

For the Sentinel.

Alone I stood upon a rocky rock.
That overhangs Missouri's turbid wave.
The sun's red beams had long gone down, and
The night had fallen.
Had called her mystic wheels, and silence deep,
And untuned, dwell amid the gloom,
Saw when the owl sent forth his dismal cry
Upon the wind, or when the hungry wolf
Winged his way with the ascending surge,
Which dashed beneath my feet. Loosely I watched
The train that wandered o'er the vaulted blue,
And then I thought how oft upon that rock,
Unseen by Man, the daring Eagle struck.
Relentless fangs, deep in the throbbing heart,
Of bleeding victim. I thought how often there
The tempt dark had beat, and yet no eye
Had seen its ravages. As I looked among
The cliffs, where misty shadows glide, I saw
From out their graves the phantom forms of years
Gone by, start up a wildy gaze; and then
They called no stranger. In these solemn depths,
With midnight on my brow, I looked around,
Immemorable and dark, on either side
From the deep brown woods. But I saw not
The home of civilized man. 'Twas not there:
The impetuous sovereign of the woods,
Had then no need of shelter from the glance
Of Obedience. On the Red Man ruled, nor thought
When Death should bid him lay his arrows by,
The pale-faced of woods build his shadowy tomb.
As I thought of things past, and things to come,
There came a change, a most stupendous change.
The mighty oaks, which centaurial storms
Had hewn full rounded, put out their leaves no more.
But sudden fell before the woodman's ax.
The costly fabric, as by magic, rose
From chaos, and the rural mansion stood
When pathers long had dwelt. The distant loo
Of massive horns came from a thousand hills,
And on the grassy lawn gambled the lamb
In sportive merriment. Golden grain waved,
And Commerce-replenished her untiring wings,
And o'er the bosom of sunny lakes,
Of rivers deep, and broad, and gulfed
Unknown, she winged her way. And then I heard
The sound of music, and its strains awake
The dreamful visions of ecstatic joys.
And made me think of seraphic homes, above
The wonders of earth. In silent awe,
I looked upon that lovely realm, and saw
New wonders still.

Tailoring

Who but a tailor could have written this letter from the army?
"Our brave general having fitted up his camp, converted it into a tailor shop on the Rio Grande, and received his customers on the 5th of May, when he took his measures, cut, spangled and basted, all his valiant hands working with might and skill. On the 9th he set his boys to trimming. They were great rate workmen, fulfilling orders promptly; for in two days our tailor shop turned off 5000 Mexicans, all well dressed, no doubt better than they ever were. With one exception only, Gen. Vega, whom it took all May to dress. The Mexicans anxious to display their suits, never asked the price. But great was their surprise when our boss sent over his account. His prices were so high they left in confusion, and since the 9th of May our shop's been without a customer. A solemn warning this, to all tailors in the land not to charge so thundering high when having work on hand.

Sublime.

It was night. A thick murky gloom obscured the moon. The wind in frightful gusts howled desolately through the forest's leafless branches—most fitting night for deeds of horror. Awfully sounded the village clock—told the hour of one. At this watching time of night a wild murderous looking wretch stole forth from the woods. His beard was long and rough, his hair uncombed and matted. Savagely gleamed his bloodshot eyes, as he cautiously approached the spot where his unconscious victim slumbered in peaceful innocence. The murderer smiled as he listened to his breathing. He raised the axe; with one blow it deeply descended into the skull of the sleeper; forth spilled the blood—THE HOG WAS DEAD!

There—Tears are sometimes a relief, and sometimes a burden; they are a relief to a woman, but a burden to a man; they relieve a woman, because her sympathy approves them; they burden a man, because his pride rebukes them; a woman weeps because she feels, a man because he can't feel; a woman's tears affect a man, but a man's tears disaffect a woman; a woman weeps for others, a man for himself; a woman's tears are common property, a man's are his own; a woman believes them a profitable investment, a man considers them an needless expenditure; a woman's tears are easy and natural, a man's are forced and awkward; woman's are the warm streams of the summer cloud, man's the gold dropping of the icicle.

NIAGARA FALLS RHYME.—Among poetry of all sorts on the piazza of the Cataract House at Niagara, is the following take off:

"I wish I was a little fish,
And had a little fin,
I'd go up to Niagara,
And there I would jump in
I'd see the mighty foam,
I'd hear the mighty roar,
And be a mighty fish,
For ever ever more."

"I say, mister, what's better to day?"
"Why better, certainly."
"Well, I'm darn'd glad of it, the last pound I bought from you was more than half-tallow."

An Irish American thus defined his position in regard to the Oregon question:
"I go intirely up to five thousand four hundred and forty-six degrees, and divil a fut'her!"

DISSOLUTION.

The late firm of STAPLES, CLARKE & PRENTISS was dissolved on the 10th inst., by the withdrawal of Mr. Staples. The undersigned will continue the business at the same stand, (No. 13 East Front St.) under the name of

CLARKE & PRENTISS.

We continue to devote our most careful attention to consignments of BUTTER and cheese, and we can assure our friends on the Western Reserve that we shall not be excelled by any house in the trade, in the care which we take of cheese while in store—in making quick sales at the highest market prices, and in the promptness and safety of our returns of sales.

We tender our acknowledgments to our customers for the very liberal patronage the house has hitherto received, and we solicit further consignments of any description of produce or manufactured articles for sale; as well as orders for Sugar, Molasses, and any other goods to be obtained in this market; with the assurance that we shall continue to do a STRICTLY COMMISSION BUSINESS.

Great Commotion in "Tinnicum."

Ten thousand Volunteers Wanted with Pockets full of Cash.

GILLET & CO.

ARE now receiving a larger stock of New Goods than they have heretofore brought to this Market. They were selected with much care and for style and quality are not to be beat in "Tinnicum." They would say to one and all upon "the honor of a merchant" (we mean our honor and not our neighbors) that our stock throughout will average lower than any which has been sold at any time. (Not even excepting any time during the reign of the Persian King.) Eighteen months experience has convinced ourselves and we trust it has others that small profits and ready pay is the true policy, for by applying the common rules of Arithmetic you will find that in the short space of a year and a half, not less than FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS has been saved by those who purchase Goods in this place. An enormous Tax, which amount, if the people were compelled to pay in any other way would produce a revolution in Portage County that would require more volunteers to quell than to conquer the whole of Mexico. We take this opportunity of making a "low bid" and thanking the community at large for their liberal patronage thus far. And if you will favor us with a call we will spare no pains to plan and let you go away with a large amount of Goods for a small amount of money. We shall purchase Wool and most kinds of Produce at the highest market price for which we shall pay cash and Goods.

Ravenna, May 16, 1846.

ARRIVED AT LAST.

CYRUS PRENTISS

HAS now received his Glassware, Crockery, Groceries, Paints & Dye-Stuffs which makes his assortment full and complete, embracing a greater variety than any other stock in this village, and will be sold as he has uniformly sold his Goods during his entire residence (Twenty four years) at lower prices for the general Stock than any other concern in this Village and will continue to do so so long as he continues in Business notwithstanding the wind and Gales that may be emanated from new or old concerns. He would simply say that he has been selling Brown Sheetings at 6 1/2, 7 and 8 cents. Sole Leather, a prime article, at 16 cts, and heavy at 15 cts. Alpaccas at 2 shillings. Muslin Delains at 20 cts, and is now selling Muslin at 15 shillings. But he has not thought them cheap enough to receive a special notice.

The highest market price will be paid for all kinds of Produce as usual.
