FARMER AND GARDENER.

A Hint Worth Remembering.

German-town Telegraph.

It is well to bear in mind that grains, grasses, fruit trees, vines, &c., which usually flourish well in higher latitudes than our own, are always sure to do well with us. One thing is certain—they will grow perfectly hardy; and the reverse is generally the case when we attempt to adopt Southern products. What may grow and flourish and prove profitable as far south as North Carolina may be extremely uncertain here. The South, therefore, has a wider field of supply and recuperation than we have even here in a middle state, but we have the advantage that if a grain, plant or vine is once established here, it becomes far more permanent, and we may add, more reliable. In the extreme North—Canada for instance—the number and variety of farm and garden products are limited to a very few, comparatively, but they are more dependable than any larger and more extended catalogue. In their cultivation, too, much skill and success is shown from published statements, as well as from personal ones furnished by travelers. But the question may be asked, is it not more advisable to confine ourselves to fewer products that are common here and sure to do well, and cultivate them with more assiduity and care, than to divide and weaken our efforts among so many? We are opposed to specialities, to which many farmers in different sections adhere, and have always been in favor of a mixed husbandry; but we should make our own selection from the general catalogue for which our farms may be more particularly adapted.

Trapping Muskrats.

Early spring, that is, as soon as the frost is out of the ground—these destructive and active animals begin their operations and play havoc with the roots of the grass, winter spinach beds, lettuce plants, &c., and this is about the best time to begin trapping them. We noticed various modes recommended in agricultural magazines, but they possess very little merit. As we have a small fish pond, and of course a small stream of water to supply it, we are naturally more or less pestered with muskrats, and sometimes they have done a great deal of mischief. We have tried various modes of trapping them, but found nothing to compare with the common unbaited steel trap. If there is a springlet or run it will be noticed that the muskrat will always, if shallow enough, use that to the last inch of its feeding ground. If the trap is laid on the bottom in this, with no bait, fastening the trap with a piece of wire to stake pushed in the ground, the arrangement is complete and a certain thing. We captured one season eight in our garden in this way. After the seventh, there was only a portion of a foreleg in the trap, but the next morning we found a fellow with only three legs. The following season we got two more, and after that they did not make their appearance for several years. And when they did the same plan was renewed. Whenever the trap was set it was always placed under water. But sometimes they pass from a pond or stream directly into the bank under the water. If so, mark the direction of the holes and dig a trench from seven to nine feet from the entrance, and it is almost certain to catch them. The depth at which their nests are made from the surface of the ground is from eighteen inches to two feet. We have captured altogether about twenty.

A Reminiscence of the Senate.

Correspondence Courier-Journal. Early in the year 1855, an amusing colloquy took place in the Senate between Henry Clay and James Buchanan. The latter, when some matter belonged to the Federal party, he was defending himself against the charge of disloyalty during the war of 1812. To prove his loyalty, he stated that he entered a company of volunteers at the time the British attacked Baltimore, and at the time of the battle of North Point, and marched to Baltimore. "True," he said, "he was not in any engagement, as the British had retreated before he had got there." Mr. Clay—"You marched to Baltimore, though?" Mr. Buchanan—"Yes, Mr. Clay—"Will the senator from Pennsylvania be good enough to inform us whether the British retreated in consequence of his valiantly marching to the relief of Baltimore, or whether he marched to the relief of Baltimore in consequence of the British having already retreated." This colloquy, with its unlooked for ending, was greatly enjoyed by the Senate and galleries, and put both in excellent humor.

A Baptist Minister's Experience.

I am a Baptist Minister, and before I even thought of being a clergyman, I graduated in medicine, but left a lucrative practice for my present profession, 40 years ago. I was for many years a sufferer from "Thomas' Electric Oil" and "Thomas' Electric Oil" relieved me. My wife and child had diphtheria, and "Thomas' Electric Oil" cured them, and it taken in time it will cure seven out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinate cold or cough, and if you will take a small teaspoon and mix it with the Oil, and then drop the contents of the spoon into the mouth and draw the Oil out of the spoon into the head by drawing as hard as they can, until the Oil falls over into the throat, and practice that twice a week, I don't care how out and cure their colds. For "Thomas' Electric Oil" has done wonders for my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine I believe me like Thomas' Electric Oil. For sale by H. B. Cochran, druggist, 157 and 159 North Queen St.
