REGISTER THE PICK HANDLES.
Editor Bulletin:
I read in the Post the other day that the city and county authorities are becoming alarmed at the great number of guns in Butte—not at those guns owned by "citizens" (petty lawyers, shopkeepers, detectives, newspapermen, floor walkers, gamblers and A. F. of L. officials), but at the arms held by common workmen. It seems that the police even contemplated a search for unregistered guns. Doesn't that strike you as a waste of good time? I imagine that at this date that many, even of the registered guns, could not be located. Why send our poor overworked servants in the police department out on a vain quest for the unregistered?

And then again, if the object of registering guns is to keep some check upon the dangerous proclivities of the obstreperous, why neglect the little item of pick handles? Yes, and baseball bats, too. Gaspipe, as well—oh, so many, many weapons suggest themselves to a man who is really in earnest and has made up his mind to fight and kill.

I have read somewhere or other that in the various Paris uprisings of the past most of the street fighting was done, on the part of the proletariat, with clubs. Though the men were generally provided with guns, when it came to an actual scrimmage the guns were often dropped in favor of 12 inches of iron pipe or a knife. I think, however, that the knives—frequently more than seven inches long and ground to a razor's keenness—were generally used merely to finish off with. To complete the job with a piece of iron pipe left a poor cop in such a battered state that his relatives seldom could establish his identity. No wonder that police the world over are afraid of clubs! Workmen generally are not only well muscled in the arms, but also more or less skilled in striking accurately with the hammer and axe.

I wonder how many lawyers could drive a bit of steel unwaveringly through the quartz with a single jack and carry on an animated discussion on socialism with a buddy at the same time?
Let us not lull ourselves into a false security with the careless assumption that gunless workmen are helpless against a few modern machine guns. Time and time again in the late war conscripted Americans charged machine guns frontally—not from the rear or on the flank, but frontally—charged them, killed their tenders with clubbed rifles, captured the guns and turned them upon the foe.

I tell you, sir, these pick handles should be gathered up at once. Left lying about among ignorant, ruthless, rebellious, bolshevik-contaminated workmen, they constitute a grave menace to the stability of the established order.

Could not the Bulletin have Mr. W. F. Dunn bring this matter up before the legislature and secure some action?
BRIAN SEAWELL.

WIDOWS AND ORPHANS.

Editor Bulletin:
With the present curtailment of copper in the Butte mines and the preference of married men and soldier boys for the jobs, I would like to know what is to be done for the hundreds of widows and thousands of orphan children depending on the single men of Butte for a living. Women who keep a few boarders or roomers sure cannot expect to make a living for a family on the few soldier boys who returned, most of whom have mothers and fathers to make their homes with, a very small percentage stay in the boarding houses.

When single men are laid off they leave town to find work elsewhere. The boarding and lodging houses are deserted and how are people to meet the big rent and other expenses attached to such places.
Who are the victims of starvation, the single men or widows and orphans?
A WIDOW.

FEDERAL BOARD FOR VOCATIONAL EDUCATION
To Sweethearts, Sisters, Wives and Mothers of Discharged Soldiers.

You remember the day you said good-bye to the man you love best of all in the world as he went away to war. You kept back the tears, and smilingly told him, "Don't worry; I'll do my part till you get back, and I'll be waiting for you." Through those lonesome weeks and months you have carried on and done your part nobly, and he has been happy to know that you were backing him up with your courage and love.

Now he is coming home to you. He has given of the strength of his body in his country's service. Out of his fight for the liberty of the world he has come with a broken body; wounds, shell shock, gases, exposure, disease, or accident may have sent him home physically disabled. But his spirit and ambitions must not be broken! It is up to you, the mother, wife, sweetheart, or sister, to continue to back him up in his fight for readjustment.

Are you going to encourage him to forget his ambitions, to lose his enthusiasm to make good in life, by asking him to come home and idle away his days under your loving care?

Are you going to spoil him and pamper him with your pity?
Do you want him to be dependent upon you, and possibly later an object of charity, dissatisfied with life, broken in spirit?

Would you permit your anxiety to give him your loving help now to hinder him in overcoming his physical handicap?

No. The American woman is too true a soldier for that! You must continue to back him, not pity him. The government of the United States has made provision to help your disabled boy overcome his handicaps. The government offers to train him to efficiently take his place as a worker in the civilian life of the world. You must keep on backing him up by encouraging him to grasp the opportunity offered.

Through the federal board of vocational education the government will restore his self-supporting activity. Vocational training for a new occupation or retraining to better fit him for his former occupation will be provided him free of cost if he is entitled to compensation under the war-risk insurance law. His expense of training, personal living expenses, and allowances for the support of his dependents will be paid by the government if he chooses to undertake training under the jurisdiction of the federal board, which is made solely responsible by congress for this work. The family or dependents of each disabled man will receive from the government during his period of training the same monthly allotment and allowance as that paid prior to his discharge from the army or the navy.

It is left entirely at the option of your disabled man as to whether or not he chooses to take advantage of the government's offer to retrain and re-establish him in civilian life. You, as his dearest friend, can have a big influence upon his making the right decision. You can well afford to make any sacrifice to help him succeed. Encourage him to become self-supporting so that he will be happy and self-respected instead of a cripple with the pity of the world.

Your boy may be given his course of training and be re-established as a worker near your own home, as the federal board will give this question proper consideration in studying his individual case. Or, if it is necessary that you should be separated a little longer while he is in training, you must carry on as bravely and back him up as you did when he went to war.

By taking advantage of the government offer of training your boy may be able to realize his ambitions to finish his work in college or trade school or to master the vocation of his ambitions which pre-war circumstances had sidetracked. He may be trained to become efficient in a much better job than he had before his handicap forced a change in his occupation.

You must not permit him to go to work now as an unskilled laborer merely because the wages are good. He should be trained for a job he can keep when times are not so prosperous, and for one in which he will have opportunities to gain promotion.

The government realizes that your discouragement or encouragement may be the deciding thing in a man's life. The country appeals to you to stand squarely behind your disabled man in his fight to make good.

Tell your boy about the opportunity offered him by his government. Help him to get in touch with the federal board for vocational education. Encourage him to take the training, and while he is making the fight of his life to overcome his disability.

ability. Above all else have faith in his ultimate success.
That's your part. Help your man to find himself.
This is your opportunity—sweethearts, sisters, wives and mothers of America's disabled soldiers and sailors.

Write for complete information about how your boy's handicaps may be overcome, and how he may be restored to self-supporting activity.
