Whatever good an umbrella performs, it is "put up" to the credit of the inventor. It is the Ham-burg.

The Australian dog and the shepherd dog of Egypt never bark.

"I hope I see you again," as the husband said when he touched the water. A Bostonian who has chased his hat on a windy day in thirteen different languages.

A married man sometimes finds himself to be an April fool soon after the wedding. Lawyers are never more earnest than when they work with a will—that is, if the estate is valuable.

The new professor of physics and astronomy at the University is only twenty-one years old.

Country editors would like to have Congress pass a "repeal of subscription bill."

The man who unexpectedly set down in some warm glee thinks there is more than one way of getting madly.

The eloquence of some orators inspires a Chicago paper to wish that mankind were endowed with curls as well as eyes.

The Minnesota millers use horsehoes to make up the charge of a woman. "I always do. I make him sift ashes and pick the clinders."

The St. Petersburg paper makes the largest circulation of any paper in the world. It is called "The Herald."

The Duke of Sutherland, in England, owns 1,808,425 acres of the waste lands of the county of Aberdeenshire.

Yung man, if you expect to succeed in this world, you have got to trundle your own wheelbarrow.

It makes a young man feel very much as if he were a pig when he is asked to go to a young woman's house.

Time may obliterate the holes and make them mansions; it may make poor men millionaires; but it can never take away the sting of a young man's love.

When I was in school yesterday, I whistled before I thought, and got kicked for it.

A new preacher used the word "optical" in the sermon, and, at the conclusion of the service, a farmer who was present thanked him for his discourse.

"What you call that?" said the judge. "That was a fine sermon, but it was a little long."

"I want to give two or three rules. One is: Always look at the person you speak to. When you are addressed, look at the person who speaks to you. Do not forget this."

"Another is: Speak your words plainly. Do not be too verbose. If words are worth saying, they are worth pronouncing distinctly and clearly."

"Do not say disagreeable things. If you have nothing pleasant to say, keep your mouth shut."

"Have you something to do that you find hard and would prefer not to do? Then let me do it for you."

"Do not be afraid of the dark. I have been in the dark many times, and I have never been hurt. Do the thing you don't like to do first, and then, with a clear conscience, try the rest."

A German physician has started a new theory with regard to food. He maintains that the best food is that which is most natural and most abundant.

Mr. William C. Underwood, the brave pilot of the steamer A. C. Donnelly, is reported to have been killed in a collision with the steamer A. C. Donnelly.

The Cincinnati Gazette sends the following story of a law case from Floyd county, Ind. "A man named John Smith had a cow named 'Old Boy' which was worth $1,000."

"Please draw upon the blackboard an interrogation point," said a teacher to one of her pupils. "I can't do it, sir."

"Draw a boot button!" said the teacher; "that will answer." The boy took the crayon and drew a boot button.

One morning a school-teacher on an English sloop was hopping about at Portsmouth, N. H., indignantly picking up his breakfast. "I have a desire to see a few down from a limb above, clipped the first sparrow in his claws, flew up into the air, and then flew down, placed on a limb, and then flew away, being quickly followed by the rest."

Nothing appeared to be the matter with the bird, but the teacher was puzzled. "I have a desire to see a few down from a limb above, clipped the first sparrow in his claws, flew up into the air, and then flew down, placed on a limb, and then flew away, being quickly followed by the rest."

TERMS: $2.00 a Year, in Advance.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

My Valentine.

Oh, baby, with the rosy laugh, And dimpled cheeks and brown mouth, And eyes that sparkle like the stars,

For something sweet to tell you, dear, In letters, baby mine!

I love you, love you! Will you be My little Valentine?

The Valentine Festival.

I once saw a picture by the famous Mr. Cruikshank, of a young postman, or rather boy, on a galloping donkey, harrying along with his bags filled with valentines, and his quiver full of arrows, and a bow in his hand.

Underneath the picture were these lines: "Where can the postman be, I say? Of all days in the year, you know, It is the day when the valentines are sent."

The Valentine Festival.

In the city of London, two hundred thousand letters, more than the usual number pass through the postoffice on St. Valentine's day.

It is not a new thing, but one of the oldest customs of the world, to send valentines to the people who are dear to us.

THE REMOULSLE BARBER.

A Tale of Love and Agony with Several Cures.

The will unobtainable passion a barber has for trimming your hair I was in Boston, thinking about a lecture I was expected to deliver in the evening, and so badly scared that I could not remember the subject, nor what I was to say.

The latest dodge of the Western sharpers is to sell farmers a new kind of cat at $10 a bushel, and contracting to take all the farmer raises next year at $7.50 a bushel. They get a farmer's note, sell it, and skip out.

Two miners of Humboldt Wells, Nev., being drunk and jovial, went to the cabin of a wood-chopper to have some fun with him. He was a silly fellow, and the common lout of the neighborhood.

The forthcoming annual meeting of the English Rural Agricultural Society, to be held in London in July next, is to take the form of an international agricultural exhibition.

On the numerous bookstands which line the narrow, crowded thoroughfares of Canton, China, the most conspicuous of the booksellers is a man who is wrapped in a bright yellow paper cover and entitled "The Vulgar Tongue of the 18th-Century Barbarians."

FARM, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD.

Salt for Trees and Vegetables.

"J. D." writes from Kaukaua, Ill., to the Chicago Times: "I will give you a sketch of my experiment in using salt on the orchard and garden. Young fruit trees can be made to grow and do well in places where old trees have died, by sowing a pint of salt on the earth where they are to stand.

"By the way, I met the widow this morning riding with John Vance, re-happily Mr. Torrey, casually. 'Remember him, the last year next to Charles? He's just come from California, with his pockets full.'"
