Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

If People Only Knew.

A good many people do not realize that a really skillful specialist visits this county every month. You can get the same treatment you can get in a big sanitarium right at home. Dr. Kutechin has fitted himself, both in this country and Europe, to diagnose and treat obscure, difficult, chronic diseases.

Mrs. A. E. March of Jefferson, O., says, "Our son Don would have been dead before now if it had not been for Dr. Kutechin. For over a year we tried different doctors without benefit. He was very sick with stomach and nervous trouble and we had about given up all hope when we took him to Dr. Kutechin. He has gained sixty pounds since he began his treatment and is now about well. It is the chance of a lifetime to be treated by a doctor who cures his patients. His treatments are not expensive, they cost much less than a funeral."

Dr. Kutechin's next visit to Greenville, will be on Thursday, Aug. 24, at the Turpen House. Consultation, examination and advice free.

The Vacation Outfit.

Some time during this month most people run away for a little travelling, or a short stay at the shore, or inland, and it is always more or less of a question what to pack for these limited jaunts. No hard and fast rule can be made for the vacation outfit where perhaps one small trunk or a couple of suit cases must contain all the changes, but a few hints of things that other women have found right may be of use.

Silk Shirt Waists.

This year the regulation shirt waist, as much like the masculine garment as possible, is very smart if made of striped or plain China silk, and as these take practically no room, don't muss, are cool and nice looking and can be laundered in a wash bowl with cold water and soap, and need only to be pressed when dry with a warm iron, not a hot one, they are practical and easy to keep in order even if one is and materials. Something rain-proof is desirable though not necessarily rubber. Very smart coats are of checked Scotch tweed that sheds rain yet is warm enough for comfort when one feels the need of extra clothing in some of the sudden changes of temperature that frequently occur in travelling. Black and white checks with touches of bright red or royal blue or purple in the trimmings are liked by young and older women. Double linen coats with quiet outside color and rose, green or blue linings and trimmings, are excellent for motor trips, since they are dressy and dust does not penetrate them. A long wrap of black satin or unlined cloth or silk is nice to have packed with one's prettiest dress ready for emergency party wear, or one of the new little fussy coats of changeable taffeta that are cut off at the waist in front and in the back have long sash-like coat tails, and are used with all the sheer and delicate dresses. Slipped over an evening gown it becomes suitable for any semi-dress occasion. These youthful coats are extremely popular for veranda wraps between dances, though the various pretty scarfs are not yet out of the running.

Footwear.

Low shoes with matching hose are as usual much worn, but strange to say, this year there is a decided penchant for high but-toned shoes, especially in canvas and cravanettes. Probably it is a reaction from the totally unsuitable slipperlike shoes and gauzy stockings that have become too common to be liked by fastidious dressers. White canvas shoes and spats are worn even with serge tailormades and where the foot stands the prominence thus given it, these are decidedly attractive.

The Hat.

For short trips or continuous travel most people manage to dispense with the extra hat, but it becomes in this doubly important that the one hat should be stylish and becoming. One can always cover a travelling hat with the ample veil of automobile type, that everyone finds a necessity these days. One of the various folding hats or bonnets that will slip into the pocket of one's travelling coat is desirable if it can be had not only to save the better headwear but for comfort.

For Night Travelling.

For night use, a kimono of dark colored crepe cloth that takes the place of a lingerie gown, is convenient and good looking. This should have big pockets to slip the toilet articles into unless one carries a dressing case.

Fussy Dresses.

For the pretty dresses that are sure to be needed, some of the soft materials now so fashionable, like cotton Marquise, mull or crepe, are easily packed in small space, and foulard silks or taffetas shake out fresh and good looking after many packings. Each gown should have all its belongings carefully packed with it. A missing bow or belt has often been the cause of a most unhappy evening, for few women can enjoy themselves if conscious of something wrong in their toilet. VERONA CLARKE.

The Traveling Rig.

Few things have been smarter this year than the well made coat dress of linen, serge or mohair and any of these are admirably adapted to journeys, short or long. A few little gamps, with or without attached collars, and some side frills that can be pinned over on one side with a pretty stick or handy pin. The girls are all crazy over side frills, and are making them with colored hems and stitchery to match the pretty striped waists of dimity, muslin or silk that are all faddish.
