What Articles of Food are Best Adapted to Warm Weather?

If it be true that in cold weather we need, and the appetite requires, concentrated and concentrated food, as has been explained in the preceding chapter, it is also true, as might be expected, and as we all know, that the appetite demands in warm weather a very different class of articles, and the reasons are obvious.

Four fifths of our food being devoted to the production of heat, we need four times as much in cold weather as in warm. If, therefore, we eat the same articles in summer as in winter, and only what our nature requires, the stomach and bowels would collapse into one quarter of their size, and could not properly carry on their functions. Nature, therefore, provides for warm climates and the summers of cold, food in which all elements are greatly diluted, and in which the proportions of the elements are much smaller than those provided for cold weather. This you will see in the analysis of southern and northern corn, in a very remarkable degree. While the proportion of north corn is six of the carbonates to one of the nitrites, the proportion of these principles in southern corn are nearly equal. It would therefore require six times the bulk of southern corn as of northern to support the same degree of heat; and this disparity is still more strikingly seen if we compare northern corn with some of the common vegetables. Corn contains seventy three per cent. of carbonates, turnips four per cent., and cucumbers one per cent. Consequently it would require eighteen pounds of turnips, or seventy three pounds of cucumbers, to furnish as much heat as northern corn meal.

The comparative proportions of carbonates and nitrites in wheat; and in deed all the cereals that grow both in northern and southern climates, as well as those of all other natural products of the soil, plainly declare the will of God in regard to summer and winter food, as also do our appetites and tastes.

In the spring we lose our desire for butter and buckwheats, and begin to crave some acid fruits and green vegetables. And yet how many thoughtless people will eat the north corn through nearly the same routine of cooking in summer as in winter, with just about as much butter and lard and fat beef, and even pork, and fat gravy, and flour puddings, with sauce, not because they like it as well, or think it wholesome, but only because "their mothers did so before them!" And so powerful is this thoughtless and absurd habit in the Southern States, that it is said that however plentiful may be the supply of milk and cheese, and green vegetables, fresh from the garden, and southern fruits, always as on the table, a smoked ham or a "side of pork," and their vegetables are cooked, swimming in fat; and to force an appetite, they use the most stimulating spices and condiments. In short their food in the hottest weather is suitable only for the food of the coldest weather.

It is strange that diseases produced by heat, in summer or winter, weather, or whether using muscles or brains, or neither, either, every day food containing carbonates for the lungs, nitrites for the muscles, and acids for the stomach, and for animals that have instincts and not intellects to guide them, from the elephant to the smallest animalcule, these different elements are so mixed and prepared, and the appetite so adjusted to them, that they always want and always have what they need, at the right kind of food at the right time, and the right quantity.

But man, who has intellect, is expected to understand the laws of his being, and to adapt his food to the wants of his nature, varying it according to circumstances. He is a creature of habit, and our systems have wonderful power in adapting themselves to circumstances; and therefore we do not all die, however thoughtlessly we live, and however perseveringly continue the wrong habits to which we have been accustomed. Fancy Job AND BOOK WORK. DONE AT SHORT NOTICE.

PLATFORM OF THE DEMOCRACY OF OHIO, ADOPTED JANUARY 8, 1868.

Resolved, That the Democracy of Ohio shall maintain the country upon the improved system of political affairs as evidenced by the State elections of 1867, and that they look forward with hope and confidence to the result of that momentous struggle, and upon which depends, in a great degree, the future peace and prosperity of the Union.

Resolved, That, analterably opposed to the doctrines which lead to consolidation, we renew with undiminished zeal and increased energy, our attachment to that political creed which has ever been so staunchly adhered to by our organization through days of trial, trouble and disaster, as well as good fortune and prosperity, which was thus expressed by Thomas Jefferson: "Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion—religious or political—peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none; the support of the State Government in all their rights, as the most competent administration of our domestic concerns and the surest bulwark against anti-republican tendencies; the preservation of the general Government in its whole constitutional vigor as the sheet anchor of peace at home and safety abroad; a jealous care of the rights of elections by the people; and the supremacy of the civil over the military authority."

Resolved, That we condemn the legislative usurpations of Congress, and particularly the several acts of reconstruction so called, as violative of the Constitutional compact between the States, and as utterly subversive of every principle of self government that distinguishes a free people.

Resolved, That we are opposed to any measures which recognize the integrity of the Union was ever broken—that any of its members were ever out, and that we determinedly resist that the Southern States no longer being in insurrection, or at war, with the Federal Government, are entitled to the full State recognition and constitutional representation in Congress, and the electoral colleges given to all the States, and the denial of it to them by Congress, and its efforts to dictate by military force a government for them are unconstitutional, revolutionary and despotic.

Resolved, That we are opposed both in principle and policy, to negro suffrage; that the State of Ohio—having by the emphatic majority of 50,000 rejected it for herself—it is sternly opposed to its forced imposition upon other States, and that we stigmatize such an imposition by the Federal Government as a most base usurpation.

Resolved, That the practical effect of the so-called Reconstruction act of Congress is to deliver over ten States to the political and social control of negroes and to place the lives, liberties and fortunes of the Whites residing therein, in the hands of a barbarous and unprincipled race, and that it would inevitably lead either war of races or to the Africanization of the South.

Resolved, That notwithstanding the enormous and conceded frauds in the creation of the public debt, the faith of the country is pledged to its payment, principal and interest, according to the terms of the several acts of Congress, and that the bonds representing the debt were issued, but not otherwise, and we are opposed to any plan for extending the times of payment, thus increasing the amount of gold interest to more than the principal, or to any declaration by Congress that the principal is payable in gold, which would virtually add more than a thousand millions to the burden of the debt, and to the whole income financial policy of which these measures are a part.

Resolved, That, neither forgetting nor denying our ancient faith that the Constitution is the basis of our government, we declare that the five-twenty bonds should be paid in the same currency received by the Government for their issue, and that by the withdrawal of the monopoly granted to the National Banks this result can be accomplished without an undue or dangerous increase of paper money, nor the only circulating medium, thus relieving our people from the burden of a debt, the tendency of which is always to corrupt and enslave, and our Government from the reproach of paying a favored class in gold, while denying its debts to all others, including pensions to widows and soldiers, in an inferior currency.

Resolved, That this plan violates no law, impairs no contract, breaks no faith, and instead of retarding a return to specie payments, is the shortest and surest way of reaching that point.

Resolved, That all the property of the country, including the Government bonds, which receives the equal protection of the Government, should bear an equal share in its burdens.

Resolved, That we indignantly reject the principle derived from the feudal system, and which has been introduced into the Government under which they live, which in another form is contended for by the monarchies of Europe, including Great Britain, and a subject always a subject—that we on the contrary maintain that an individual can, by emigration and residence in another country, forever shed his previous allegiance, and be admitted into all the civil and political rights of his new home—that American citizens by adoption and naturalization are entitled to all the rights as between us and foreign powers which can be claimed by our native born citizens, and it is the duty of the Federal Government to protect and maintain them by every means in its power.

Resolved, That the people will sustain Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, in his struggle with Congressional measures, and that we pledge the Democracy of Ohio to support him in all Constitutional measures to relieve the white people of the South from the negro government now being imposed upon them.

Resolved, That the fortitude and gallantry of our soldiers in the recent civil war, in defense of the Union, and in support of the gratitude of the country, and they should ever be remembered by it in its bounties.

Resolved, That the Democracy of the country have neither the purpose nor desire to re-establish slavery, nor to assume any portion of the debts of the States lately in rebellion.

PROOFS OF THE SUPERIORITY OF THE AMERICAN WATCHES.

This country has reason to be proud of this splendid specimen of American operative genius, and anxious that it will revolutionize the watch manufacturing of the world no one can doubt who examines the operations of the Waltham establishments of Waltham and Massachusetts, and about one half the cost of imported movements—besides the uniform reliability of the machine-made watches made by the great advantage over all others wherever known.

A poor time piece of the machine make will be as rare in the future as a good one of hand make has been heretofore, and can make a perfect article just as easy as one that is worthless. It will be the cause of congratulation of this useful American Enterprise shall have the effect of driving out of market the thousands of trashy foreign watches, and the best of the American watches are made by the Waltham Company, and are certainly, so far as strength, durability, and excellence as time keepers are concerned, as good as any thing produced by the French or Swiss manufacturers.—N. Y. Herald.

"The beauty, the precision, the greater cheapness, the uniform excellence of a watch constructed by machinery to exquisite that the mere spectacle of its operation is poetic, grandly give the American Watches a public preference which will not be accorded.—Harpers' Weekly.
