OFFICIALS SEE AMPLE REVENUE.

Treasury Department Not Fearful of The New Schedules in Force.

Washington, Oct. 4.—With the new Democratic tariff law consummated, activity today was transferred to the treasury department where Secretary McAdoo began development of a plan of enforcement. Treasury officials declare the new act will be the lowest tariff law in the country's history, with the possible exception of the Walker tariff of 1846 and its amendatory tariff of 1857. With President Wilson and the Congressional framers of the law, they declared it was "a competitive tariff," and freely expressed the conviction that business would be invigorated and sustained through its operations. Officials were equally confident that it would afford the government ample revenue.

It is roughly estimated that $100,000,000 worth of merchandise, held in bond, soon will be withdrawn, and payment made under the new law. Compared with the Payne-Aldrich act, this will mean a loss of $10,000,000 to the government. Treasury officials maintained these withdrawals would have no perceptible effect upon the business of the country.

The most difficult administrative feature is the income tax provision. This entirely new venture will require the work of experts to draft a workable plan that will insure the government receiving its lawful dues from every taxable citizen. William H. Osborn, commissioner of internal revenue, today began the task of formulating as simple a plan as possible.

L. F. Speer, of Bangor, Pa., who is at present chief of the corporation tax dividend of the treasury department, it is believed will be appointed deputy commissioner of internal revenue in immediate charge of the income tax.

Secretary Bryan today endorsed the new tariff law as the best tariff measure since the Civil war and he predicted the early passage of the currency bill.

"All who have taken part in preparing and passing it are entitled to great credit," said Mr. Bryan in a statement. "It is a better bill than we were able to pass twenty years ago, and I rejoice that political conditions are such as to make the present law possible."

"The Wilson bill was compelled to carry a burden that will not fall upon the present law and ought not to have fallen on that law. The Wilson law provided for an income tax, which was held unconstitutional by a divided vote, the one majority having been secured by a change of opinion on the part of one judge between the two hearings of the case. The nullification of the income tax portion of the Wilson law reduced the government's income until it would not meet the expenses of the government and this compelled an increase of indebtedness that threw upon the bill an undesired odium, which, together with the fact that the Senate deprived the bill of some of its best features, robbed the party of the benefits which would ordinarily have come to it from a reduction in import duties. Then, too, the bill went into operation at a time when financial conditions were very bad, and many attributed to the law the defects for which it was not at all responsible."

"I mentioned the law of nineteen years ago, because it is the only thing since the war with which we can compare the present law. Both economic as well as political conditions make it possible to do now the things which could not be done at that time."

New York, Oct. 4.—The first effect of the new tariff to which President Wilson's signature was written last night was seen early today when the clerical force at the customs house was increased by fifteen men in anticipation of one of the busiest days in the history of this port.

In no customs district in the country will there be greater activity during the first few days of the new tariff than at the port of New York, for in the 48 bonded ware houses of the port there is over $70,000,000 worth of goods awaiting withdrawal. There is almost every conceivable thing in the ware houses, but the chief things are cotton, linen, woollens, furs, silks, nuts, leather goods, dried fruits, pickled fish and dried tobacco.

The people are always optimistic and think the next crop will be a big one and a little thing like ten or a dozen crop failures doesn't dampen their ardor one bit. CARR-SMITH.

The month of June is fast being supplanted by October as the popular time of the year for the joining of hearts and hands at the marriage altar. Last evening the marriage of Miss Cleo Smith, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith, to Mr. Guy A. Carr was solemnized at the M. E. church at Larned in the presence of but a few of their relatives. Following the marriage service the young couple boarded No. 5 for Colorado where they will spend their honeymoon.

It is a pleasure to chronicle the marriage of such worthy young people. The bride is one of our choicest young ladies, born and raised in our midst, honored and loved alike by old and young. She has been a bright star in the home circle and now she has gone to reign as queen in her own home. She is a young lady who is capable of filling the home she will adorn with happiness and will prove to be truly a helpmate and companion to the young man she has honored with her hand. Mr. Carr is a resident of the Radium district, and while we cannot claim an acquaintance, those who know him speak in the highest possible terms of him as a young man of industry and thrift. Upon their return they will go to housekeeping on the groom's farm four miles southwest of Radium.

This paper waits to them its warmest congratulations.—Pawnee Rock Herald.

MRS. JOSEPH WURM.

The sad death of Mrs. Josephine Wurm occurred at her home in Rice county, Thursday evening, Sept. 25th, at 5:45, after a lingering illness of a serious nervous disorder, and at the time of her death was 25 years, 6 months and 16 days of age.

Mrs. Wurm had suffered from a nervous disorder for more than a year and for the past four weeks was unconscious and medical aid was of no avail and her death was not unexpected.

Mrs. Wurm was the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Zirnich of the south side, and was born on March 3rd, 1888, and was raised in that community. On November 22, 1905, she was married to Mr. Joseph Wurm, of the north side, when eighteen years of age. To this union three children, all boys, were born to bless them, Arthur, aged 7, Leonard, aged 4, who are living and Lawrence, who died in infancy. Besides her husband and two children, she leaves her mother, one brother and four sisters.

She was a loving mother and of a quiet disposition and was well liked by all who knew her best and her death is sad, owing to the fact that she leaves her two small children motherless.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the St. Josephs Catholic church in this city. Father Bast, of St. Peter & Paul conducting the services. Burial was made in the Ellinwood cemetery.

The family have the deep sympathy of the entire community in the great loss they have sustained.—Ellinwood Leader.

MRS. ROSE SEWING.

Rica Rose Sewing was born near Ellinwood, Barton County, Kansas, December 27, 1877, and departed this life at her home near Macksville, September 25, 1913.

She leaves a husband and five children, three girls and two boys, a father, mother, six brothers and three sisters. She has been a member of the German Evangelistic church for nine years. Funeral services were held at the home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Elder Rains officiating, and interment made in the Macksville cemetery.

The death of Mrs. Sewing was a very sad one as her twin boys were but a few hours old. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Giehrst have taken one of the babies and will adopt it and the parents of Mrs. Sewing have taken the other. The husband has the sympathy of everyone in his bereavement.—Macksville Enterprise.

Joe Sprinker returned Saturday after a ten days visit with his son, Harry, in Kansas City. Harry is a student in a Business College in Kansas City and Mr. Sprinker says he is getting along fine. While in the city, Joe met several of the old time hunters who used to come to Ellinwood every fall after ducks, geese and chickens and had a fine visit with them, and says they surely entertained him in royal style.—Ellinwood Leader.

Elmer Dale was over from the east side yesterday looking around for some young stock. He recently sold a hundred head of heavy cattle and says he must find something to eat up his supply of hay.—St. John County Capital.

POINTS ON IRRIGATION.

—From the Dodge City Journal.
Down at Hutchinson they have what they call Davy Crockett's casing for irrigating wells.

Mr. Crockett was an experienced irrigation man from California who undertook to develop an irrigation plant on the state reformatory farm.

When he took charge of the irrigating at the Reformatory he had a well dug which was eight feet in diameter and twenty-five feet deep. He found that he could pump this hole dry with a draught of 500 gallons a minute, and he computed that in order to keep a 2000-gallon pump supplied he would have to dig a well with a diameter of 150 feet.

This was impractical. He studied the underflow of the Arkansas river. He found that while there was an immense amount of water in the sand and gravel it flowed into the hole at the rate of about eight feet an hour, not sufficient for a high power pump, and he drew plans for a casing which has become a success.

Mr. Crockett's casing is of ordinary black iron piping, about ten inches in diameter and bored full of five-sixteenths of an inch holes about 4 inches apart. There are 2300 holes in a length of ten feet of pipe. He had a blacksmith bore them at a cost of 75 cents a foot. This pipe was sunk to a depth of 28 feet into the sand, and after it was in place the bottom of the pipe was plugged up with a half sack full of cement and gravel which was dropped through the pipe into the water at the bottom. The cement set and acted like a perfect seal, and the pipe was then threaded and connected directly with the centrifugal pump. When the latter was set in motion it created a vacuum in the pipe and forced the water to flow into the pipe from all sides through the perforations.

No matter how fast the engine was kept going, the pipe always had an abundance of water to keep the big pump supplied. It was a new idea, and one that will have much to do with future installation of pumping stations in Kansas and the southwest.

At the reformatory it was shown that about 50 acres can be irrigated economically with the present equipment, though when the land is leveled up about 100 acres could be watered. A large traction engine is used for motive power. About 2,000 gallons a minute can be pumped under favorable conditions. Cost of operation is a ninth gallon of solar oil per hour at a cost of 6.4 cents per gallon. The lift is eight feet. Garden and field crops are irrigated on the farm, including 14 acres of alfalfa, 20 acres of potatoes, 6 acres of sweet potatoes, and 6 acres of garden truck. The strong points of Mr. Crockett's casing are that it saves the cost of installing a double casing, as is usually done in wells sunk in the sand, and that the water supply will always be adequate.
