

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It cleans the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

ENDED ALL SHOW OF DIGNITY

Mr. Newlywed's Extremely Modern Form of Introduction Broke the Ice at Once.

They had been married only two weeks and were going to spend the evening with friends. They were to meet friends of their friends there. It was expected that there would necessarily be a show of dignity when the bridegroom and the bride arrived. All of the company was there and sitting around looking its sweetest. A bride always makes dignity essential.

It happened that the bridegroom was the particular friend of the host. The latter never met the bride. She was coming into an entirely new circle. It was expected that when the Newlyweds arrived that Mr. Newlywed would stammer and blush when he introduced Mrs. Newlywed as his wife. Not so for this boy. He sauntered in preceded by the dignified bride. Everybody in the parlor bristled up. But it wasn't to be a bristling affair at all. Mr. Newlywed simply swept around, caught the host by the arm and led him before the bride.

"Dave, meet the old lady," he said. Dignity exit. Everybody laughed and got acquainted in a hurry. The good-natured introduction of the host to the bride loosened up the strings of social stress. "The old lady" found herself among friends.

LIBERALITY IN MORAL CODE.

Too Many of the Great Financiers of To-Day Are Believers in the Idea of the Brazilians.

Joseph Widener, a young Philadelphia millionaire, was entertaining a party of Anglo-Americans at luncheon at the Ritz, in London.

The day was mild and sunny, and the French windows of the beautiful restaurant stood open on the green park and Piccadilly. A limousine glided swiftly past Devonshire's house, a well-known American millionaire sat in the sumptuous car, and Mr. Widener, nodding toward the man, said to his neighbor:

"That is Bonna. He made 19 millions last year."

"Is he honest?" the neighbor, an Englishman, inquired. Mr. Widener laughed.

"Well, Lord John," he replied, "Bonna's moral code resembles that imputed to the Brazilians. It—er—is liberal. It countenances many shady things."

"In Brazil, you know, in introducing a friend to your banker, in recommending him to a business associate and so forth, you show the highest confidence in him—a confidence that can go no further—when you say:

"This is my friend. For all he steals I will be responsible."

Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. Henry Wildgen, and Harry Wildgen were over from Hoisington Saturday.

Put White, for years a resident of this county, now residing in Larned, was a visitor to this city Friday last.

Had to Use Long Hand.

"To take down dozens of letters in long hand is a queer experience for an expert stenographer," said the New York young man with a pencil and note book. "But that was what I did when I held a hospital position. The letters were written for the charity patients. My work was supposed to be confined to the superintendent's office, but when a man too ill to write his own letters expressed a wish for an amanuensis I was put on the job owing to my facility for picking up and transcribing languages. Almost a third of the letters I wrote in the wards were taken down in long hand. Many of the patients of Polish and Russian birth had a dread of shorthand. As soon as they saw I was dealing in mysterious dots and dashes they got scared. They felt sure that I could not report them properly by means of signs and they began to fidget, so in order to pacify them I wrote out the message in long hand right under their eyes."

Rats Killed the Snake.

Two big gray rats fought a battle with a rattlesnake the other day and the rat won. The snake was purchased by a grocery firm in Dalton, Ga., for a window display and two big rats were obtained as food for the snake. When the rats were placed in the cage with the snake it made no effort to molest them. A crowd gathered to witness the snake eat the rats, but it was over an hour before the rattler moved to attack. The rats showed fight from the start. While the snake was after one the other would be plunging its teeth into the snake's body. After an hour the snake succumbed. One rat was nearly dead, while the other apparently was unharmed. As a tribute to its valor, the unharmed rat was released. The rattler measured seven feet in length.

Shows Value of Advertising.

Some idea of the enormous sums spent annually for advertising purposes along Broadway may be gained from the statement that a certain firm has offered $60,000 a year for the exclusive use of a tall illuminated tower overlooking Times Square. This is by no means a record figure, however, in a district where blank wall space capable of bearing an ordinary painted sign rents for $100 a month or more.

L. G. Mausolf, the Albert grain man, was in the city Saturday evening.

Ab Pursell and family were up from Hutchinson the past week visiting relatives.

Otis Evers claims he does not know anything about it, but the facts are his family has been increased by the addition of a fine little girl. Otis' innocence is for the purpose only of avoiding the jolly of the boys.
