TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 13, 1880.

A BIRD'S MINISTRY. From his home in an Eastern bungalow, in sight of the everlasting snow of the grand Himalayas, row on row.

Thus wrote my friend: "I had traveled far From the Arabian towers of Candahar, Through the sand-white plains of Sindh-Sagar;

"And once, when the daily march was o'er, As tired I sat in my tented door, Hope faded me, as never it failed before.

"In swarming city, at wayside fane, By the Indus' bank, on the scorching plain, I had taught—and my teaching all seemed vain.

"No glimmer of light (I stghed) appears; The Moslem's Fate and the Buddhist's tears Have gloomed their worship this thousand years.

"For Christ and his truth I stand alone In the midst of millions: a sand-grain blown Against yon temple of ancient stone

"As soon may level it? Faith forsok My soul, as I turned on the pile to look; Then, rising, my sudden way I took

"To its lofty roof, for the cooler air; I gazed, and marvel'd—how errand I were The walls I had doctored so firm and fair?

"For, wedged in a rift of the massive stone, Most plainly reat by its roof and eave, A beautiful peep-hole had grown:

"Whose gradual stress would still expand The crevice, and topple upon the sand The temple, while o'er its wreck should stand

"The tree in its living verdure—Who could compass the thought—the bird that flew Hitherward, dropping a seed that grew.

"Did more to shiver this ancient wall Than earthquake,—war,—sneeze,—or all The centuries, in their lapse and fall?

"Then I knelt by the risen granite there, And my soul shook off its weight of care, As my voice rose clear on the tropic air:

"The living seeds I have dropped remain In the crevice; look, quicken with dew and rain, Then temple and mosque shall be reborn in vain!"

—Margaret J. Preston.

A New Story.

An anecdote of George Sand which has never before been in print, but which was told me by one of the best of my memory. It was at Nohant, and in the early spring, when the evenings are just smiling into twilight, Liszt and Chopin, among many other celebrities, were guests at the hospitable house of the author of "Naxos"; and it was the custom after dinner for anyone to listen for a few minutes to some inspiration of Liszt and Chopin played in the dark. One morning a discussion arose between the two giants as to which was the greater. Liszt made a grand claim to immortality with great eloquence after he had done Chopin simply remarked, "Of course, you are a great man, but I am still greater than you, for I can imitate your finest inspirations perfectly, whereas Liszt can only imitate me." Liszt openly avowed that he could not imitate the great "Frederic," but at the same time offered to bet that he himself could not be imitated as his current of thought changed from day to day, and he expressed himself on the piano according to the inspiration of the moment. Chopin took the bet, nobody being present but the two great men and my friend. The following evening after dinner, everyone, as was the custom, sat in silence in the music room waiting for one of the two great musicians to play. Suddenly a grand theme began, brilliant but pathetic; passion in the bass, and a fervent response in the treble; and then a grand dominant that stilled and overtook all, followed by a glorious flight of melody that seemed to ask for pardon, and then die away in regret. "Bravo Liszt!" everyone cried; "how you give yourself in your music! That is one of your finest inspirations! Who has imitated it?" Poor Liszt came trembling up to George Sand, and said, "Madame, it is not I; it is Chopin playing! He must be a god!" If these lines meet the eyes of the Albe Liszt, he will endorse every word of this anecdote, which is interesting and valuable, as showing the wide gulf that separates talent no matter of what high order, from pure genius. —Whitcomb Review.

An Illinois woman has named her baby "Pintore." Probably because she never—What? Well, compared with the name of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which is the only remedy that has such wonderful cures for whooping cough, croup, colds, sore throats, wounds, sores, burns, &c. For sale by H. B. Cochran, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.

A Great Discovery by a Great Man. This, primarily, is what Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is. The great man is one of the most famous living physicians. He found a harmless remedy for all kinds of kidney and liver ailments, and the final result is the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, now manufactured only by H. B. Warner & Co.

Jahesh Snow, Channing Cove, N. S., writes: "I was completely prostrated with the Asthma, but hearing of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, I procured a bottle, and it did me so much good that I got another, and before it was used I was cured of a bad cold, and the use of a single bottle, gave me like relief, and makes every cure wherever it is used." For sale by H. B. Cochran, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.
