Today's Magazine is devoted to the greatest profession of all—the profession of being a woman—that is to say the business of being a wife, homemaker and housekeeper. In this magazine the housewife finds numberless ideas and suggestions for comfort, convenience, for economy, for betterment, for ideas that she can immediately put to work under her own roof. A far greater proportion of its pages is devoted to practical topics than any other leading woman's publication, and Today's is also the recognized headquarters for stylish and delightful stories. You may select your May Mantion pattern from your magazine by sending a postcard to Today's Magazine, Canton, Ohio, within 60 days after first copy is received.

For 34 years Farm and Home has been recognized as the leading National Magazine of Rural Life. Its past record is the best indication of its value. Its editors and contributors are all practical men and women—sons and daughters of the soil who give you facts and figures that enable you to profit from the successes and failures of others.
