George W. Caplinger, 14 years old, died of pneumonia last Thursday, and Wm. B. Bixler, 6 years old, died of diphtheria Saturday morning. Both boys were inmates of the Brethren Home, this city, and their remains were buried in West Branch cemetery.

December, 1915, was a very wet month here, with but one entirely clear day. There was rain on 15 days, being a total of 3 and 3-10 inches, the heaviest for December in nine years. The lowest temperature was 25 and 5-10 degrees, the highest 37 and 7-10 degrees, and the average 31 and 6-10 degrees.

Hal Robinson, a former Greenville boy, being a son of Luther Robinson, deceased, carpenter, died at Flint, Mich., of paralysis on Tuesday of last week. For several years he had been foreman of the paint shop of the Buick Automobile Co. of Flint, Mich. He was a son-in-law of Fred Huber of this city.

Mrs. Wils. Arnold, nee Gard, 72 years old, died Tuesday forenoon of heart trouble and pneumonia in her home on East Main street. Her husband, a daughter and a sister, Mrs. Harry Knox, survive her. At the hour of going to press the funeral arrangements had not been made, pending the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Knox from Washington City.

The members of the old board of complaints have been appointed as the new board of review, to which all complaints under the tax law must be submitted. They are V. E. Chenoweth of Glenkarn and D. E. Clark of Jackson township, Republicans, and B. T. Hughes, this city, Democrat. Their headquarters will be the county auditor's office and they receive $5 per day for each day they are actually in session.

Walter W. Braetchi, an employee of the Greenville Gravel Co., who resides at Fort Jefferson, had one of his feet crushed last Friday morning when he attempted to board a moving engine in the yard. His foot slipped and he fell, the engine passing over his limb and dragging him several yards before it could be brought to a stop. The injured man was taken to his home and it is thought the foot will have to be amputated. He is a married man, with one child.

A plea in abatement to quash the indictment against George Hughes has been filed by his father, an attorney, alleging that the boy was induced to go to a private room by two men of the State Fire Marshal's office and there forced to answer questions that were incriminating against him, further claiming he had no legal advice nor any rights in the examination, resulting in his being induced to sign a confession and that he answered the questions put to him by persuasion.

The daughters are Tressie and Catharine, living at home, and Mrs. Maud Morris of Bradford; the son is Frank C. Puterbaugh of near Dayton. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon and burial made in the Palestine cemetery.

The fair board held another meeting Monday in an effort to organize, which failed. The old members want all the offices and this the new members will not concede, contending the offices should be equally divided, but the old members will not even listen to this plan. As a compromise it was offered to divide them, giving the new members either the presidency and secretaryship, or vice presidency and treasurer, but no agreement could be reached. The new members are Theo. Finnarn, Boice Eidson, Tom Mitchell, C. F. Bliss and Charley Hall. The old members are George Worch, Ed. Ammon, J. E. Folkert, Lon Reed and Berman Smith.

Still Smashing Economy Pledge.

Washington, Jan. 12. (Special Correspondence.) It makes no difference to some Democrats whether the treasury deficit is a hundred and twelve millions or three hundred and twelve millions. It makes no difference to them whether preparedness is to cost ninetythree millions or a hundred and ninetythree. It makes no difference to them whether bonds are issued, the income tax increased, gasoline put under levy, or more stamp taxes provided. No matter what happens, some Democrats want their pork.

The House committee on rivers and harbors has a Democratic chairman, Mr. Sparkman of Florida. The committee on public buildings and grounds also has a Democratic chairman, Mr. Clark, who likewise hails from Florida. These two southern Democrats are meditating a raid on the treasury, Mr. Sparkman to tune of $120,000,000 and Mr. Clark for an unnamed total, which may amount to as much more.

They find many of their fellow-Democrats who will aid and abet them. With a record for extravagance made by the last Congress and recognizing that the next election will sweep the Democratic party from power for a generation, the Democrats are planning for one last grand plunge into the treasury for the benefit of crossroads southern hamlets which they propose to adorn with handsome federal buildings and for the benefit of insignificant creeks in southern states which they dream of making into useful waterways at government expense.

Thus far no Democratic voice of power has been raised against them. The President has shown great ingenuity in suggesting new forms of taxation to atone for the Democratic deficit in the treasury and to provide money for a programme of national defense which he has reluctantly and half-heartedly espoused. But the President has shown no courage in trying to head off the pork-hunters as they are stalking the agile appropriation to its lair.

In the last Congress the President vetoed no bill to take money from the treasury. The fight to beat the rivers and harbors bill received no encouragement from him; while he went the whole distance in trying to soak the treasury for $50,000,000 more to buy a fleet of government-owned steamships. The rivers and harbors bill was beaten by Republicans. So was the ship-purchase bill. It is probable that Republicans will again oppose these measures and that they will lend no assistance to a public building bill. But if the President and his party can stand for such things, with a bankrupt treasury yawning before them, why, ask some Republicans, should the minority exert themselves to save Democrats from their own folly?
