No 35.

Gettysburg.

Rev. H. Miller moved into J. H. Stoltz's property last Wednesday.

Rev. Dunlop and wife, evangelists closing their revival efforts here, left last Thursday morning for Wooster, O., where they will sojourn for a short time, conscious they did a great work here.

C. J. Miller, wife and children, visited D. Moul's family at Pleasant Hill yesterday.

Mrs. M. J. Coburn and Mrs. Dill returned home last Friday from their visit with John Moore's family at Pikeville.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated yesterday at our Presbyterian church.

The attendance at our M. E. Sunday school yesterday was 100 and collection $3.20.

It seems that February is giving us a frigid farewell. When March comes we may expect some cheerful weather and happy songs of birds.

A new man will hereafter supply this place with meat. Change seems to be the spice of life.

Last week seemed to be tobacco week here, and many car loads of the weed were shipped from this place.

A great many changes from residence to residence, and from farm to farm, take place about this time of year.

Dr. J. Vanlue moved his family into his newly acquired home recently bought of the heirs of Jacob Peiffer, and is now busy erecting an office for his business.

Preaching at the usual morning hour at our M. E. church on next Sunday.

A Christian Endeavor has been organized in our Presbyterian church, to meet every Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. May the young people of that church find it a good place to cultivate their gifts and improve their Christian graces.

Our township trustees met here today in regular session to transact routine business. It seems a vacancy in the board of trustees is about to occur by removal from the township, on account of which it will be incumbent on the oldest Justice of the township to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term.

The D. Moul Lumber Company's stock of lumber, hardware, paints, etc., was invoiced last week and delivered to the purchaser in the sum of about $15,000. New men will run that institution hereafter. It seems that much of our business is going into the hands of new men.

Indications are now that our carpenters will be our busiest people this season. Our contractors are getting in all the time the weather will permit on buildings and betterments, and now have work engaged that will employ their entire force until harvest or longer.

Admiral Fiske on Naval Defense.

The essential requirement of any defense is that it shall be adequate; because an inadequate defense will be broken down, while the attack will retain a large proportion of its original strength. In the United States Naval Institute, in 1905, the present writer showed, by means of a series of tables, how when two forces fight, the force which is originally the more powerful will become gradually more powerful, relatively to the weaker, as the fight goes on. That, for instance, if two forces start with the relative powers of 10 to 8, the weaker force will be reduced so much more rapidly than the stronger that when it has been reduced to zero the stronger force will have a value of 5.69. The values mentioned indicated the actual fighting strength—strength made up of all the factors—material, physical, and psychic—that constituted it. Of course, none of these factors can ever be accurately compared; but nevertheless the tables seemed to prove that in a contest between two forces whose total strengths are as 10 to 8 one force will be reduced to zero, while the other will be reduced not quite one-half.

Inasmuch as the psychic element in defense is the strongest single element, it is apparent that if the decision is reached to prepare an effectual defense the nation must be absolutely united, and must appreciate at its full value the debilitating influence of opposition to the measure; for, no matter how much money a nation may expend, no matter how many lives it may sacrifice, its defense cannot have an efficiency proportional to the effort if a considerable number of its citizens are permitted to oppose it.

In our own country there have been so much talking and writing recently about defense, that there is danger of the question coming to be considered academic; though no question is more practical, no question is more urgent.

Defense must defend.—Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske in The North American Review.

War Upon Pain!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkeley, Cal. writes: "Last Saturday, after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new." March, 1915. A Mint of Money.

The former director of the United States mint in Philadelphia, Mr. Landis, resigned after serving for twelve years. In commenting on the fabulous wealth that has passed through his hands Mr. Landis states that it consisted of $11,000,000 in cents, $19,000,000 in nickels, $65,500,000 in silver dollars, halves, quarters and dimes, and $372,000,000 in gold. The entire coinage totals $462,500,000. To give one a better idea of the quantity of this bulk, Mr. Landis said it would tax the capacity of 683 cars of twelve tons each. It would be impossible to haul this vast sum with fewer than eleven locomotives, which would mean that each would have to pull about sixtythree cars. These cars in one train would extend about ten miles. There was exactly $415,000,000 in coin and gold bullion in the mint when Mr. Landis turned it over to his successor. The largest amount at the mint at any one time in the last twelve years was $452,000,000.—Philadelphia Record.
