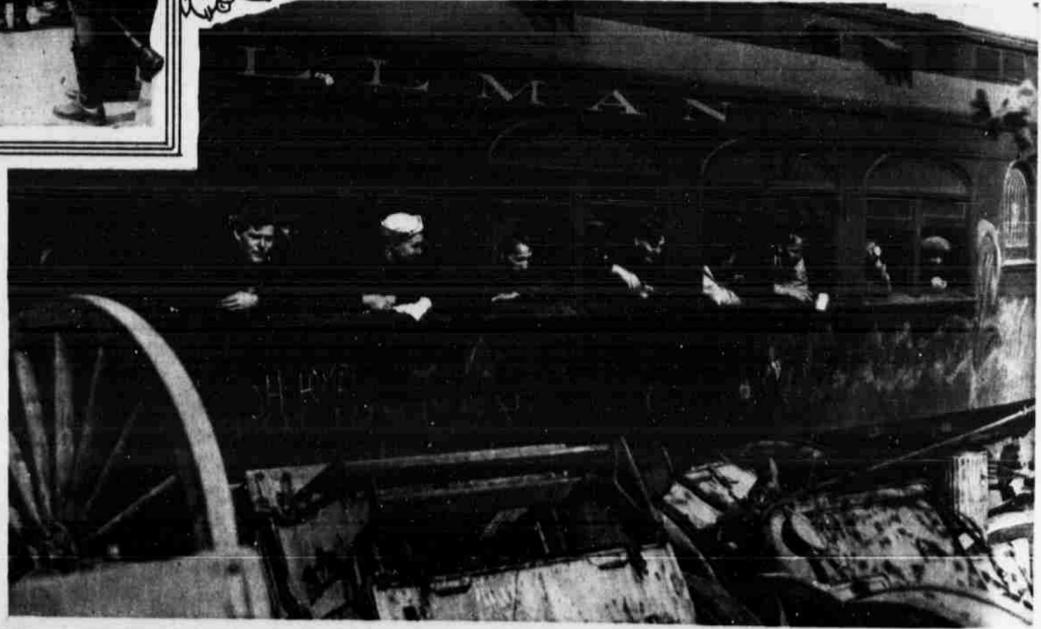

Above — American soldiers lined up at City Hall to receive decorations awarded by the French, Belgian, Italian and American Governments for distinguished service.

Photo by Six Staff Photographer.

At Left — Mrs. Jennie Freibert and Mrs. Mary T. Lynch, who received and are wearing crosses won by their sons, who were killed in battle.

Photo by Six Staff Photographer.

This seems the irony of fate. Here is one of many carloads of German prisoners from the internment camps arriving at Hoboken to be deported. This particular car has stopped right opposite a mass of German war material captured by the Americans and which will be preserved in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood