

BARTON COUNTY, KANSAS

T. H. BUTLER, Chairman.
WILL E. STOKES, Secretary.

WELCH says there were twenty barrels of beer drank at LaCrosse on the occasion of the harvest home picnic.

LET every democratic delegate in the county attend the convention, Saturday. The boys will see that you are entertained.

AFTER Saturday, the 14th, we hope to name to our readers the gentlemen who will look after the county business for the next two years.

EVERY democrat selected as delegate or alternate to the convention on Saturday of this week should make all reasonable efforts to attend.

WHISKY is going up in New York, says an exchange. In Kansas it is mostly going down, and as election time approaches there will be a regular waterfall of it.

ANOTHER good rain or two, and the wheat will slide into the ground by the thousands of bushels. From all indications a larger acreage will be sown this year than ever before in the history of the county.

THE first number of The National Democrat published and edited by Edmund Hudson, at Washington, D. C. is before us. It starts out as the right sort of a paper, and proposes to be aggressive in all things that are good for democracy.

WE this week publish, by request, the call for a union labor convention. Jake Deihl is gone, but Tom Brewer is here yet, and he proposes to get himself together and put a county ticket in the field. Tom would sleep better o' nights if he would let good enough alone and support the straight democratic ticket.

The destruction of the trusts will be one of the principal duties of the next congress.—Rush Center Gazette. Rep. "Trusts are largely private affairs, and should not be interfered with."—JIM BLAINE, republican god.

WHERE two such magnetic leaders as Bro. Russel, of the Gazette, and Mulligan Jim, clash in their opinions something awful will happen.

WE desire to congratulate our staunch democratic friend, Henry Block, of the Kendall Boomer, upon receiving the democratic nomination for register of deeds for Hamilton county. We know that Mr. Block is in every way qualified to fill the office, and hope he may succeed in capturing the requisite number of votes.

"HUNGER'S horror." "People starving." "Miners desperate." Such are the head lines that daily appear in the leading papers of the land. We thought the republican party promised that protection(?) would do away with all that kind of business. Truly the sort of protection(?) the workingman is receiving is hard on him and his family.

J. W. WARNER presented us with a sample of cheese he bought last Monday which was made at the Liverpool cheese factory, located thirty-two miles south of Kendall. The cheese is the best and most palatable we have ever seen here, and indicates what may be done on buffalo grass. In speaking with a farmer who lives near the factory we learn that the milk is brought to the factory at 9 o'clock each morning by the farmers who receive one cent a pound for it. The factory is proving a big thing for the neighborhood.—Kendall Boomer.

NOW IS THE TIME.

We have read somewhere the legend of one who, day-dreaming in his easy chair, beheld a vision which stood before him, a lovely form with winning mien, who stood before him and beckoned him to follow her to fortune. He waited, pondered, heeded not her call, until at last she grew weary and disappeared. Just as the vision faded he sprang to his feet and cried out: "Tell me, pray, who thou art?" And the answer came: "I am Opportunity; once neglected, I never more return."

To the weary toiler of the overcrowded east; to the man who has dug and delved for half a lifetime on a small plot of sterile soil and eked a meager livelihood; who has spent his days of vigor in accumulating a few hundred dollars to provide for his declining days; to all such men we say, if "Opportunity" has never before appeared to you, she is before you now. Kansas has proven herself superior to adversity. She has been tried in the fire of drought and the pestilence of insects, and comes out brighter and fairer and fuller of promise year by year. Thousands of hardy men are to-day rejoicing that they staked their little mite on Kansas soil, and have won. Figures will not lie, and the Kansas crop statistics for 1889 will show that in this one year she has raised sufficient wheat and corn to pay every cent of her mortgaged indebtedness and bread her people for another year.

In this particular part of Kansas, in Barton county, there are thousands of acres of productive lands that need the attention of industrious men, and they are the "Opportunity" which appears before you. No drones are wanted. No Shiftless mortals who drift from place to place, neither reaping good nor doing it, are welcome in Kansas; but bright, earnest, and ambitious men, who are willing to assist old mother earth, can win good homes amidst a people of enterprise, culture and refinement.

Men with a few hundred dollars can at all times find dissatisfied, weak-kneed, or roving mortals, who care not to stay more than a few years in a place, willing to dispose of their equity in the best lands on the green earth. Young men embrace this "Opportunity," she is as good as she is fair.

The Men Who "Get There."

It is stated by high agricultural authority that the average product of Kansas farms this season will represent a money value of $13 to the acre. The average yield of wheat to the acre will not fall below twenty-five bushels. At 50 cents a bushel, which is certainly a low estimate, the value to the acre would be $12.50. Assuming that corn will yield an average of fifty bushels and that it would bring 20 cents, the value to the acre would be $10. Oats will yield in Kansas eighty bushels to the acre and will bring at least 15 cents a bushel making $2.00 to the acre. These estimates, both as to yield and price, are liable to fall below rather than exceed the true figures, so that the claim of an average product of $13 to the acre is not far from correct. At any time within the past two years many of the farms which have made that much money this season for their owners, could have been purchased for $13 cash per acre. It is the man who stays by Kansas through wet and dry who gets there.—Dodge City Times.

WE sit in our den at midnight, while the clock is ticking away, and we think of the cash subscriber who had wandered in to-day. We ponder o'er all the good things that dollar "a half" will buy, and the joy that these thoughts bring to us gushes forth from our pale blue eye. How often, oh, how often, in the days that are to come, do we wish for the cash subscribers to bustle themselves and come! How often, oh, how often, as the weeks go moseying past, would we pray—if we only knew how to—that this "cash down" business would last. But alas! our heart is weary, likewise our alk-blue eyes; for few and far between meals, comes to us such glad surprise. Yes, we sit in our den at midnight, and scratch with our stubby pen, and long for the cash subscriber to wander in again; and we think mayhap some delinquent may want to witness our smile, and will struggle in on the morrow and swell our little pile.

THE result of the republican convention of last Saturday was no surprise to managers had it all fixed that way weeks ago. We have at this time no criticism to make of the ticket. The gentlemen named are most all pretty well known in the county. We believe, however, there is none of them as well qualified for the office to which they aspire as the gentlemen who have served you the last two years, and who are candidates for nomination before the convention coming Saturday. We hope the race will be a gentlemanly and respectable one, and that neither party will resort to mud-aling.

A GREAT FARMING STATE.

When in July the Kansas corn crop was estimated at 200,000,000 bushels the chronic pessimistic expressed doubt about the record crop of 196,000,000 bushels being exceeded. August, however, has been favorable in most of the counties and the abundant rains have caused the ears to fill out unusually well. A gentleman who is not prone to exaggeration and who has just made a tour of the state says that he would not be surprised at a harvest of 300,000,000 bushels. Everybody who comes in from extensive journeys through the corn counties reports that the yield will be something enormous. The condition seems to have steadily improved through August as the vigor of the plant began to show itself in the size of the ear.

To conservative minds an estimate of 300,000,000 bushels may seem out of the way, but sober reasoning puts it quite within the bounds of possibility. The crop of 196,000,000 bushels was made five years ago when McPherson was called a western grain county. It is safe to say that the area of thorough cultivation has increased one-third since then and the conditions of growth are at least as favorable as in 1884. While 300,000,000 bushels is an extreme estimate, there is really nothing to be astonished at if the result is a justification.

Suppose Kansas does harvest that amount of corn. Assuming that it will net the farmers 25 cents a bushel there is a vast sum of $75,000,000 to come into the state from one crop. Corn alone will pay interest, farm taxes and most of the mortgage indebtedness of the state falling due this year—perhaps all of it and leave a surplus. Then there are 35,000,000 bushels of wheat and the finest grass crops ever known in the state. The season begun with a fruit crop unprecedented in quantity and quality and has continued to favor everything except that the oats were slightly damaged by rain about harvest time.

This is a year of Kansas rejoicing and the era of complete success ought to be an era of good feeling. All the towns should have a season of trade equal to the farm yield. By this time western towns should have learned that fault finding with each other injures all and helps none. Standing up for one's own town is a good thing and standing up for all towns known by the world to be fed from the same sources is good also and shows a broader way of getting the confidence of emigration and capital. In union there is strength and a combination of interests is always more powerful than a free fight.

No state in the union so instantly responds to the effect of a good crop as Kansas, because in none does the cost of cultivation represent so small a proportion of the price received and in no other is the proportion of arable land so great. The Times has often pointed to this as a difference to be considered.

In recuperative power Kansas is the France of America. Counting corn, wheat, oats, sorghum, fruit and vegetables, stock, grass, dairy and poultry products and the rest it is not too much to say that the selling value of the output of Kansas this year will approximate $200,000,000. No wonder the English financier calls it the "Great Loan Land" and its people are bold and confident about their future. A little irrigation and better revenue provisions for its towns will make it still better.—Kansas City Times.

A Tramp's Perception.

The tramp is generally an observing fellow; and he sometimes possesses one of those very useful parts of physical organism called a heart. The other evening as we were wending our zig-zag way to the office, after filling up a watermelon and hopes of business prosperity, a dirty vagabond of the genus hobo accosted us as follows: "Say, mister, I'm hunting for a job in this town, and my shoes and pants are so badly used up I'm not sufficient-ly presentable to make the right sort of an impression to secure the kind of a position my qualifications and tastes render if proper for me to fill. If you could piece me out with a pair of discarded shoes and some pants that are not too well ventilated, I would be infinitely obliged, and when I get a position of trust and profit I would pay you for them."

We thought he had approached us as a gentleman and we answered him candidly, telling him that the only pants-legs and shoes we had a legal right and title to, were the ones that encased our girth limbs. The tramp here exhibited his forensic abilities by observing that we "Must be a newspaper editor." Upon our modestly assenting, he retorted: "Then, mister, I'm sorry I detained you, for I have nothing to give you, not even an item. But I assure you, you have my heartfelt sympathy."

FROM NEIGHBORING TOWNS.

Ellinwood Items.

From the Advocate.
Hurrah for Ellinwood, Lakin township, Barton county and everybody!
Those who were present at the dance in Iten's grove report a pleasant time.

Another fine rain blessed this county on Wednesday. "A rain in time saves nine."

More teams were in town Saturday than any one day previous for two years, in consequence more business was done.

Wednesday morning Gus Henning had a misfortune happen him, in which he lost a finger. He had it caught in some chains while moving a threshing.

Our enterprising merchant, V. S. Musil, has blue grass in his yard which is 7 feet high and that being the second cut. This shows what irrigating does in Kansas.

The other day as we were driving in the country, we noticed so many new buildings that it was astonishing to us. Upon inquiring we were informed that they were granaries, built to hold the immense crops of this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Huttman desire to return thanks to those who kindly rendered their assistance in the last illness of John Erpelding, especially those who contributed the flowers. Also for the kindly assistance of Messrs. Voigt and Hotchkiss.

J. W. Wallace, of Garden City, was in town the past week, and made this office a very pleasant call. Mr. Wallace is Mayor of Garden City and is here organizing a new society, known as "The Modern Woodmen of America."

Hoisington Notes.

Work on quite a number of buildings will be commenced in a short time.

A great deal of mortgage indebtedness in Barton county is being paid off this year.

93 pupils were enrolled in our public schools the first day. It is thought that the enrollment will reach 140 or 150 before the holidays.

With wheat yielding from 25 to 60 bushels per acre, and oats from 60 to 80 bushels, the farmers will manage to rub along until they harvest the corn crop.

The Mo. Pacific claim adjuster is here to-day looking after the claims made by those who lost by the recent fire. The claims will be adjusted without trouble.

The festival given Saturday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the ladies aid society of the Christian church was quite well attended. About $13 dollars was cleared.

Hoisington should have a public library and reading room. It would afford an excellent place to drop in and spend an hour or an evening and would add to the moral culture of the town.

The question of erecting a new school house or building an addition to the present one is being agitated. The building as it now stands is not sufficient for the number of pupils in the district. If a new building is erected it should be one that would be an ornament to the town and furnish sufficient room for a number of years to come.

Lincoln Township Items.

John Keeney has built a new pasture fence; he thinks if the family increases there will be need of more grass.

Messrs. Smith and Miller have been making some splendid improvements on their farms; they have each built a new granary and have them filled to the brim with wheat.

Last Sunday while the little daughter of William Curtis was playing, it was scratched by a mad cat. They immediately took the child to the doctor, and was told there was no danger.

Thursday evening, Aug. 29th, the young folks round about Seward, attended the ball at that place, which they said was the best ball they had attended for some time. Messrs.

Morgan and Butler from Great Bend furnished the music.

Pawnee Rock.

From the Leader.
Scott Payton bought the Jaison Lewis farm a few days ago.

W. E. Parks, brother-in-law of Chas. Pitts, has rented the F. P. Cline farm in Clarence township.

Mr. David Wilson and wife went east on Tuesday for a two month's visit in Indiana.

Chewing gum has met with a veto at school this week. Good beginning. Hope the vetoing will spread.

Mr. Gast, living 5 miles west, says he raised 1,200 bushels of corn last year, 1,200 the year before and that he will have a full crop this year.

Dr. M. L. Daniels has been appointed as one of the pension examining board, said board to be located at Great Bend.

S. B. Gates returned from Milwaukee Sunday night. He reports a fine time, and says it took over four hours for the parade to pass. He tells us that he can fully appreciate Kansas now that he has seen the eastern states. Kansas, in his estimation is far ahead of any state that he passed through.

The Pawnee Rock schools opened up on Monday with H. W. Kelley of Lyons as principal and Miss Edna Ivens, of Great Bend, as teacher of the primary department. The enrollment was quite good, and the indications are, that we will have a good school.

Miss Katie Markey is visiting Miss Nellie Clancy north of Great Bend this week.

The young people enjoyed a pleasant time at A. Purcell's one evening last week.

Will Lamb who has been sojourning in Mo. for the past year, returned home last Friday, which proves that where Barton county is once visited it cannot be forgotten.

Our City School Superintendent.

From the Russel Journal of the 4th inst. we get the following complimentary notice of the work of Prof. Wm. Reese, in that county:

"The session of the Russel county normal institute which closed last week was one of the most successful ever held in the county. The instructors were the best that could be secured. Prof. Bickerdyke and Parke were well known and good work was expected of them. Prof. Reese was a stranger to most of the teachers, but a month's association with him proved the wisdom of the county superintendent in securing him as one of the instructors. He gave several interesting lectures during his stay in the county and made hosts of friends.Prof. Reese closed his labors with the Institute Thursday, and before adjourning the Institute passed the following resolution:

"Resolved; That we, the members of the Russel County Institute assembled, do extend our heartfelt thanks to Prof. Reese for his great interest in the Institute and for his efforts in behalf of the teachers, as well as the skill he has shown in conducting recitations."

Anti-Trust and Monopoly Convention.

There will be a mass convention at Great Bend, on Saturday, Sept. 28th, 1889, at 2 p. m. of men of all political parties who have become tired of having laws passed in favor of the few at the expense of the many; of men who know that the wealth producer is as good as the wealth gatherer; of men who have become tired of fattening beef and pork for a few cents per pound to get a few dollars to pay interest and taxes, at the same time living on the husks while the other man eats the meat; of men who have become tired of giving one third of all they raise to the rail road to haul the other two thirds to market; who believe that all men are born free and equal; of men who believe that no man can become a millionaire in a lifetime unless he steals it from the men who produce it.

This convention is called to put in nomination candidates for sheriff, clerk, register of deeds, coroner, and commissioner for the third district. Let every one turn out who believes that corruption in high places makes slaves of the many. Come out all who believe in protecting their homes and families. Turn out and show to the world your manhood, and that you can neither be bought or sold. Speak out boldly for yourselves, your families, your God and your country.
