The grand jury concluded its labors Tuesday afternoon and made its report to Judge Allread. They were in session only a part of two days, examined eight cases, ignored six complaints and returned but two true bills of indictment, as follows: James Williamson, assault and battery, and John Traul, petit larceny.

On last Thursday morning the lifeless body of Joseph Wolf was found hanging by a trace chain in the wagonshed at his home in Ansonia. He arose early that morning, went out to the shed and deliberately hung himself, no cause being known for him wishing to end his life, as prior to that he seemed to be in his usual health. His lifeless body was found by his wife when she went to call him for breakfast. He was aged about 61 years, and is survived by his wife and two children, a brother and sister.

Last Saturday Deputy Probate Judge Kolp refused a marriage license to Clarence Snyder of Washington township and Miss Mary Wentworth, on account of the young lady not being of age and unable to secure the consent of her parents, so they declared their intention of going to Kentucky, where the laws are somewhat more lax. Two Story Menus. Most two story poultry houses are not used as it was planned they should be, says a writer in Farm-Poultry. On a small lot the yard room is more of a problem than house room. A two story house might be an advantage in winter, but in summer the number of fowls kept would more likely have to be according to yard capacity. Generally in a two story house one story is inconvenient. Sometimes both are. Common experience favors the one story house.

Beaten Salad Dressing. Beat the yolks of four eggs light with one rounding teaspoonful of dry mustard, one of salt and half a level teaspoonful of mace. Add one pint of cream and cook until the mixture thickens; cool partly and stir in one and one-half table-spoonfuls of tarragon vinegar or, if preferred, the juice of one small lemon.

FASHIONS IN NEW YORK

The bridal gown is as much a matter of taste as ever, and the admirers of satin may indulge that fancy and yet be in the foremost rank of fashion. Heavy satin has been the preferred material for early spring weddings, sometimes made up quite plain, then again trimmed with lace, appliques, or embroidery. Seed pearls, outlining lace sprays, are a beautiful addition, and at one very notable wedding, silver embroidery and seed pearls were combined. Chiffon cloth, chiffon, Liberty satin, white silk or mes-saline are all in the category of materials, and the bride-to-be of moderate means will choose a fabric which she can wear on other occasions.

So far, the Princess shape has been universal, with or without an Empire effect at the back. A lace yoke or lace V is indispensable with sleeves trimmed to match and an illusion veil of any desired length attached to the hair by orange blossoms throws Foulards were never in greater demand and really no other material is so generally useful. So many patterns originate from dots and stripes that it is interesting to lounge awhile at the foulard counter of a leading house and look over the tempting display. Tiny dots in "all over" patterns are held in high esteem by dressmakers, then a gain small dots form very large dots, stripes or squares. Coin spots on cluster stripes are favorites, and tiny sprigs come in for their share of approval. Blue, brown and combinations of black and white are particularly attractive, and in the latter, shaded black and white spots of varied sizes on a satiny surface, charm the experienced shopper by the delicacy of the design.

its own indefinable charm over the entire costume. For a church wedding, a long satin train is very effective, but for a home wedding, a train of moderate length is in more correct taste. The bride's bouquet may be of white lilacs, white rosebuds, or lilies-of-the-valley, or a handsome prayer book is often preferred to flowers.

Any special costume for graduating, seems to be passing out of style, or perhaps absorbed by the lingerie dress, which worn over a white or colored slip alternately, seems ever new and fresh. The beautiful batiste trimmings, which are easily put together and so effective, are one great reason for the continued popularity of the lingerie dress. Braiding, in cotton soutache, is new and a change from ruffles or lace, and within the reach of all industrious girls who desire a fashionable summer costume. Mull is the fabric generally seel, always with a double, plaited frill down the front, and usually quite a plain skirt. More ornate dresses have three tucks in the skirts and waists in very full surplice fashion, with handsome lace yokes and sleeves. A facing of colored silk is used in a surplice front, with a belt and sleeve trimmings to match. Costumes of linen and lace continue their fascinations, in which the latter element enters even more largely than during the past summer. A very pretty dress on this order, has a skirt of "all over" lace arranged in panels (over a blue lining) the panels divided by a blue linen hand edged (both sides) with narrow lace. The skirt has a broad blue linen facing, and the waist is a rather long basque, the skirt slashed and bordered with lace. There is a white lace V at the neck, and three-quarter sleeves with cape over sleeves all trimmed in harmony. VERONA CLARKE.

Obituary.

One by one the Master calleth Blessed ones unto His fold; One by one they will be gathered To the Savior's great white throne

Rose Ella Benner was born on November 6, 1866, in Darke Co., Ohio, and died at her late home, near Rapids City, Mich., April 24, 1907, aged 40 years, 5 months and 18 days. She was united in marriage to Arodine Isenbarger September 11, 1889, and to this union were born four girls, all of whom, with the husband, survive her decease. Her parents, five brothers and three sisters, with a host of friends and neighbors, mourn her departure. Two brothers preceded her at the Master's call some years since. Although enduring much sickness for years, hers was a joyous, cheerful nature, always striving to help those about her in words and deeds. In her immediate family her high ambition was to elevate and direct to the highest standard of living, which is in Christ Jesus, whom she accepted as her Savior at the age of twenty years, and who was her comfort in both life and death. Our loss is her gain. H. F. B.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

The Proper Way to Cleanse Lace Curtains—Domestic Hints.

Great care should be taken to remove all iron rust or mold stains with oxalic acid before the curtains are wet. The curtains should be placed in cold water to soak about twelve hours and then should be squeezed out and placed in a fresh lot of water for some hours, repeating this until no more dirt comes out. Then they should be thoroughly washed in warm water, with plenty of soap. After washing it improves the looks of the curtains to boil them. They should be passed through blue water to avoid the yellow appearance and afterward dried outdoors in the bright sun. After the curtains are dried they should be starched, using raw starch if they are to be ironed and cooked starch if they are to be dried in a frame or pinned to the floor. If they are to be ironed they must be rolled in a clean cloth for some hours, and if they are to be dried by pinning out flat they should be pinned to a sheet and pulled out evenly, so that the pattern and shape appear all right. Ironing should be done on a board of such length that the full width of the curtain can be ironed at once. Moderately hot irons should be used, and the curtains should be kept square as the work proceeds.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

The Jamestown Exposition. The Jamestown exposition, which commemorates the settlement of Virginia by the English, differs from its predecessors in that it has been designed with a view to permanency. In this respect it will doubtless be followed by other cities that have expositions in prospect. When it was decided to celebrate the three hundredth anniversary of the first English speaking settlement in America, the promoters of the plan bought the land and formed an exposition company. Improvements of a permanent character were at once begun, even before the holding of the exposition was assured.

The exposition grounds are not situated at the scene of the original settlement, as that was impossible. They are located on the shore of Hampton Roads, near the mouth of the James river, about twenty-two miles below the site of old Jamestown and six miles from Norfolk.

Harry St. George Tucker, who succeeded the late General Fitz-Hugh Lee as president of the exposition, is a representative Virginian and well equipped for the work in which he is now engaged. He represented his district in congress from 1889 to 1897 and was one of the most influential southern Democrats in the house of representatives. He has been dean of the law school at Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va., and also dean of the law school of the George Washington university, Washington.

Didn't Use Them.

When Winston Churchill was running for governor of New Hampshire last fall, some of his adherents in different localities suggested to Judge Remick, his manager, that buttons with a picture of Mr. Churchill and an appropriate motto would be a valuable campaign agency. Judge Remick thereupon wired Mr. Churchill, "Have you no buttons for your supporters?" Back came the answer, "No; we use safety pins."

His Pronunciation.

Senator Teller of Colorado insists upon calling our protected infant republic "Cuby." "I guess I ought to know," explains the Colorado senator when exception is taken to his pronunciation. "I was raised in Cuby, New York, and got my pronunciation first hand."

Jack London's Cruise.

Jack London, the famous author, who has just started from San Francisco on a six years' cruise around the world, is making the trip in a small yacht, the Shark. The vessel is forty-five feet long, ketch rigged, and its occupants, besides London and his wife, are Herbert S. Stolz, a Stanford graduate and athlete; Roscoe Fames, captain; Martin Johnson, cook; and Hitesha Tochtel, cabin boy. London's first stop will be made at Honolulu. His itinerary as planned will take in New Zealand, Australia, China, Africa, Europe and South America. In the latter country he will explore some of the great rivers.

Jack London is a man whose adventurous life made him at various stages of his career a sailor, gold miner, tramp, author, Socialist lecturer and war correspondent. He is a native of San Francisco and is just past thirty-one. Among his best known books are "The Call of the Wild," "The Sea Wolf" and "The Kempton-Wace Letters."

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought. Beware of cheap imitations.

The Journal and The American Boy both one year for only $1.50.

Household Hints. The knife used for peeling a pineapple should not be used for slicing it, as the rind contains an acid that is apt to cause a swollen mouth and sore lips. If a bottle of the oil of pennyroyal is left open in a room at night not a mosquito will be found there in the morning. Mix potash with powdered meal, and throw it in the rat holes of a cellar, and the rats will depart. For mice in the pantry, stuff a saturated rag with a solution of cayenne pepper into the hole and no mouse will touch the rag.

Boiled Apples. This is the time of year to boil apples instead of baking them, as you can use the small and wilted ones that are good for nothing else. Fill your granite kettle half full of whole apples after digging out the blossom end. Put in a cupful of sugar and add water to a little more than cover them. Boil slowly several hours, or until the water is mostly boiled away and only a thick sirup remains, then take up the apples and pour the sirup over them.

Toilet Hints.

Never use pure glycerin on the face. It will cause the skin to become yellow and hair to grow. When washing the hair a little good toilet water in the last rinsing water gives a faint suggestion of perfume, which is refreshing. When the eyes are inflamed from cold or loss of sleep, use the following wash: One ounce of distilled witch hazel with one ounce of pure water.

The Kitchen Floor.

Throw a dash of cold water on the hot grease spilled on the kitchen floor. This will prevent it from penetrating the wood, and it can be washed up with cold suds later. Try painting or oiling the kitchen floor, and the grease spots will not show. If it is of soft wood, give a good stain before applying the oil.

Sardine Crisps.

Sardine crisps are made of bread cut in long, narrow pieces and evenly toasted. These are then buttered and spread with a mixture of boned sardines, lemon juice and the oil that the sardines come in, or preferably olive oil. Only a thin coating of this will be necessary to use with the toast.
