

CONVERTED BY A CHILD.

Saloonkeeper Who Threw His Liquor Into the Sewer.

The tears and pleadings of his little daughter resulted in the conversion of J. E. Teany, proprietor of the principal saloon of Litchfield, Ill., at a revival meeting conducted by Evangelist E. E. Violet, and Teany dumped nearly $1,000 worth of whisky, wines, and beer into the street in front of his place of business while more than a thousand residents of Litchfield looked on, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

As in hand, he superintended the smashing of kegs and barrels and bottles, while the crowd cheered him on, although Teany's course has made enemies for him, and both he and Evangelist Violet have received anonymous letters threatening their lives. None of this spirit, however, became manifest at the liberation of the liquor.

Mrs. Teany and her daughter stood at Teany's side while he battered in keg after keg or sent his ax crashing through bottle after bottle of liquor. All of the Protestant ministers in the city also were there, having converted a large dray into an improvised pulpit, from which they cheered on the work of destruction.

Several hundred dollars' worth of high priced cordials started the sacrifice. True, many at the outskirts of the throng looked upon it all as a wicked waste, and watched with thirsty, puckering lips bow hundreds of priceless drinks were into the street, but they were far too few in numbers to make a demonstration of protest or to secure a portion of the sacrifice.

Then came barrels of wines and whiskies, and the fragrant stream that started seaward in the gutter became swollen as a flood, with mingling red and white and brown. Last of all came several kegs of beer, and the foaming amber liquid washed down the seemingly unsated pavement.

When the last drop had been spilled Teany uttered a fervent "Amen" and Mrs. Teany and the daughter joined in with even greater fervor, while the crowd cheered anew.

Then someone suggested a song, and soon the strains of "America" were taken up by 1,000 voices. Then Evangelist Violet made a stirring address.

Teany was the hero of the hour. He was obliged to review the great host of people, and for nearly an hour stood on the dray shaking hands. His conversion was brought about by the revival at the Christian church which has thoroughly stirred the city. The saloonkeeper at once renounced the liquor traffic, and believed it would be a sin for him to sell any more liquor. Yielding to his convictions, he was determined to destroy what liquor he had on hand despite the efforts of his enemies to thwart his purpose. He received many anonymous letters threatening his life, which only increased his determination to humiliate the traffic. Friends of the saloon here swear vengeance, and some believe that Teany's life is in peril.

Saloons Spread Disease.

Says a writer in the Medical Record: "It has been proved more or less conclusively that pulmonary tuberculosis is spread by the agency of public houses in Great Britain, and this is probably also the case to a lesser extent in regard to saloons in America. Although the saloons here are far cleaner and better ventilated than are those of Great Britain, there are many in which diseased and unwashed loafers spend a great part of their time."

A Plea for Sobriety.

Col. George W. Bain, of Lexington, Ky., addressed a large assembly held recently at Massey hall, Toronto, under the auspices of the Canadian Temperance league. Col. Bain's address was a plea for total abstinence. Out of 119 counties in Kentucky, 95 had local option. Col. Bain said that this measure had been carried largely by the votes of men, who themselves drank, but who wished to have the temptation removed from their sons.

Chosen Evangelist for Ohio.

Rev. J. B. Shontz, former pastor of St. John's Reformed church, Chambersburg, Pa., has been chosen missionary evangelist by the Ohio synod of the Reformed church. Mr. Shontz has his headquarters at Akron, O.

A Kentucky Victory.

Clay county, Kentucky, has recently voted the barrooms out by a majority of about 1,000. Out of Kentucky's 115 counties, 95 are now under local option.

WASNT HE THE BUSY AUTHOR.

George Elliot Was Looking For Atmosphere When Arrested.

Michael Mullane, a patrolman, arrested a very ragged man early one morning on Third street, says the Kansas City Times. He had a large stone tied in a handkerchief and was furtively glancing over his shoulder when the patrolman stopped him. "What is your name?" Judge Kyle asked the man in police court. "George Elliot."

"Hum, any relation to the author of the name?"

"No, but none of the books ever written by that author can ever compare to the one that I'm going to write. I had the foundation for the story almost complete last night and needed only a few more essential details. That's why I was walking the streets at such an early hour. I wanted atmosphere for my story. Judge it's the greatest story that will ever be written. There is a man here who has a past. I have discovered it and am going to put all the harrowing details into a book."

"Why that stone wrapped in a handkerchief?"

"Some one is pursuing me to steal the story. It will net me millions if it is published. There are several men who would not hesitate to kill me to get that story. But I will protect it with my life."

"What is the hero's name?"

"Theophilus Jones."

Then the judge fined the author $25.

The First Coined Money.

When metals were first used for payment they were simply weighed. The next step was to issue pieces of gold and silver which had been weighed; and then in time it became the custom to mark the exact weight and value on each piece. This was first done in Assyria and Babylonia, where shekels of gold and silver have often been found. The idea of coining money was first conceived by the Greeks of Ionia in the seventh century B. C. These people stamped on each coin their city arms and seal, thus giving the guaranty of their state for the correct weight and value of the coins. The custom spread rapidly among all the Greek provinces and into Italy. The oldest gold coins are the yellow shekels of Babylonia. These were stamped only with the arms of the country, which thus made itself responsible for their proper weight. Nearly all of the more modern coins derived their weight from the scale of value established by the old shekels of Babylonia.

Forestry in Public Schools.

Massachusetts is trying to arouse her public school pupils to interest in forestry, and State Forester F. W. Rane has sent out to every school superintendent in the state a circular letter setting forth the desirability of further educating the children in caring for trees. He offers seedlings and seed of white pine, white ash, red spruce, beech, chestnut and oak trees on payment of the actual expense of digging and express charges.

Smallest Wild Cat.

Celebes, an island in the Malay Archipelago, has the distinction of being the home of the smallest living representative of the wild cat. An idea of the extremely diminutive proportions of the animal, as the animal in question, which has some of the characteristics of the buffalo, is called, may be gained when it is stated that its height at the shoulder is only three feet and four inches.

Meeting a Deficit.

"I hear Scorchers has put a heavy mortgage on his city residence. Is he in such trouble as that?"

"Yes; he told me he had to have an immediate cash supply for his automobile fines."

Penalty?

Reid—I see in Germany the Kaiser's chief chauffeur must motor through life under the imposing title of "oberhofwagenfuhrer."

Greene—What's the matter? Had he been speeding?

Garden Designed by Wordsworth.

Few people know that the poet Wordsworth designed an elaborate winter garden for Sir George Beaumont, his friend, and that the garden exists at the present day. Dr. Frederick Peterson recently visited and photographed it.

WORN TO A SKELETON.

A Wonderful Restoration Caused a Sensation in a Pennsylvania Town.

Mrs. Charles N. Preston, of Elkland, Pa., says: "Three years ago I found that my housework was becoming a burden. I tired easily, had no ambition and was fading fast. My complexion got yellow and I lost over 50 pounds. My thirst was terrible, and there was sugar in the kidney secretions. My doctor kept me on a strict diet, but as his medicine was not helping me, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once, and soon all traces of sugar disappeared. I have regained my former weight and am perfectly well."

QUEER KINDS OF CURRENCY.

China and Parts of Russia Have the Most Unique.

Chinese money is traced back three thousand years before Christ. One emperor objected to copper coinage, gathered a whole issue together, buried it deep into the earth, and threw in on top the workmen employed in digging the pit. The pit and the coins were struck in the form of scraps of cloth of knives for barter, and were in existence from about the seventh to the second century before Christ. The commonest of Chinese money is the cash, a round metal disk with a square hole in the center; a thousand of these are worth barely 75 cents. One's cook in China goes to market with great strings of this heavy money round neck, shoulders, and waist, but even when weighed with as much as a strong man can carry, very little of our money is represented. On the Russo-Chinese borders green tea pressed into bricks has been the money of the country for a thousand years.—Sunday Magazine.

Yale University Wealthy.

According to the Yale Alumni Weekly, the property of the university in New Haven which is exempted from taxation, is appraised at $9,431,150, an increase of $255,000 over the appraised tax exemptions of last year, though this increase does not necessarily represent actual additional values subtracted from the New Haven grand list. Of the total exemptions about $1,370,000 belongs to the Sheffield Scientific School. The old campus, as land, is valued at $1,023,400, and the buildings on this campus at $2,483,500. The appraisals are high on many of the buildings, as compared to actual cost. The valuations are placed, and as they are exemptions there has been no occasion to appeal for their reduction.

A Suggested Explanation.

"The feelings of women are far deeper and finer than those of men," cried the lady orator, in a fierce tone. "We are told by those who style themselves the stronger sex that we are much inferior. Is that so?"

A loud chorus of "No" from the ladies greeted this question, and the orator went on:

"I say that woman feels where man thinks."

"Is that the reason your husband is bald?" inquired one of the few male members of the audience.

It was lucky for him that he got two seconds start in the race for the door.—Pearson's Weekly.

An Accommodating Peg.

One of the disadvantages of modern shoe-making machinery is that the peg won't fit itself into the hole. Time was, according to Mayor E. F. Brown, of Marlboro, Mass., when it was much more accommodating.

"One day," he recently informed the Boot and Shoe club, "my father, a plunger in the business, hit the peg and it flew up. What happened? Probably you won't believe me, but it's the hole all the same. The peg hit the ceiling, came down exactly into the hole and was driven in. But, you know," added Mayor Brown, with a smile, "we don't peg shoes that way nowadays."

Was Not For Old Gold.

John Sloan, the noted illustrator and etcher, laid down a newspaper account of the sale of a Bongerpear for $75,000.

"Such sales," he said, "remind me of the conversation of old Gebra Gold and his daughter Lotta. 'Well, did you buy that picture?' said Lotta on her father's return from a gallery. 'No,' the old man answered. 'Why not, pop?' 'Twan't dark enough.'"

A Compliment.

"Of course," said Miss Clumsey, "Mr. Kidder's language is not always elegant, but he can be very complimentary in his rough way." "Yes?" asked Miss Wise. "Yes. He says to a bird, 'Huh! So is an ostrich.'"

FIT THE GROCER.

Wife Made the Suggestion.

A grocer has excellent opportunity to know the effects of special foods on his customers. A Cleveland grocer has a long list of customers that have been helped in health by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

He says, regarding his own experience: "Two years ago I had been drinking coffee and must say that I was almost wrecked in my nerves."

"Particularly in the morning I was so irritable and upset that I could hardly wait until the coffee was served, and then I had no appetite for breakfast and did not feel like attending to my store duties."

"One day my wife suggested that inasmuch as I was selling so much Postum there must be some merit in it and suggested that we try it. I took home a package and she prepared it according to directions. The result was a very happy one. My nervousness gradually disappeared and to-day I am all right. I would advise everybody affected in any way with nervousness or stomach troubles, to leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee."

Pretty Epigram.

A charming epigram adorned an address that Mrs. J. C. Phelps Stokes made on her last visit to Detroit. She was rejoicing over the fact that in the slums woman, no matter how wretched her case, kept her speech pure, as a rule, of profanity. "An oath from a woman's lips," she ended, "is unnatural and incredible. I would as soon expect a bullet from a rosebud."

The Apt Pupil.

The philanthropic fifth avenue lady was visiting a lower East Side Sunday school. To test the aptness of a particularly indigent cluster of pupils, she took the class in hand to question them.

"Children, which is the greatest of all virtues?"

Not one answered.

"Think a little. What is it I am doing when I give up time and pleasure to come down among you for your moral good?"

A grimy fist went up.

"Well, what am I doing, little boy?"

"Buttin' in!"—Life.

The Last Dash.

The autists in highest latitudes gathered around and mournfully contemplated a dark body that lay upon the gleaming ice before them.

At that moment De Villiers, the last of the party, who had been detained by a faulty adjustment, rode up.

"What's the trouble?" he asked.

One of the far-rid group looked around. His voice was choked with rage.

"That idiotic chauffeur whom Dasher insisted on bringing along didn't look where he was going."

"Yes."

"He smashed into the pole and broke it short off!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Don't Poison Baby. FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
