

The Ashland Union.

W. H. LANDIS, Editor.
Ashland, March 14, 1896.

AGAINST THE PRESIDENT.

The Cleveland Leader (disunion) has been at considerable pains to ascertain the position of the various Union journals of the State in reference to the issue recently made between Congress and the President by the veto message, and has kept a classified list of those of "them which it has had an opportunity to observe," and finds "that an overwhelming majority of them declare in unequivocal tones in support of the position of Congress and in many opposition to the President's policy." It says "Of the sixty-three Union papers whose opinions it has noted, 'forty-four, or more than two-thirds, speak out in radical and indignant protestations against the President's course, and in unequivocal support of Congress'."

It classes, and justly, too, the Ashland Times with the papers which "speak out in radical and indignant protestations against the President."

How, then, would ask, can the editor of the Bump organ down street, reconcile his present position with that occupied by him during the Administration of LINCOLN, when he claimed that it was disloyal to oppose "the Government," and denounced those who did not sustain LINCOLN in all his doings, acts, as "traitors?" Now is it to-day? The editor of the Times radically and indignantly opposes President JOHNSON in his efforts to restore the Union. Is he a traitor? Is he not convicted out of his own mouth?

Mr. Times, you must either acknowledge that you lied when you said that it was "treason to oppose the President," or else stand branded as a traitor now. Which horn of the dilemma will you take?

SPRING ELECTIONS.

The time is near at hand when the Democracy in each township should select their ticket for the various offices to be filled at this election. Now is the time to work. Nominate good men and see to it that a full vote is polled. Delays and inaction may bring defeat, whereby a little effort, victory would be easy. To our friends we say, be up and doing, and by your action strengthen the hands of the President, who has now a death grasp on Abolition-disunionism. Democrats, be active, be vigilant.

ANOTHER PIONEER GONE.—At his residence near Ashland, on the 6th inst., died Mr. JOSEPH SHEETS, after a lingering illness of several months, aged 74 years.

Mr. SHEETS was born in New Jersey, January 21, 1792. When about 18 years of age, his father's family moved West and settled near Salem in Columbiana county in this State. Mr. Sheets there learned the trade of tailor, and worked some time in Baltimore, Maryland, and subsequently married and settled in Steubenville, Ohio, where he remained till the fall of 1817 when he removed to "Uniontown," now Ashland, and located in a small cabin nearly on the spot where the brick building now occupied by Drs. Clark and McDowell is situated. During the spring following, he built and moved into the house now occupied by Jacob Barnhart. He subsequently built the residence now owned by J. & G. Miller, and was proprietor of the farm upon which South Ashland is laid out. When he and his lady landed in Ashland, there were but three houses in it, owned respectively by William Montgomery (the original proprietor of the town), David Markley and John Croft. Mr. Sheets had the satisfaction of being to see the small village of "Uniontown," composed of four families, including his own, expand by emigration, into hundreds of families; and from a population of ten or fifteen, to over two thousand inhabitants. Not one of the original settlers of the town remain in this section of the country. Messrs. Graham, Skilling and Swineford, of a later period, still survive to remind us of the days of the pioneers. The tract of land on which South Ashland is located was then an unbroken forest; and Main street was filled with stumps, left from trees recently felled, to make a wagon path. Such, from small beginnings, has been the onward and upward advance of Ashland in the last forty-nine years. The last of the original four has fallen, and returned to mother earth; like the giant oak of the forest, that fell beneath the axe wielded by his once sturdy arm. Mr. Sheets was a citizen, was always distinguished for his uprightness, his integrity and his Christian bearing towards his fellow-men. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church over forty years, and his whole life was such, as to command the respect and admiration of all who knew him. He was a man of no pretensions, and was much to be commended for his simple and unassuming life. He was a man of no pretensions, and was much to be commended for his simple and unassuming life.

Prof. Sample is a fine scholar, a poet, and a gentleman who will give a moral lustre to the society in which he moves. With such a man to direct the intellectual growth of a rising village, like Perryville, a temperance Division of 300 strong, all unitedly working together, it needs not a man of more than ordinary ability to see that of all places, this one is best calculated for the young student both morally and intellectually.

Perryville is situated on the R. R., in the most picturesque portion of Ashland County. Within an hour's walk are to be found hills wild enough to make one shudder while gazing upon their dark crags, crowned with unfading verdure; mountains whose very songs are poetry; streams clear and sparkling and winding gracefully along; and rocks whose wild confusion suggests the momentous time when "rocks and mountains were tent in twain."

NOT SATISFIED.—An old negro woman in the Richmond, Va., market, was interrupted the other morning in the sale of some articles she exposed contrary to the market ordinance, when, highly indignantly stowing away her stock, she said: "Wish Mass Lincoln had done keep his freedom. It's like a Confederation money—more you get on it, the less 'count it is."

COUNTY NEWS.

DWELLING BURNED.—The dwelling house of Mr. Robert Darling, two miles from Perryville, was burned to the ground, on the night of the 7th inst. It is not known how the fire originated. It was not found out till the roof of an old building adjoining the brick dwelling in which the family resided, fell in. The crash awoke the hired girl who gave the alarm. They had barely time to save themselves and their beautiful little children, when the roof and floors gave way, a blazing mass of flames. Mr. Darling, building a splendid house the coming summer, and the loss is not so severe as though the accident had happened at a later period. The Darling brothers, five in number, are all wealthy men, liberal to a fault, our best citizens, and we sympathize with them in the loss of the old homestead dwelling that stood in trees and shrubbery—"a thing of beauty"—the very idea of what the "old, old home"—in the country, should be in the memory of every person who loves to treasure and look back upon the pleasant scenes of childhood.

GIRLS, BEWARE.—A scamp, from North Carolina, of fine personal appearance and genteel demeanor, by the name of Morgan, after a few months' acquaintance in the family of one of our best citizens of Greene township, married one of the daughters, an artless girl who was young in years, and a stranger to the wiles and snares that lie in wait for the feet of the unwary. A few weeks after the marriage, a letter came to Perryville, announcing the fact of his having a wife and two children. Mr. Morgan heard of the letter, and forthwith he was among the missing. A brother of the girl set out with the determination of killing him if he could find him.

After a thorough search he was found. The brother stepped up to him, and told him in a few words of his baseness to wards the family who had so kindly befriended and trusted him.

The words touched a tender place in Morgan's heart, and he burst into tears. Joe felt his own lip quiver, and with a generosity, above that ordinarily allotted to mankind, he told him to go, unharmed, and make the best he could of his poor broken, sinless life.—and left him.

How much more manly this was than to have brutally struck him down, or shot him like a dog?

It is beautiful to look upon—to see a strikingsoul rise above the petty meanness and insignificance of revenge, and put the livery of the true nobility of manhood—and stand up, feeling within the heart, the spark of divinity which poets accord to every human being.

PERRYVILLE HIGH SCHOOL.—Prof. Sample's winter term of the Perryville High Sch. will close in a few days. The summer term will commence about the 1st of April, and continue three months. This school is in a prosperous condition; and parents are delighted with the progress their sons and daughters have made. Every studious boy or girl who has attended this term, and given undivided attention to his instructions, have learned as much in the four months as we used to learn in four years. This is a fact, and we speak what we do know. We hope to see the High School become a permanent institution in our pleasant little village. There is no thing that builds up, and strengthens, and gives healthy and beautiful life to a community, like a good school. It is like a bracing tonic to a feeble constitution.

Prof. Sample is a fine scholar, a poet, and a gentleman who will give a moral lustre to the society in which he moves. With such a man to direct the intellectual growth of a rising village, like Perryville, a temperance Division of 300 strong, all unitedly working together, it needs not a man of more than ordinary ability to see that of all places, this one is best calculated for the young student both morally and intellectually.

A Happy Application of one of Lincoln's Little Stories.

The New York Tribune having accused President Johnson with being drunk when making his 22d of February speech, it reminds the Journal of Commerce of a little story which that paper, or some other of that sort, told us a year or two ago, relating to the late President. It was stated that a Radical Congressional committee or delegation waited on Mr. Lincoln and urged the removal of General Grant from the command in chief assigning as a reason that he was in the habit of drinking whiskey.

"Ah," said Mr. Lincoln, "and do you know where he gets his whiskey, gentlemen?"

"No, we do not."

"I'm sorry for that," was the President's reply, "for if you could tell me I would send a barrel of the same whiskey to every general in the army."

Personal.

In the midst of the painful excitement that broke upon the country when the telegraph announced the passing of Andrew Johnson, it was a great relief to William Dennison yet lived and was about. That he started, with Seward to New York, and like the Podsnap and Veneerings "went about" and did something, the telegraph informed us, and we felt better. That William Dennison has his views, we have no question. We never had heard them. Still we have faith. We believe the views are on hand and can be had, when one goes about it properly. We have heard William Dennison discourse by the hour, but we never got a view out of him.

While we have faith in the fact that William has his views, we will hazard the opinion that he has no convictions.—We believe that he will break out in convictions, they would strike to and kill him. A conviction presupposes a brain to comprehend, a heart to appreciate. William, made in one of nature's severest fits of economy, has neither one nor the other.

It was a relief to a startled and pained community, to learn that William Dennison had gone to New York. Fears were generally entertained that he had gone to the devil. We should feel grieved beyond measure if William should miss the city and fetch up with the last above mentioned. What could we do without our Dennison? We put it to a discriminating public—what? And then how terrible it would be for the devil.—Mac-a-Check Press, (Rad.)

Persons who are opposed to the policy of the President in restoring the Union, quote often and unctiously the speech made in Nashville in which he promised to be the Moses of the negroes of the South, if they could not find a better leader. Perhaps some of them will favor us by making known wherein the inconsistency which they assume to exist in the President's course is shown. Have not the negroes passed through the Red Sea of war to freedom? Is it true they have not got out of the wilderness; and that is the very situation in which Moses left his followers. When and where did Moses confer upon the children of Israel the right of suffrage?—Where the Moesic laws submitted to those over whom they were established for their approval or disapproval by ballot? If the right to vote is to the negroes of to-day the equivalent to the entrance of the Jews upon the promised land, remember that the latter wandered forty years before they were found worthy the fulfillment of the promise.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Sam. Bowles, one of the editors of the Springfield, Mass., Republican (Rep.) writes from Washington that Congress is like the boy out on a rough sea in an open boat: "Can you pray, Jim?" "No." "Can you sing a hymn?" "No." "Can't you, then, repeat a verse of the Bible?" "Not a bit of it." "Well," with a sigh, "something has got to be done d—d quick."

One of our Republican contemporaries is inclined to be jolly over the misfortunes of his party. It says: "Secretary Seward announces that every thing will be right 'in ninety days.' As the world says: 'Every thing is lovely, And the goose hangs high.'"

Another Swindle.

The Ohio Legislature, not content with taxing men $4 each to keep up the "feather-bed militia," now proposes to tax each man's dog $5. So the farmer who keeps a faithful dog to guard his granary against midnight visits from honest men must be taxed five dollars for his dog.—Holmes Co. Farmer.

The Disunion Radicals not only abuse President Johnson, but are pitching into Governor Cox, Postmaster General Dennison, and every other Republican who stands by him. Witness the following beautiful specimen of Abolition decency:

IMPORTANT IF TRUE.—It is stated in one of our Southern exchanges, that Artemus Ward recently delivered one of his lectures in New Orleans, for the benefit of Mrs. Jefferson Davis. The receipts are said to have amounted to $2,000, over and above all expenses. It is feared that Artemus is over muchly given to gallantry.

Butler the Beast addressed a party of veterans in Washington a few days since as "fellow soldiers." Follow soldiers! He would do better to go to State Prison and address the inmates as fellow thieves, were it not for insulting thieves.—The Washington Post.

Mr. Murdoch's Readings.

The Mansfield Herald, in noticing Mr. Murdoch's readings in that place, a few weeks ago, says:

Sturges Hall was filled on last Thursday evening, on the occasion of Mr. Murdoch's Dramatic Readings before the Library Association. The distinguished reader fully came up to the most sanguine expectations. He commenced the evening's entertainment, by reading the celebrated "Trial Scene," from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," and scenes from "Hamlet," in which Mr. Murdoch displayed his ability as an actor to a marked degree. These were followed by the reading of several poems, including "Drifting," a beautiful poem by T. Buchanan Road, "The One-Horse Shay," by Oliver Wendell Holmes, "Roger and I," J. T. Townbridge; "Sheridan's Ride," and others, which were all received with unbounded applause. Mr. Murdoch concluded by reading a chapter from "Pickwick Papers," in which the amiable, but unfortunate Mr. Pickwick makes a mistake, and goes into the same bed room with the lady with the "yellow curl papers." The manner in which this was read by Mr. Murdoch called forth the greatest laughter.

We learn that our Library Association are making arrangements to secure Mr. Murdoch for one more evening. We hope they will do so, for he would draw a crowded house, and many who were not fortunate enough to be present on last Thursday evening, will then have an opportunity of listening to him.

IS YOUR LIFE INSURED?

Have you a family, or have you any one near and dear to you, dependent upon you for support?

Are you willing to neglect a present opportunity of placing them beyond the possibility of suffering want, in the event of your death?

Are not the admonitions of the great uncertainty of life frequent and impressive?—Should you, in view of such uncertainty, even postpone making provision for those who now rely upon you for support?

Are your business affairs so arranged that your sudden death would not involve a sacrifice in the settlement of your estate?

Are there any to whom you are indebted, who would suffer less in the event of your sudden death, who it is your duty to protect?

Are there any charities you would like to assist from time to time, or by bequest, which you could not afford or accomplish unless secured by an insurance on your life?

Would you have your infant relieved, while necessarily living close to your income, in the mere support of your family, or in your efforts to maintain or gain a position in society, for the present convenience and future welfare both of you and family?

Are you not willing, if necessary, to deny yourself some little indulgence to accomplish a good purpose, when only ten to twenty cents a day, according to your age, will procure the payment of $1000 to $5000 at your death?

IF SO, SECURE A POLICY OF INSURANCE ON YOUR LIFE.

Mr. Wm. Carter, Agent of the Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co., will stop for a few days at the McNulty House in this place.

The Mutual Benefit is one of the oldest and largest companies in the United States. It has a capital of $9,000,000, its dividends are 60 per cent. and it has paid $1,400,000 to widows and orphans. No company insures at more reasonable rates than the Mutual Benefit.

Notice to Teachers.

THE Board of School Examiners of Ashland County will hold the following Examinations, at Ashland, during the year 1896:

The 2nd Saturday of February;
The 2nd and 4th Saturdays of March;
The 2nd and 4th Saturdays of April;
The 2nd and 4th Saturdays of May;
The 2nd Saturday of June;
The 2nd and 4th Saturdays of September;
The 2nd and 4th Saturdays of October;
The 2nd and 4th Saturdays of November;
The 2nd Saturday of December.

These Examinations will commence at 9 o'clock A. M., and close at 4 P. M.

No applicant will be admitted after eleven o'clock A. M. Written testimonials of good moral character, signed by at least two responsible persons will be required; who testimonials will be kept on file. No certificate can be awarded, and the School Law prohibits Township Clerks from giving orders to teachers for pay, unless they have certificates embracing the whole time of service.

The School Law requires teachers to understand the following branches, and be able to impart instruction in them all: Reading, Writing, Orthography, Arithmetic, English Grammar and Geography. A failure in one, is a failure in all, and those not having a full knowledge of each and every one of the above branches, need not apply for a certificate.

Pasticular attention will be paid to Orthography, and those not having studied it, will be promptly rejected. No private examination will be held, and no application "by letter" will be answered. Only four grades of certificates will be issued, viz: for 6 months, 12 months, 18 months, and 24 months. A certificate for six months is a trial certificate and will not be issued a second time to the same applicant. Those having certificates for six months must be able to procure certificates for 12 months, or more. School Directors are requested to furnish no reports of the success of teachers, as they will aid us materially in granting certificates only to those who are successful. Those expecting to teach the higher branches will be examined accordingly.

The standard of Ashland County Teachers must be advanced, and applicants will bear this in mind. There will be no adjustment after Examinations commence and they close. Each applicant is required to pay a fee of 50 cents as a condition of Examination, and must be paid in advance.
