We never can have a peace until we in some way dispose of the institution. He expressed the opinion that, in less than five years, Kentucky, too, will be a free State, and will abolish slavery without nnensation.

Mr. Rollins was loudly applauded at the onclusion of his remarks, which extended over two hours.

Mr. Garfield alluded to the progress of emancipation. The Post's Washington speciat says the vote on the anti-slavery constitutional amendment bill will be postponed. If it were taken now it would probably fail to sccure the required majority, but the people in all parts of the country are moving in

Mr. Riddle offered a resolution instruct ing the Secretary of War to report to the Senate the number of men furnished by the loyal States under the call of the President, in July last, for 500,000 men. Mr. Riddle said the information called for is very anxiously looked for by thousands of citizens in all the loyal States, and more particularly by the citizens of those States which border upon the States in rebellian, and which have responded to every draft made upon their people. By the procla-mation of the President, made the 19th of December last, it appears that but 240,-000 of the 500,000 called for were obtained, leaving a deficiency of $25,000. In consequence of this a draft of $30,000 has been ordered by the President. I think the Senate will gladly give the Secretary of War the opportunity to give the information to that officer, for it is called for in the kindest spirit, and I think he will cheerfully respond to it.

The resolution ought to be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. This was agreed to and the resolution referred. On motion of Mr. Sherman, the Consular Appropriation Bill was taken up.

Mr. Wade moved to amend, by insorting before the word "America," the words "The Republic of." Carried.

Mr. Harlan called up the resolution is egard to the officers and soldiers of Col. Chivington's command, suspending their pay and emcluments until an investigation of their conduct toward certain Indian Tribes takes place. Mr. Pomeroy hoped that the Committee on Indian Affairs had investigated this subject. He did not like to give a decision until he had heard both sides. He did not like to hold subordinates resposible for obeying orders. He was opposed to hasty action. If Colonel Chivington had done wrong heought to be punished, but private soldiers ought not to be held responsible for the orders of their superiors.

Mr. Harlan said that the resolution only proposed a suspension of pay until the facts were investigated. The soldiers who took part in this transaction were hundred days men. He believed they were organized with a distinct understanding that they were to engage in this raid, and they returned to camp loaded with plunder, consisting of ponies, bullalo robes and Mariean dollars.

In the meantime, the weather be-came bad, and the surf was rolling so that a landing became difficult.

Gen. Weitzel reported to Gen. Butler that to assault the work, in his judgment and that of experienced officers of his com-mand, was impossible with any prospect of success. This opinion coincided with Gen.
Butler's, but much as he regretted the accessity of abandoning the attempt, yet he considered his duty plain. Not so strong works as Fort Fisher had been taken by assault during the war, and he referred to the slaughtered thousands in the assault ed that no attack should be made and that the troops should re-embark. While the Home Guard to protect that town against preparations to re-embark were being made, the firing of the navy cassed, the guns of the fort were fully manned and a Home Guard against Davis' gang. sharp fire of musketry, grape and cannis The Gold market was affected early in the day by peace rumors, but has since recovered.

Sump into the missery, graps and community the plain over which the column must have advanced. It was found impossible to get the troops all aboard before the sea ran so high as to render further embarkation, or even sending of supplies ashere, impossible.
On the 26th, having made all proper disposition for getting the troops on board, General Butler gave orders to the trans-port fleet, as first as ready, to sail for Fortress Mouroe, in obedience to orders from the Lieutenant General.

Gen. Butler states that he learned from descriers and prisoners that the supposition when the expedition was planned that Wilmington was destitute of troops was correct, and that at the time of the arrival of the army off Wilmington there was less than 400 in Fort Fisher, and less than 5,000 within twenty miles. But the delay of three days, waiting the arrival of the navy, and the further delay caused by the storm of the 21st, 22d and 23d, gave time for minforcements to be brought from for reinforcements to be brought from The instructions of the Lieutenant General did not contemplate siege, had neither siege trains nor supplies for such contingency. Gen. Butler here says The exigency of possible delay, for which the forefaight of the commanders of to withdraw to winter quarters.

The rebels made but little progress in relaying the track torn up by Warren's expedition.
