PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

(By Cable to the Nation.) London, Jan. 4.—The putting out of a tentative program for the peace conference and the announcement of Lloyd George's agreement with the president's policies have been the sensation of the week in London. Such action has the merit of letting in a little daylight. So far as it is a bit of open diplomacy, it is to be welcomed. The public now knows what it had suspected, namely, that despite President Wilson's optimism, the battle for a clean peace is far from won. The president, in asserting that all was going well, played a bold game and a shrewd one, in the hope of holding the allies to their promises. Perhaps, if he had not come to England, he could have reached the actual assembling of the conference without an explosion; but the spectacle of Lloyd George and Wilson assuring the world they had agreed and arranged everything was too much for Gallic pride. This was evidenced in Clemenceau's statement by the assertion that he himself won the war and his reference to France's being the battleground, while England and America were not. It has long been known here that Clemenceau is most intensely jealous of Lloyd George's assertion that the latter, George, won the war. Despite the clouds, and there is a growing belief in the best-informed circles that some kind of a league of nations will probably result. What kind, remains the all-important question, as to which no authoritative information is given. The British labor party, at its wonderfully effective Albert hall meeting on Thursday, made that perfectly clear, desiring that it wants no new holy alliance, but a league which will be a league of free peoples really determined on peace, and not an imperialistic alliance of old-fashioned diplomats deciding, perhaps, what shall be the right form of government for Russia or Turkey or India. Ramsay MacDonald reviewed at some length the history of the holy alliance to show that we are today at just about the same point as the diplomats of 1815 and that President Wilson has not

The meeting of the Brotherhood of the Central Presbyterian church, at the home of Fred H. Stafford, Garrison avenue, Tuesday evening, was quite well attended and keen interest was manifested. Plans were arranged for much practical work and a social feature was the highlight of the meeting. The next meeting will be held on the first Tuesday of February at the home of Mrs. W. J. Dunstan, 1725 Whitman avenue.

Alleging that her husband has an ungovernable temper, Lulu Baman started divorce proceedings yesterday against Henry Baman. In her complaint, Mrs. Baman states that Baman is a heavy drinker and on occasions beats her black and blue. She asks that she be permitted to use her maiden name, Lulu Hamilton.

Nick Russos, charged with running a disorderly house was fined $29 by Judge P. J. Whitty. He was also charged with residing an officer and fined $10. He gave notice of appeal in both cases. Chin Quon Louie was fined $25 on a vagrancy charge, and A. G. Peck, charged with drunkenness, forfeited his bond of $5 by non-appearance. Jess Bryant, charged with grand larceny, was sent to the county authorities.

Joseph Para, 59, died at the family residence, 202 North Main street, Meadville, Tuesday afternoon. He was a native of Italy and had been in this city for more than 33 years, actively engaged in the mining industry. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Leo Bertoldi, Mrs. James L. Skedd and Mrs. M. R. Maddock of this city, and a brother, Bart Para, of Anconada. He was a member of the Christopher Columbus society, under whose auspices the funeral will be held at a time to be announced later.

The funeral of Mrs. Johanna Tiekson was held yesterday afternoon at Sherman & Reed's chapel and was very largely attended. The choir of the Lutheran church, accompanied by Mrs. J. Hudtloff, rendered the following hymns: "Asleep in Jesus," "In the Hour of Trial" and "Dearer My God, to Thee." The pallbearers were Isaac Antio, Isaac Torsi, John Hango, John Isomels and E. Matunberg. Interment was in Mount Moriah cemetery.

Dan Karil last night stated that he would be willing to wrestle Aubert Cote, the Butte wrestler, under a handicap. He says he is willing to agree to throw Cote twice in an hour, Cote weighing about 138 pounds and Karil about 145. Karil is willing to bet $50 on himself. Now all that is apparently lacking is a promoter.

Judge Edwin M. Lamb yesterday granted a decree of divorce to the plaintiff in the case of Arthur Meier against Bessie Meier. The decree permits the defendant to resume her maiden name, Bessie Austin. A decree was also granted in the case of Minnie Laine against John Laine. Workers, we ask you, "What assurances have you given your family of a decent existence after you have cashed in?" You may be making a nice existence in an over-crowded profession or calling, but do you realize that such are becoming more over-crowded daily. yet voiced a single thought that was not advanced at the time of the formation of the alliance. Yet there was the most earnest and enthusiastic support of the president and a complete lack of confidence in the English leaders. The same feeling was also evident in the equally remarkable demonstration at Free Trade hall, Manchester, on Monday, by an entirely different kind of audience, representing the best business and liberal elements of that rich and powerful city. The Albert hall crowd cheered to the echo the assertion that Wilson had reached a position of world leadership by sheer force of moral appeal and by the moral positions he has taken. Yet for all its belief in him the labor party which polled two and a quarter million votes in the last election, will not take from his hands a sham league or a mere paper affair. Its leaders will now hold similar meetings in all the provincial cities for the purpose of rousing public sentiment further and bringing pressure to bear upon Wilson to stand fast and upon Lloyd George to do the right thing. It is discouraging that anybody remains to desire, as Clemenceau does, and as such tory organs as the Morning Post here do, the retention of the old order of checks and balances. It would seem as if any sane Frenchman would realize the terrible price paid for the alliance with the blood-stained Russia of the czar, without which France would probably never have been drawn into war—an alliance largely dictated, of course, by the enormous French investment in Russian bonds, which investment is still exercising great influence upon France's attitude toward the Russia of today. Clemenceau's announced attitude toward this or the allies' attitude toward it, if he speaks for them—is another proof of the slowness with which error is eradicated from the world. There is indeed little new under the sun. Why should an enlightened man believe today that the spread of bolshevist ideas can be controlled by a ring of bayonets stationed in Posen, Odessa, Riga and

J. L. SULLIVAN KILLED AT WARM SPRINGS

Prominent Butte Plumber Meets Death in Fall from Ladder.

While trying to take down one of the flush boxes in a lavatory in the hospital at Warm Springs, John L. Sullivan, 3119 Keweenaw street, lost his footing on a ladder and fell, bringing the heavy flush box to the floor with him. It struck him heavily on the chest, breaking several ribs and injuring his heart. Death came two hours later after futile attempts to save his life. The accident took place Tuesday afternoon.

The deceased was 39 years of age, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sullivan of this city. He had lived in Butte for 26 years. He is survived by his wife and a six-year-old daughter, his parents, two brothers and three sisters. His brothers are Tim and Dan, his sisters, Mrs. A. Collier, Margaret and Alice Sullivan, all well known Butte people. Both surviving brothers are prominent members of the Butte Metal Trades council, Tim being employed by the A. C. M. company and Dan by the North Butte company. The body was brought to Butte by Undertaker Larry Dugan.

elsewhere as Clemenceau would have us believe when he advocates the plan of a cordon sanitaire? One need only look back to the history of the French revolution and the attempts made to prevent the spread of the magic words Liberty, Egalite and Fraternite to realize that the cordon plan may have precisely the opposite of that desired. Fighting battles against a state of the kind is one of the poorest games rulers can play, and yet that game is now in full swing against Russia.

It is admitted that considerable British forces being landed in Riga actually demanded that the wicked and contemptible Hun troops should stay at Riga and help them defend that city against Lenin and Trotsky. This is about the clearest proof we have yet had of the tony-tony state of the world. A certain section of the British still demand the hanging of the kaiser, the return to Germany of all interned Germans and no interference with them of any kind. I have seen shops here displaying signs forbidding the entrance of any German-born person, whether long naturalized or not. Yet at the same moment these abominable Hun troops in Riga are offered the high honor of becoming brothers in arms to the English against the bolsheviks, and there are indications that there may be similar appeals to them to be good fellows and help out in Poland. If this had not been the most hypocritical of worlds during these last few years, such happenings might have at least stirred the wrath of nations.

As it is, there is every evidence that the allies are getting deeper and deeper into Russia and that the Pichon plan of arming Russians to fight the battles of the allies will lead to complications no man can foresee. Yet constantly hear, on the best of authority, that President Wilson expressed himself while here in London, as before leaving the United States, in opposition to the further use of American troops in Russia. On the other hand, it is part of the extraordinary contradictions that make it so difficult to judge the existing situation, that we hear persistent statements that more American troops are going to Russia. Sooner or later people must see that the best way to get rid of Lenin and Trotsky is to let them hang themselves and let them show just how long a government like theirs can survive. The more strongly the cordon of foreign troops is placed around Russia, the stronger Lenin and Trotsky are unfortunately likely to be; that is the opinion of all the liberal leaders here, both in and out of the press, and of numerous successful and unsuccessful candidates for parliament with whom I have talked.

Unanimously report the greatest interest in the electorate as to Russia and the most direct opposition to military interference there. Shall we again see a government embarking on a foreign policy against its public sentiment at home? That is the question that people are asking here on which we should soon have light.

The Rebel's Battle Cry

By BURDICK. More than half beaten, but fearless, Facing the storm and the night; Breathless and reeling, but fearless, Here in the hall of the fight; I who bow not, but before Thee, God of the fighting clan, Lifting my fists I employe Thee, Give me the heart of a man! What though I live with the winners, Or perish with those who fall, Only the cowards are sinners, Fighting the fight is all. Strong is my foe—his advances—Snap! is my blade, O Lord! See the proud brimmers and lances! Oh, spare me this stub of a sword! Give me no pity, nor spare me, Calm not the wrath of my foe; See where he belongs to dare me! Bleeding, half beaten, I go, Not for the glory of winning, Not for the fear of a fall, Only the cowards are sinning, Fighting the fight is all. Red is the mist about me, Deep is the wound in my side; "Coward," the foe cries to show me, "O terrible foe, thou hast led! Butte Boasts of Interesting and Enterprising Educational Institution

Butte College of Telegraphy From Humble Beginning Is Largest School of Its Kind West of Chicago.

When Howard E. McCoy started the Butte School of Telegraphy in a single room in the Lewisohn building, accommodating half a dozen students, few people here took the institution seriously. This was three years ago. Now the school takes up nearly an entire floor and there are between 300 and 400 pupils enrolled in the day and night classes. That speaks for itself along with the ability to deliver the goods, to training pupils quickly but thoroughly and to turn them out with the least possible expense in the shortest possible time consistent with a systematic and complete educational course. Entering on its fourth year, the college is the largest devoted strictly to telegraphy west of Chicago. Hundreds at Work. Hundreds of the graduates of this school are now holding responsible and remunerative positions in every line of work where telegraphy is a necessity to the business. Practical experience is one of the most valuable things taught the students. For instance, two years ago the Oregon Short Line connected its main line wires direct with the classrooms and over this wire goes a great bulk of the business of the railroad, such as the moving of trains and the like, so that the students get a first-hand idea of this end of the telegrapher's business.

Teaches Everything. This college teaches everything pertaining to telegraphy. It teaches not only how to send and receive in commercial or railroad branches, but also teaches the practical side of the business and its mechanical features also. Typewriting is a first cousin to telegraphy and this is also taught. During the war the government asked the school to lend a hand in teaching radio and buzzer operators. The school undertook this work as a patriotic duty and turned out 58 drafted men who have been serving the government as radio operators in every quarter of the globe.

Install Wireless. It is now the plan to install a wireless equipment for the purpose of teaching this now all-important science. The plant will be in charge of a government licensed operator, and with high-power instruments installed it is hoped to receive messages from long distances. Wireless and telegraphy are going to be hand in hand in the future and the Butte college is going to keep abreast of the times. The excellence of the institution is vouchsafed for by hundreds of graduates who have important positions all over the country and some across the seas.

"It is not their wish or purpose to favor or assist any one of the organized groups now contending for the leadership and guidance of Russia, as against the others. Their sole and sincere purpose is to do what they can to bring Russia peace and an opportunity to find her way out of her present trouble. Establishing Peace. "The associated powers are now engaged in the solemn and responsible work of establishing the peace of Europe and of the world and they are keenly alive to the fact that Europe and the world cannot be at peace if Russia is not. They recognize and accept it as a duty to save Russia as generally, as unselfishly, as thoughtfully, as ungrudgingly as they would serve any other friend and ally, and they are ready to render this service in the way that is most acceptable to the Russian people. "In this spirit and with this purpose they have taken the following action: They invite every organized group that is now exercising or attempting to exercise political authority or military control anywhere in Siberia or within the boundaries of European Russia as they stand before the war just concluded, except in Finland, to send representatives, not exceeding three representatives for each group—to Princess Island, Sea of Marmora, where they will be met by representatives of the associated powers, provided in the meantime there is a truce of arms against parties invited and that of all armed forces anywhere sent or directed against any people or territory inside the boundaries of European Russia, as they stood before the war, or against Finland, or against any people or ter-

SECOND RAID IS MADE ON ROADHOUSE AT FEELEY

Officers Take 576 Bottles of Beer and Tear Up and Remove Fixtures. A few hours after county officials raided the Fleecer Inn at Feeley Tuesday evening and removed therefrom a quantity of champagne and wines valued at $900, word was received at the sheriff's office that beer was being sold there. Early this morning officers returned to the inn and, it is alleged, found that a large quantity of full-bodied beer was being held out for sale at the bar. They confiscated 576 bottles of the beverages and brought it to Butte. All the fixtures in the place, including two pianos and the bar and mirrors, were torn up and brought to the county courthouse. It is estimated that the goods and furniture taken from this establishment in the last two days aggregate in value more than $2,000.
