

that the Federal Government shall never interfere with Slavery in the States...

All this may have the "ring of true metal" to congressionalists, but to me, it is as "sounding brass" or "a tinkling cymbal"...

Though I cannot rejoice in a victory achieved, I can endure with those in bonds another struggle...

The Anti-Slavery Bugle

SALEM, OHIO, MARCH 30, 1861.

TO NON-SUBSCRIBERS WHO RECEIVE THE BUGLE

Non-subscribers need not decline receiving the Bugle, feeling that they will be called upon to pay for it...

THE BUGLE WITHOUT AN EDITOR.

The editor of the Bugle was unexpectedly called to Cleveland, on Monday night, just as he had finished revising the outside of this number of the paper...

Now the Press, as some one has very shrewdly remarked, can never be left to run itself, even for a day...

In running over the exchange now, however, I do not see that in that time, our crumbling nation already has lost an important fragment...

It is said there will be bloodshed first. I guess not. "To war, to arms is now the cry"...

Women don't know much about government, for that is if a natural right of men, but I submit it, whether Mr. Lincoln's position is not unique...

MRS. A. K. FOSTER.

This dear friend of all down-trodden humanity, has just returned to her New England home...

With the same earnestness and self-denial that characterized her first appearance in public...

As there any law in the State of Ohio against Astrology? Such was the query accompanying a copy of an Astrological advertisement sent to the Bugle...

Unlike the gem of purest ray serene The dark unfathom'd caves of ocean bear, Unlike the bowers built to blush unseen...

lyng point to the friends of the slave. The same need for a paper exists now as then...

EQUAL RIGHTS.

It is some time since I communicated with the friends of this Cause, through the Bugle...

But as yet we have obtained no legislation. The Property Bill reported by Judge Key from the Senate Committee, and which I understand, has the fullest sanction of the Judges of the Supreme Court of this State...

Letters from Eastern friends beg me to inform them what, and exactly how much we have secured in the way of Legislation. The agitation in the State, of which they have heard so much...

THE FORT SUMNER QUESTION.

I pity the Republicans! Indeed I do; those, at least, who had high hopes of the firm posture of Lincoln. Under the illusion of liberty, some thought themselves obliged to swallow this bitter pill...

But these good, honest Republicans; how long they have been on the rack! It is a shame to tell them they must swallow a nauseous dose, exhibit the poison daily before their eyes for weeks...

ASTROLOGY.

Those who shared in the musical treat furnished by those vocalists when here last fall, need no other inducement to hear them again...

COMPLIMENTARY TO A CORRESPONDENT.—A gentleman in Washington writes, "Can I procure from you the Bugle containing all the numbers of B. G. Wright's essays on SECESSION, or can the writer be induced to publish the same in pamphlet form?"

COsmopolitan ART JOURNAL.—The 11th number of Vol. 5th of this periodical contains the usual variety of literary contributions and pencil illustrations. A full page steel plate frontispiece—Enial Sulistide—is a good compensation for the volume.

The annual distribution of Works of Art by the Association, which usually takes place at the close of January, has this year been postponed until the 15th of April...

for—to use the language of her incomparable advertisement—"She is the living voice of this enlightened age; all who consult her are astonished at the truthfulness of her information and predictions."

Talk about lack of skill and dearth of opportunity, or want of capital being any reason for an unsuccessful business—it is all moonshine! No matter what may be your ability or inability for business, no matter what your condition in life...

Mr. Fox, the Government messenger sent to Maj. Anderson, reached here to-day from Fort Sumter, and will make his report to-morrow. He reports that Maj. Anderson can hold out but a few days longer, and it is believed that Mr. Fox left orders for Maj. Anderson to evacuate on some day this week.

STARVING OUT MASSACHUSETTS.

I have heard a good story, as told by Mr. Edwin Furze. A few days since, he was going to Philadelphia, and in the seat in front of him were two gentlemen from the South, and opposite them, in the car, a Massachusetts Yankee. The Southerners were sure that Cotton is King, and in a few weeks the South would bring the people of the North, especially those of Massachusetts, to their senses...

HOOPS AND HANDGUFFS.

"At a camp meeting, recently held near West Baltimore, Montgomery county, Ohio, Bishop Reed forbade any one with hoops on to partake of the sacrament, affirming that they would not be welcome to the table of the Lord. Two or three years ago a Western Conference passed resolutions that "the wearing of hoops by females is inconsistent with a truly Christian character..."

AN AWKWARD FIX.

From the Springfield Journal, the President elect's organ, we learn with a certain dismay that "Mr. Lincoln stands immovably on the Chicago platform, and he will neither acquiesce in, nor counsel his friends to acquiesce in any compromise that surrenders one iota of it."

HOW SOLDIERS ARE ENLISTED.

I wish through your columns to direct the attention of the emigration Commissioners in New York and Baltimore to the fact there are scores of lying in wait upon the arrival of every German packet, for the purpose of deceiving ignorant and educated men, who do not know a single word of the English language...

THE FIGHTING PARSON ENDORSES LINCOLN.

The notorious Parson Brownlow, whose clerical Billingsgate has given him an extensive reputation, is delighted with Lincoln's Inaugural, and gives it his unqualified endorsement as follows: "We endorse the entire Address, as one of the best papers of the kind we have seen, and we commend it for its temperance and conservatism. It is peace-loving and conservative in its recommendations and eminently firm in its nationality of sentiment."

THEM'S ON.—Miss Juvenilia Ollivis and Miss Celestia Ticker will give a Concert in the Town Hall, Salem, on Tuesday evening, April 2nd, commencing at 7 1/2 o'clock.

Those who shared in the musical treat furnished by those vocalists when here last fall, need no other inducement to hear them again than the announcement of their intended presence; and the reputation they then established, will lead others to hear from them, as they have heard of them. Their selection of pieces is such as will give general satisfaction, embracing the simple airs of Scottish ballads and more artistic efforts.

Doors open at 7 o'clock. Tickets, price 25 cents, can be procured at the usual places.

ity for all who wish to do so, to secure for themselves by the payment of $3, a chance in the distribution, a copy of the Anti-Slavery Bugle for one year, and any one of the engravings which the Association has published for its members.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY for April is usually the case with the issues of that work, ahead of time, and it may be in more senses than one. It contains the conclusion of The Professor's Story, The Reign of King Cotton—but not the conclusion—Glimpses of Garibaldi, Charleston under arms, together with its usual amount of other literary excursions.

In the May number Harriet Beecher Stowe will commence a new romance entitled, Agnes of Sorrento, which will be continued each month throughout the year. The Professor's Story concluded in the present number—Elsie Varner—has been issued in book form by Ticknor and Fields, the publishers of the monthly. The Professor, whose name and fame are so closely identified with the history of the Atlantic, will, of course, continue his contributions to the work.

There is still a great scarcity of suitable applicants for office in the Border slave States, and the probability now is that most of the present incumbents will be continued.

A CURIOUS FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE—MARSHALS OUTWITTED.

On Monday evening citizens in the vicinity of Third and Fourth streets were alarmed by hearing loud noises in the yards at the rear of their dwellings. They discovered two men scaling fences and otherwise demeaning themselves in a very quiet and inappreciable manner. A gentleman of that district, who had been thus awakened from a sound sleep into visions of burglary and murder, seized a musket and drew sight upon the intruders. The latter called out that they were not thieves, but United States marshals on the track of certain English housebreakers. The musketeer thereupon descended to the yard, and was confidentially conversed with the following facts: A confidential female servant in the family of a gentleman of Washington, D. C., recently escaped from her owners, and was received into the family of a certain high constable of this city. The woman was said to be nearly white, of some personal attractiveness, and intelligent beyond her race. She dwelt with the high constable as aforesaid until Monday, at noon, when a neighbor, ignorant that she had been a slave, appeared at the house to warn her that the marshals were upon her track. She was forthwith removed to Third and South streets, and afterwards to a remote part of the state. The marshals had assumed the re-capture of this woman as the crowning exploit of their term of administration. Having traced her to Third and South streets, they imagined no difficulty in the labor of the night, but extraordinary vigilance upon the part of the slave frustrated any attempt upon her freedom.
