Henry Boese of Dundee is liable to lose the sight of one eye as the result of a blow he received some time ago from a flying stick of wood. The wound was not painful at first, but as weeks passed the eye grew no better and he was compelled to seek medical aid. It is doubtful whether he did so in time or not.

A New Firm.

Chas. Fankhauser and George Koopman have recently purchased the retail interests of the F. Nuttleman Mfg. Co. and will continue the business.

They will be located in the building formerly occupied by the Electric Light Plant on Williams Street.

They will do a general line of plumbing, repair and tin work.

Mr. Fankhauser has been interested for several years in the Nuttleman Co. and Mr. Koopman has been an employee of these people for a long time.

These boys understand the business thoroughly and will, no doubt, be very successful in their venture.

ELIJAH APPEARS IN ISRAEL

Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 5, 1911
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 17. Memory Verses 14-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—"They that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing."—Psa. 34:10.

TIME—Elijah lived during the reigns of Ahab in Israel, and Jehosaphat in Judah, and their successors B. C. 850-800 (or Assyrian, 850-857).

PLACE—Various places in the kingdom of Israel. He probably first met Ahab in Samaria his capital. Cherith was a brook in a ravine, flowing into the Jordan on the East. Zarephath was a town in Phenicia between Tyre and Sidon, Sea-ports on the Mediterranean.

It was a dark day for Israel when Jezebel "set herself, with her husband's tacit connivance, to extirpate the religion of Jehovah from the land of Israel, and to substitute in its place open and avowed paganism—the worship of Ashtoreth and of Baal. Splendid shrines were built, especially one of vast size in the capital; and the rites and ceremonies of the new cult were exhibited on a grand scale, with sensuous accompaniments of all kinds—music, statuary, processions of robed priests, victims, incense, bands of fanatics worked up to frenzy by religious excitement, and the like." They had "forsaken thy covenants, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword."

A brave, strong prophet dared to stem the tide alone. And he dared because he knew that God had commanded him, and stood with him, and worked through him. It is probable that Elijah belonged to the northern kingdom but was living in Gilead, and that the parents of Elijah, or Elijah himself when a young man, had gone from Galilee to Gilead to escape the persecutions of the Baaltes, and its dangerous moral deterioration. Reared amid exalted and solemnizing scenes, the young prophet must have meditated long on the glorious past of his country, and must have been filled with horror as tidings came of the introduction of ranker heathenism, of Jezebel's abominations, the fierce cruelties and reeking licentiousness of Ahab's idolatrous capital. Indignation burned within him like the flames of Vesuvius or Martinique, till it suddenly burst forth upon the king and his court.

The word of the Lord came unto him. In what way we do not know. Perhaps in the ways His word comes to us. Perhaps in more vivid ways. But in either case he became sure that it was God's word. After the announcement of the famine three and a half years slowly passed away before Elijah again appeared before the king. But the silent work of these years was as essential as the announcement.

Having taken one course of lessons, God sends Elijah to another school. This was best not only that Elijah might learn other lessons, but in order that he might be safer. Ahab was seeking everywhere for him. But he kept outside of Ahab's dominion. Every town, large or small, required in those times a wall for defense. His first need after his long walk through the famine-stricken land would be water. The gift of water to the thirsty is always regarded as a sacred duty in the East. Note the wisdom of this way of becoming acquainted, by asking a simple favor; as Christ asked the Samaritan woman for a drink from the well. As she was going to fetch the water, Elijah called to her, and said: "Bring me a morsel of bread." This, too, was a modest request.

This would have been selfish had not Elijah known that the meal and oil would not fail. The request was also, for the widow, an education in faith. "According to your faith be it done unto you." All through the remaining years of the famine, she would need this training, as day by day she cooked the last visible handful of meal, and used the last drops of the oil. She as a widow may have needed the same faith for years to come.

The widow's faith was still further rewarded during Elijah's stay. One day her young son sickened and died. In the bitterness of her grief she cried out upon the prophet, thinking that his presence had directed God's special attention to her house, and this calamity had been sent her in punishment for her sins. Thereupon Elijah carried the lad to his own upper chamber, and stretched himself upon him as if to impart his own vitality, imploring God for his life. And God heard him; the soul returned to the boy's body and he was delivered to his rejoicing mother, who testified eagerly her faith in the prophet as a man of God, and her faith in the divine messages he uttered.

Elijah suffered with the people. The reformer, the preacher, must partake of the sufferings of those whom he would help. Like Christ, he must be "tempted like as we are, yet without sin." He must gain the victory in the same kind of battles, and learn lessons in the same schools.

He "learns that the mightiest of God's servants are just as dependent upon Him in every way as the humblest and weakest of His people."

All these experiences were preparing Elijah for his great work of reform. Every act of guidance from God, every strange experience unexpectedly working out good, every promise fulfilled, every prayer answered, culminating in the raising of the dead boy to life, increased the prophet's faith, strengthened his courage for the time when he must "beard the lion in his den," and arouse a whole people to new life.
