I found myself frequently lingering among the relics of the early days of our country. I saw on exhibition three pieces of artillery that were captured from the British during the revolutionary war; a link of the chain that was stretched across the Hudson river to prevent the British fleet from passing; the knee straps, or garters, worn by George Washington at Braddock's defeat; Washington's spurs, pruning knife, Masonic apron, field compass, and many other relics of the Nation's ancestors. There were also relics of the ill fated "Jeannette," among which were cooking utensils found in the snow where the dead bodies were disinterred; Delong's rifle found on the tent pole above the snow, same place; the fur suit worn by Melville when searching for the lost crew, etc. I have barely space to mention the excellent display of statuary and painting on exhibition. To say that they were superb would be but mildly expressing their gorgeous grandeur. I have no artistic eye myself but was informed by good authority that there were paintings there valued at $10,000, though I would take the valuation in preference to the painting.

The bicycle performance on Thursday, the 20th, was interesting, because of the novel sight presented by over two hundred men and boys, each astride a bicycle, gliding noiselessly over the smoothly paved streets. Next was competitive drill by the different commanders of the Knights Templar, of this city, New York, Baltimore, and Philadelphia. There were over one thousand in number in gaudy uniforms, making a grand display. Last came the military display which was a reminder of the war days, and I was glad it was only for show and not a reality again. But I must mention before closing, the snow which fell last week to the depth of twelve inches or more, making merry times, as every body and his girl seemed to be out enjoying a slide.

Last Thursday, Jan. 11th, was a grand gala day in the city. The city authorities withdrew the penalty for fast driving for one hour, between four and five p. m., and a great many fast horses and fast young men were out for a good time, and if fast driving over a good road means a good time, they certainly had it. Thousands of people lined the side walk on Pennsylvania avenue to witness the carnival. As the pension office is on Pennsylvania avenue and as the hour for the carnival and the hour for closing the office was the same, of course I took in the sight. I may be heard from again. W. H. E.

HERE is a remark of "Gath's" that is true as gospel, and is good gospel too: "A woman with nothing to do is always in danger, and a man with nothing to do is necessarily a second-rate."

Persons in need of anything in our line will save money by giving us a call before purchasing elsewhere, as we shall endeavor to please our customers both in price and workmanship.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Another Column of Racy Comment From our Capital Correspondent.

Special Correspondence of the REGISTER.

When I wrote last I promised to give you some items with reference to the Garfield Fair, which was then in session; so I will endeavor, even at this late day, to make good my promise. "Uncle Sam" gave all his clerks a half holiday on the opening day of the fair, which we all regarded as very considerate. Among many others I availed myself of the opportunity of seeing the opening exercises which took place at 2 p. m. Promptly at the hour appointed, while the band played "Hail to the chief," President Arthur made his appearance, and in a few, well chosen words, declared the formal opening accomplished. He was accompanied by the chief justices, cabinet officers, members of congress, and several of the generals of the army, also a number of the naval officers in full uniform. I recognized Gen. Sherman, and Logan among the number. The rotunda was densely packed with a representative class of people, for truly every class of humanity was represented from the highly honored statesman down to the humblest citizen. It would be the greatest presumption for me to undertake to give you anything like a description of the display made there, or the many devices there arrayed to catch the loose change a person happened to have with him. Several of the different states had separate booths where they displayed their wares. I think I can truly say that Kansas attracted more attention and called forth more comment than any other state. The display from Kansas consisted chiefly of her own productions, such as apples, pears, cereals and grasses. A stalk of rice corn, resembling our crooked top sugar cane, or sorghum, with a small bit of prairie grass tied near the top with a blue ribbon not more than six inches long, found ready sale at twenty-five cents each, and some of the largest ones sold as high as forty and fifty cents. But I cannot enter into detail, for I must mention some of the more attractive features of the fair as it appeared to me.

I found myself frequently lingering among the relics of the early days of our country. I saw on exhibition three pieces of artillery that were captured from the British during the revolutionary war; a link of the chain that was stretched across the Hudson river to prevent the British fleet from passing; the knee straps, or garters, worn by George Washington at Braddock's defeat; Washington's spurs, pruning knife, Masonic apron, field compass, and many other relics of the Nation's ancestors. Iola Pump & Scab Co.

Iola, Kas., Feb. 21, 1882.

STATE Superintendent Speer has our thanks for his third biennial report.

KANSAS will have eighteen delegates at the next Republican National convention.

THE new law reducing letter postage to two cents goes into effect January 1st 1883.

GUSTAVE DORE, probably the most popular and best known of French painters, is dead.

PLUMB's majority in the house was 58, and in the Senate, with one exception, the vote was unanimous.

Two Americans were killed recently in Madagascar by the natives, and the government has dispatched a vessel to look into the matter.

THE Democratic press is beginning to hint that "in certain contingencies," Ben Butler might be a formidable candidate for the presidency.

NEBRASKA must have been devoting her spare time very diligently of late, to the production of statements, the pending senatorial election having called out twenty-nine candidates.

TOPEKA papers say that the citizens of that village are pinching themselves to see if there has really been a senatorial election there. The Capital remarks that the only investigating committee in order will be one to find out who was running against Plumb.

SINCE John Martin has been appointed Judge of the Topeka district it is to be hoped he will re-read Governor Glick's message and resign his position as chairman of the Democratic State Central committee. "The Judiciary must be separated from politics."

ALBERT GRIFFIN, of the Manhattan Nationalist, bravely says that "two years hence the temperance and prohibition sentiment in this State will be stronger than it would have been had St. John been elected. His defeat had the same effect on the temperance people that cold water has on a sleepy boy."

DISPATCHES from the Mexican State of Chihuahua, state that thirteen hundred Apache Indians have crossed over from Arizona and are devastating the smaller villages and towns. If Mexico was strong enough to hold us to account for the action of the Nation's wards, we would have a heavy bill to pay.

WHILE playing "King Lear" at Berlin recently, Edwin Booth was called before the curtain eighteen times. Mr. Booth speaks nothing but English and no higher tribute could be paid to his wonderful acting than that his delineations are felt and appreciated by those who cannot understand a word that he says.

THE Republicans of the state should take off their hate to the Democratic members in both houses of the legislature who had the strength to vote for Senator Plumb. It was a graceful thing to do, and shows that the men who did it, hold the will of their constituents above their own party prejudice.

PROMPTNESS is not the usual failing of legislative bodies, and the second session of the forty-seventh congress doesn't seem to be an exception to the rule. When the Senate was called to order the other day, Butler, of South Carolina, was the only senator present. The Vice President said: "The senator from South Carolina will come to order." After prayer, Butler moved a call of the Senate.

THE Inter-Ocean gently remarks that Iowa is overwhelmingly Republican, has a school house on every hill-top, and owes a debt of over $20,000,000, and has a treasurer running away with half a million of the people's money about his clothes. A Democratic exchange speaks of "the honesty and integrity of the great national Democratic party," and we give Iowa and Tennessee as reference in illustration.

It seems very easy to inspire a "reasonable doubt" in the minds of a Missouri jury in a murder case. The Kansas City saloon keeper who shot and killed a policeman who was trying to arrest him last summer, has just been acquitted; while Frank James has been acquitted of two charges for murder and one for train robbery, and is now out on $3,500 bail to await trial on another count that will doubtless be as much of a farce as the others have been. Our sister state is very slow to infringe on the "personal liberty" of her citizens.

THE Democrats in the Ohio legislature refused to join in a vote of thanks to Senator Pendleton for his services in securing the passage of the civil service reform bill. That party is in a good deal the same mood over this civil service matter as the little girl who was offered her mother half of her orange, but began to cry as soon as the offering was accepted. On being asked the reason, she sobbed out, "I thought you would thank me and call me an unselfish little girl, and give me back the orange!" The Democratic party did not expect to be taken at its word when it shouted for civil service reform, and now that it has been, it ought not to be expected to feel very thankful over it.

THE Democrats in Ohio and all over the country are turning a cold shoulder to Mr. Pendleton now for his excess of zeal in the civil service reform. Two to one, however, in two years form now they will point with pride to his record to show that their party has always been in favor of this reform.

A BILL has been introduced into the house by Mr. Knappenberger, of Jewell county, providing for a uniform series of text books for the common schools of the State to be prepared by a competent commission, printed at the State printing office and sold at cost. This is somewhat sweeping, but in view of the endless trouble and the unreasonable expense of the present system we are inclined to favor the plan, or something like it.

THE vigorous blows put in by Senators Ingalls and Plumb advocating the removal of the duty on lumber will be appreciated by Kansas people upon whom this is a direct and unreasonable tax. In referring to the argument that it protects American pioneers, Senator Ingalls said that that plea was "somewhat attenuated, by the fact shown by statistics that the average wages paid persons engaged in that occupation is only seventy-five cents a day."

ALL the late senatorial candidates before the legislature of Colorado were bonanza kings and the bidding for votes was sufficiently spirited to cause a dead lock for three or four weeks. It was broken at last by the election of Tom Bowen. The new senator was a "formerly of Kansas" man who struck it rich in the Summit mining district near Del Norte, two or three years ago, and has been taking out about a thousand dollars a day ever since. He is very popular among the miners of the Centennial state, and the men who threw up their hats when he struck pay dirt on the Little Emma, will be glad to hear that he has carried off the senatorial prize.

A BILL has been introduced into the legislature in accordance with the recommendation of the Governor providing for the appointment of a State veterinary surgeon. It shall be his duty to investigate all cases of contagious or infectious diseases among domestic animals in the State, with power to enforce a quarantine of infected premises, and to order the slaughter of all infected animals, the owner of which shall receive indemnity after appraisal. The salary of the officer shall be $3,000 per year, with $2,000 per year at his disposal for the disinfection of premises and other incidental expenses.

THE Kansas City, Fort Scott and Gulfroad has been doing some good work lately. The Memphis extension is now completed, and regular trains running to West Plains, Howell county, Mo., three hundred and fifteen miles from Kansas City. The line will reach Augusta, Oregon county, Mo., about February 20th, and will be completed and open for business to Memphis, Tennessee, about June 1st, 1883. This will open up the most direct route to the lower Mississippi region, and ought to give eastern Kansas and Missouri a better market than we have yet had.

We have taken occasion once or twice to criticize some of Representative Anderson's measures, as being a little too radical, but his bill to compel the Kansas Pacific railroad to pay for the surveys of the lands granted to it by congress, is one which we think every good citizen can heartily support. The bill will be bitterly fought by the attorneys of that corporation, for they very rightfully suspect that this is only the first step toward compelling the road to take out patents on all its land and thereafter pay tax on it. And that is exactly what ought to be done. There is no sense or justice in allowing this corporation to hold over three millions acres of land, for the original survey of which it has not paid the general government, and on which it pays the state no taxes. After being subsidized by the government to an extent that more than covered the cost of the road, and after being given the right of eminent domain by the State, the road ought certainly to be willing to reimburse the government for its outlay in surveying the land, and to help bear the burdens of the State by paying lawful taxes on its property. This policy of holding the land back until it reaches such a figure that it can be sold as soon as patented, not only deprives the State of what it has a right to claim in the way of taxes, but it materially retards the rapid settlement of the section in which the lands are located, and it is no more than bare justice to compel the corporation that practices it to adopt a different one.
