THURSDAY, NOV. 7, 1907.

The opinion seems to be general, throughout this country, as well as abroad, that the recent Wall Street storm will serve as an object lesson to clear the atmosphere, and that one of its results may be a reorganization of the New York Stock Exchange. It has, undoubtedly, demonstrated that our local banking institutions are solvent as a whole and are managed with due conservatism. Now that abuses have been exposed and are in process of being remedied, we believe that confidence will soon be firmer than ever because the solidity of the banking fabric has been so thoroughly tested. The actions of certain of our financiers were bound to result, sooner or later, in a catastrophe, and the people of the United States owe an incalculable debt of gratitude to President Roosevelt for the judgment and foresight which precipitated these exposures at this time, when the country at large is unburdened by relatively debt and is exceptionally prosperous.

Some southern papers have charged that the provision of the immigration law construed in Attorney General Bonaparte's recent ruling in the Garcia case to the effect that the states could not encourage immigration by promise of employment, is in contravention of an understanding by which southern members of Congress supported the immigration bill rushed through at the last session of Congress. Southern senators, it is alleged, were given to understand that nothing contained in the bill would interfere with the plans of their states for the promotion of foreign immigration. That such assurances were given is undoubtedly true, but it is also that the provision on which the Attorney General's ruling is based has been a part of the immigration law for a number of years, so that the allegation of breach of faith in the adoption of the existing measure is groundless. The provision referred to is that forbidding the importation of immigrants under contract to perform labor or under promise of employment. The Attorney General holds that this inhibition applies to the states as well as to an individual or a corporation.

The biological laboratory of the Department of Agriculture is preparing to hurl a bombshell into the American home. This will be the intelligence that the cat is one of the greatest carriers of disease; that it is responsible for the spread of tuberculosis, scarlet fever, small-pox and diphtheria, especially among children. Until comparatively recently, 1882, tuberculosis has been looked upon as absolutely fatal, but science has ably demonstrated that it is a germ disease and curable in any climate, and under conditions of poverty as well as of wealth, and associations to enlist the public in its prevention have come into existence throughout the country. To educate the masses as to the real nature and curability of this disease, and to awaken them to their own responsibility in the premises is the problem which the health departments of the nation, the state and the municipality have to solve in their great work of eradicating tuberculosis.

The Franklin Township High School.

A great deal of interest is being manifested in the Franklin Township high school, or rather in the erection of a building for its maintenance. A brief history of the developments that brought about the establishing of such a school will, no doubt, be of interest to many Journal readers. It is generally known that the school law of Ohio has made provision that all pupils that pass successfully what is known as the Patterson examination, shall be permitted to enter any high school within the state, and the township in which such pupils reside shall pay the tuition from the school fund, unless the township maintains a high school within her own borders or makes provision for her pupils to attend a high school near by.

Owing to the absence of a town or village supporting a high school and the isolated location of the township from any street car or railroad lines her pupils were debarred from a great privilege. It is true, many of them attended high school elsewhere, but this necessitated their boarding away from home where environments and influences were very different and sometimes not conducive to moral uplifting. In a measure the parental care and influence so necessary over pupils of this age, was practically severed. While the tuition expenses were growing heavier each year, which was divided amongst about a half dozen cities and towns, yet there were many young people desirous of attending high school but because of the distance and expense they were not permitted to do so. In view of these facts our board of education made provision for establishing a township high school in the spring of 1905, in a room that was not needed at that time, for elementary school purposes. Several practical schoolmen of the county and state were consulted in the arranging of a course of study. A committee was appointed to submit it to our State School Commissioner. By making a few changes in the course it was approved, and by complying with certain other requirements a charter of the second grade was granted with a prospect of converting it into a first grade later.

The high schools of our state are divided into first, second and third grade. A competent high school teacher was secured. The first year 14 pupils took the entire year, 15 more entered the school, making it a heavy year's work for one teacher; last spring a goodly number passed the necessary examination to promote them to high school. Judging from the large number of 8th grade pupils throughout the township there will be an increased number of Patterson graduates by another year and no doubt each succeeding year as the township schools are well graded through the use of an excellent course of study and a live corps of teachers. Owing to these conditions and the encouragement given by many citizens of the township it was believed the interests of the people would be best served by erecting a convenient and substantial high school building in the center of the township. This is 3 miles from where the school is now being conducted in a crowded single room by two high school teachers and in one corner of the township.

Before deciding upon a plan for the building several township high school buildings of adjoining counties were visited. An effort was made to embody their best features in the plan for the new building, which will soon be completed. It contains two rooms, 28x30 feet, separated by a movable partition; a recitation room, about 15x19 feet, a wraproom and hall.

It is true, the cost of the building is adding some to the rate of tax, just as the construction of our pikes, ditches and other public improvements did and which are proving to be the making of our country. It seems we are living in an age of progress. Nearly all kinds of labor on the farm and elsewhere are performed differently from what they used to be. Greatly improved machinery and implements are used. The best are always sought. There is a similar demand for an improved system of education. The age in which we live requires it. If properly applied a good education will be conducive to the success of anyone, regardless of what vocation he may follow. There is no reason why the farmer and the farmer's wife should not have an education, just the same as their city cousins in some sort of business, or in a professional pursuit. While it is possible that some of our young people of the future will go to the city, as they have done in the past, yet it is believed that the greatest part of our high school pupils will remain on the farm, as they are doing in township high school districts of other parts of the state. To add to the attraction of farm life the study of agriculture has been placed in our high school course. It is not disputed that our township ranks amongst the best in the state from an agricultural standpoint. This is fully attested by referring to the county deed-record. From an educational standpoint, our standard has been rather low. We never had a sufficient number of school teachers to supply our own schools. With our fertile farms and excellent resources why not improve our standard of education so as to compare more favorably with our standard of agriculture?

In what could our people invest a similar amount that would better prepare our coming generations for the duties of life or add more to their convenience and general welfare? The cost of maintaining the school will scarcely be noticed. Then, too, it will be of easy access from all parts of the township. A stable and a shed for buggies has been built for those wishing to drive. In this manner all of our pupils can spend their evenings at home with their parents, and thus not be exposed to so many influences in cities and towns that are so liable to mislead them at this age. In sections where similar schools have been well tried they are approved by people in general. There is no doubt to those who have given the matter a thorough and impartial investigation that after our high school has been thoroughly tested through a course of years it will bring added blessings and a greater degree of usefulness to all who have been under its influence.

Samuel G. Sheets, an aged citizen of this township, died last week; funeral services from our Presbyterian church, conducted by Elder J. H. Christian.

The first lecture of the projected course will be given next Friday evening in our Armory hall. It is believed there will be a generous support of this venture.

Rev. C. Fulkerson is away several days this week attending District Conference at Jackson Center.

J. M. Moul is getting the hollow about his dwelling house pretty well filled.

The recent rains have laid the dust nicely and eased the corn-fodder so that husking can be done without loss of the beneficial part of the fodder.

Within the last few days the trees have been almost denuded of their foliage and present a sad-like appearance.

Hallowe'en was duly celebrated by our kids, who indulged in masquerading, the grotesqueness of which seemed quite amusing to a great many. The older ones went to the city to take in the sights enacted there, or indulge in displacing a few vehicles, &c. about our village. It seems to be a fact that some persons have no better way to distinguish themselves than by doing something of this kind.

Tomorrow will be election day and the best men will be elected as servants of the people. The labor pressing to be done may keep some voters from the polls.

MATRIMONIAL

"Oh, Mildred, I'm so glad you have called! I'm in great trouble. That dreadful husband of mine! Oh, my heart will break! I know it will!" Mrs. Mosely's young spinster friend closed the sitting room door of the pretty Kensington flat and prepared for a revelation of connubial tyranny and iniquity.

"Read that!" cried Mrs. Mosely, holding out at arm's length a newspaper with her thumb nail pressed viciously into one corner of an advertisement column and then bursting into fresh tears. Mildred Clark read as follows: "Matrimony.—Bachelor, thirty-six, going to the colonies, tall, dark, educated and well connected, with fair income, desires the acquaintance of a healthy, domesticated and refined young lady with a view to marriage. Address Carlo, Gulfport Chambers, Leadenhall Street, E. C."

"Why, your husband's offices are at Gulfport chambers!" "Yes—the monster! And he is thirty-six years of age and tall and dark, and he has had the brutality to use the pet name Carlo, by which I have always called him. Oh, the wretched bignamist!"

"But it is impossible that he can contemplate committing such a crime." "I am sure he is laid enough for anything. Only the day before yesterday, just because I said I wished I had never seen his face—he was so provoked in consequence of the eggs being boiled hard—he said that if I really meant it he would go ahead and start life again in one of the colonies. It shows that his mind was running on deserting me. Oh, Mildred, what can I do?"

"I hardly know, dear. It looks serious." "Have you any scheme in your mind, Mildred?" "Yes. First of all, we will answer the advertisement in person." "In person?" "Fortunately I have never yet succeeded in meeting your husband, so he doesn't know me. You shall accompany me as a friend, for propriety's sake, in disguise, you know." "An hour later two ladies were shown into the private office of Mr. Mosely. "Are you the gentleman who has advertised under the name Carlo?" asked Mildred. "Er—yes, but replies should be made by letter."

willing to marry me, to take out an English wife with me. I shall be able to produce satisfactory proofs, I think, of my position, good character and income.

"May I at least hope," he went on, "that you will give me some encouragement and that— Good heavens, my wife has fainted!"

He ran forward and caught her in his arms. The words "my wife" told Mildred in a flash that Mr. Mosely had known Ethel all the time in her disguise.

"Ethel, darling," he cried as his wife opened her eyes, "it's all a joke. I knew you all the time. The advertisement is for a friend of mine. How can you doubt my faithfulness, little wife?"

"Oh, Carlo! It isn't true, is it? You are not going to desert me, Carlo?" Mrs. Mosely asked.

"Principally by that uncomely bangle which you forgot to take off. I had been thinking what you would be likely to do if you happened to see the advertisement. Then the general public would not know that Carlo was likely to be found at Mr. Mosely's office rather than at one of the fifty other offices in this building. Finally you seem to have forgotten that, though I had never before met Miss Mildred Clark, her photograph is in your album."

"But I must ask you," said Mrs. Mosely severely, "to give me an explanation as to the real Carlo."

"He is an old schoolfellow of mine. We drew up the advertisement together, and I let him use this address. I adopted the word Carlo for the simple reason that one word would seem as well as another, and Carlo occurred to me first. The bachelor's name is Herbert Carter. You shall see him."

Mr. Mosely rang his bell. A tall and handsome man entered and was presented to the two ladies. "Miss Clark, I may tell you," said Mr. Mosely, "has called in reply to your advertisement."

Mildred blushed and attempted an indignant denial, but the curious fact remains that in the following month she went out to Australia as Mrs. Herbert Carter.—Philadelphia Item.

Had You Planned to do Any Papering?

Well, by far the most particular part of all your plans is to make sure that the right paper goes on the walls. The cost of the paper is worth considering—but style, newness, suitability is your main lookout. For it is quite possible for you to pay us 5c a roll and get new designs, while at other places you may pay as high as 40c a roll, and still have patterns away behind the times. The hint should be plain enough. We've a whole NEW stock to show you—a bright, dependable lot of paper. Wall paper that you can buy from in safety without knowing anything at all about Wall Paper quality. We are really anxious to have you see it, for we feel that we can make it profitable for you to do your buying here.
