"FIGHTING BOB"
 home. He came in smiling and hearty. "They don't seem to have made much of a dent in you," I remarked.
 "They haven't," he said. "I work all day in the morning and I'm fit as a fiddle."
 And then, before I could question him about his work, he quizzed me rapidly for half an hour on Seattle, the western labor movement, the Mooney conference. I told him of the resolutions passed there for withdrawing from Russia and amnesty to political prisoners, by a group of delegates twice as large as that which assembled for the regular American Federation of Labor convention.

"Our papers didn't carry it," he said. "They gave us the impression that the conservatives captured the convention. You can't find out anything in Washington. Six months after a new man comes here to congress, he's completely out of touch with what the people want. All he gets is the Washington and New York press, and that's his poison."
 That Espionage Law.
 "Do you think," asked a friend, "that an amendment could be introduced into that postoffice appropriation bill that would repeal part of the espionage law?"
 "It could be introduced," said the senator. "The only question is to find the strategic time. I'm not sure that the reaction against it has gone far enough yet. And it is not wise to get the opposition solidified and on record if you can help it. They naturally tend to stick to the way they voted once. But if the radicals of the country are agreed that this is the moment to strike for a repeal of the espionage law, I'll do it whenever they say."

"I was struck by the note, apparently sincere, which I am hearing more and more from one end of the country to the other, yes, from one end of the world to the other—a note of willingness to sink personal desires, even personal opinions, to follow from day to day the leading of that spirit of the revolution which is shaking the world. And this was La Follette, the arch-individualist."
 "I really haven't any personal wishes any more," he said. "The last year burned them out of me."
 All or Nothing.
 Then he went on to discuss the philosophy underlying his methods in the senate.

"Even the group of progressive republicans that used to work together, don't talk things over with me now," he said. "Partly my fault, I suppose. I don't believe in taking small concessions or in wasting time in tinkering with a system that is rotten. The progressive group is using up a lot of energy trying to get some minor changes in the rules, so that the old gang can't have such solid control of the important committees. They want an amendment preventing one man from holding a chairmanship and more than one other membership on the big, controlling committees."
 "Suppose they get it. The control of the gang is practically the same as before only less flagrant. They will still own the main committees. And you can't make nearly as big a holler to the country as you could before you got that trifling reform."
 "You would agree with Ina B. Williams, the lady from Yakima, in our state," I said, "that the next best thing to complete success is publicity before the people as to why you failed."

Penrose and Finance.
 He laughed. "Yes," he said. "I won't accept half a loaf and declare my hunger fed. I'd rather stay on the outside and rail at them, and tell the country what they are doing."
 "Take this Penrose business. The progressives think they will accomplish a lot by getting him left off the finance committee. Lodge comes around to feel me out. 'I'm not interested much,' I told him. 'Don't consider that you've done me a favor and can ask for a return, if you do it. Except for a few details of his private life, Penrose is no more the enemy of what I stand for than you are, and all your crowd. Why should I want to put him out and pretend to the country that the old gang is done for, when I know another member of the same gang is in his place?'"
 Getting It Out to the People.
 I thought of Liebknecht, the uncompromising, as I listened to La Follette's statement of his fighting philosophy.
 "How are you going to get it out to the people?" I asked. He grew serious.
 "I don't know," he said. "The most serious evil in this country is our press. All other evils the people can overcome, but without true information what can they accomplish? Our country is too big. I know what I can do in a single state. One man can cover it. I could go into any state in the country and set it up on end with the things I can tell them. I might take a couple of years, depending on how much primary education you have to give them. But it can be done."
 "The country is different. It cannot be reached that way. I sometimes wonder if democracy is possible in a land of 100,000,000 people."
 "We'll have to do it by means of Soviets," said the mutual friend who had introduced us.
 La Follette smiled. He said neither yes or no. The subject changed.

MOLDERS ARE STILL ON STRIKE
 The report in yesterday's Bulletin that the molders had struck the day before against a $1 reduction of wages is erroneous. The molders did not strike the same time the miners did and they never voted to go back to work at the reduced scale.

JUDGE DWYER DEALS WITH LIQUOR CASES
Claim Wrongful Issuance of Search Warrant. Decisions Is Reserved.

In Judge J. V. Dwyer's court yesterday the case of the state against S. H. Simeon was concluded and the court took the matter under advisement. Simeon claimed that the liquor which the sheriff's force found in its recent raid were his private stock and were in his residence, and it is upon this point that decision will probably hinge.
 In the seizure case of John O'Leary and John McManus, Mrs. Amanda Carlson, Pat Boyce, Ed Hogan and others, transferred from Judge Lynch's department, Judge Dwyer announced a continuance until next Saturday morning on motions filed throwing doubt on the sufficiency of the search warrants.
 Edna Long pleaded guilty in two cases in which it was charged that she permitted women to be about the premises where liquor was sold and permitting it to be sold to them. She was fined $100 in each instance.

The idea that a great many more women than men are church members is exploded by the Year Book of the Churches for 1919. This shows 19,000,000 women members, and 15,000,000 men. The greatest preponderance of wives, of course, is in the Mormon church.

DEPORTATION
 and endure the hardships of unemployment while we are needed to rebuild devastated Europe. One thing is certain, no matter how conditions are in the various European countries, at the present time it cannot be any worse than the hard times in the United States, with the bread lines and soup houses, with boxcar loads of working men traveling back and forth all over the country looking for jobs which do not exist, with little babies dying for the want of milk and strong young men begging employers to let them work for their board. Those of us who went without food for days and did not see a bed for months in the panics of the past, who were clubbed and driven like cattle when we flocked to the cities to escape the hardships of winter in the open country, we do not fear the poverty of Europe.
 The very conditions which forced us to leave our native land do not exist any more.
 The revolutions in Russia, Germany, Austria, Rumania and Bulgaria are heralding the coming workers' commonwealth of Europe.
 As long as our labor power could be utilized for exploitation by the American capitalist, we were welcome. While we were building railroads, risking our lives in gas-filled, mile-long tunnels, while we were building the big dams in the mountains to irrigate the deserts and furnish light and power, while we were doing all the dirty and disagreeable work which goes with the building of cities and towns, we were welcome. As long as we were satisfied to sleep in bunkhouses, 70 and 80 of us in one-room shacks, our employers liked us. But as soon as we start to criticize those conditions we are threatened with deportation.
 Comrades and fellow workers, let us demand to be deported. Let us go back to the land from which we came and let us give the American wage worker a chance to live through the coming hard times. The deportation of two or three million foreigners could undoubtedly relieve the situation considerably.
 Troop transports could be utilized to a great extent. The various governments of Europe would be glad to have their citizens return and might advance transportation for those who are destitute. Those who do not like to go to their own country might find homes in free Russia. Think this over, speak to your friends about it, hold meetings. Let us all get together regardless of nationality and demand deportation.

CITY COUNCIL

By three minutes, until City Attorney George Toole casually remarked that the council could not enter into a contract involving more than $250 without advertising for and receiving bids. The communication was then filed.
 Under the head of "good and welfare of the city," Alderman Freudenstein captured the floor and stated that it appeared some of the Butte newspapers were misrepresenting the facts in regard to the influenza situation. He emphasized the fact that "something ought to be done."
 This inspired the mayor with an idea and he called with some vehemence upon Dr. Matthews, who up to that moment had been merely an observer, to state the real facts concerning the influenza situation.
 Dr. Matthews showed from records that since Feb. 15 up to last evening the number of cases reported by five or six physicians had increased and that four deaths from influenza had taken place.
 This so alarmed the council that one alderman arose with some heat and suggested that the council and health board should get together and "get to the bottom of this thing and stamp it out."
 The mayor then stated that a meeting of the city health committee, the city physician and himself would be held in his office this afternoon at 4 o'clock to consider whether or not it was necessary to close up the city.
 The mayor called for a motion to the effect that any physician who does not report his cases of influenza and pneumonia every night to the city health office would be haled before the police court and dealt with summarily. This motion was put and passed.
