

ORGANIZING IRON AND STEEL

By ANISE in Seattle Union Record. "I heard Debs say last night that everybody was free to speak except the socialists. That's not true in this vicinity. The only organization that is outlawed here is the American Federation of Labor."

It was Foster speaking, Wm. Z. Foster, who is in Pittsburgh organizing the iron and steel workers on a new federated scheme.

"Just this morning we have been denied the use even of a socialist hall," he said. Owned by Finnish radicals, and hired and paid for by us. But just like other hall-owners, they were intimidated by the authorities, who refused to give a permit for the meeting."

"I never heard of needing a permit to hold a labor meeting in a hall," I answered. "Never in America."

"This isn't America," replied Foster. "This is Pennsylvania."

Halls Denied Them Everywhere. "Here's a sample," he went on. "Take the city of Braddock. Across the river from Homestead. It's a great steel center, with some 40,000 workers. We hired a hall, paid our $15, and saw the burgess, a union man named Callahan, for permits to do general advertising, and have a band. He said we could hold out literature at the houses, but not at the mills, and that there would be no interference with our meeting."

"A couple of days later he called us in, told us the meeting was off. The Turner's hall gave us our money back. They told us the burgess had told them to give the money back and cancel the meeting."

"Over in Homestead we hired a hall, and went to the mayor, knowing we might as well have the show-down first as last. He said: 'You can't hold any meetings in the city of Homestead. You can't get a hall. We have our hall, we told him. 'Have you?' he said."

"The next day the money came back for the hall! We were told it was a 'mistake.'"

"The machinists had a lease on a hall every afternoon from 2 to 4. The owner asked for the lease back. They refused. The owner locked the hall, and to break in would have meant a charge of burglary."

"Who Cares for Law? "They can't do things like that lawfully, can they?" I inquired. "Who cares for law in Pittsburgh?" answered Foster. "Steel owns the place. If they were sued for breaking the lease, and if by chance they were convicted, the steel company would pay them twice over for what they lost."

"Down in Rankin we hired a hall from a Polish woman. We got there and found a sign: 'No meetings by order of the board of health.' They use the board of health business right along."

"The mayors in all the towns around here had a meeting," he went on, "and decided they would block all organization meetings of the American Federation of Labor."

"It is interesting," I remarked. "To find the A. F. of L. in the role of a revolutionary outcast. What would they do with the I. W. W. down here?"

"Strong-arm them out of existence," said Foster. "Turn the cocks loose on them. The socialists tried a free-speech fight once. They rode them right down."

Fall of Crooks and Detectives. At this point a man entered the room, looking at me with a penetrating glance, as if he intended to fix my face in his mind permanently. Foster turned away from me suddenly. "Talk later, Crook!" he whispered beneath his breath.

An hour later he resumed in disgust. "That fellow is a snail-pigeon," he said. "But I can't snipe him. He is a high officer in one of the international unions! I insult him all I can but he sticks around. He's paid to. Everything is so corrupt in Pittsburgh—everything. Steel owns and blackmails the town."

Progress of Federation Plan. "Yet we are making much progress—more than you would expect. We started with the knowledge that no craft could do the job alone. We have a national committee for organizing iron and steel. Twenty-four crafts are working together. We take the men in just as they come, and then assert them into their craft unions afterwards. The initiation fees have been reduced for this class of workers, so that they have a practically uniform entrance fee of $3. "We cover the iron and steel industry in all its branches, from the men who dig the coal and iron ore to the men who load out the finished product. The A. F. of L. never had as big a crew of organizers assembled in one place before. The steel companies have not molested the organizers yet, but they follow us constantly."

Fire Men for Attending Meetings. "We hold our meetings in the Labor temple in Pittsburgh; they can't quite take that away from us. But they have from 100 to 200 superintendents, timekeepers and policemen picketing the meeting. Every man that walks in that is recognized is a game goose. Fired."

"Over on the south side they fired men who had worked 35 years for the company, just for coming to a meeting. The men hadn't even joined the union. I saw a fellow yesterday who had worked 15 years for Jones and Laughlin Steel company. Fired for listening to us."

Progress in Spite of Terrorism. "In spite of the terrorism, and in spite of having to come all the way into Pittsburgh from surrounding towns, the men keep coming. Down in Johnstown we practically have the mills."

"I had the worst reputation of any town in the state for anti-unionism. In the old days the knights of labor had 20 members; they were all fired. That ended unionism in Johnstown. It was customary for the Cambria Steel company to know beforehand when an organizer was on the way, and just chase him out of town."

"Recently they started the Rockefeller plan to head off unionism. They had a union of their own, with the committee composed eighty per cent of bosses. They held an election and the men turned around and elected a committee of union men, defeating practically every boss that ran. The men voted at the same time for an eight-hour day, against the efforts of the company. Fifty per cent of all the men there belong to unions now."

"The headquarters are full of men signing up. We have more calls than our organizers can handle. The steel industry has always sought foreign labor, believing that this labor could be most easily oppressed. But now, with the changes coming in Europe, the foreigners are gaining more desires and new unrest with every messenger that crosses the ocean. This is part of the reason for Foster's success. Another part is the combination of crafts in a federation plan adopted last June at the American Federation of Labor convention. Still another is the personality of Foster himself, a strong, young leader who will be heard from more and more in the labor movement."

MR. LARSON SAYS STORY INCORRECT

Alfred Larson, whose house at 2910 Bush street, was recently burned, states that the accounts of the fire appearing in the copper press were incorrect.

Instead of the fire starting from the explosion of a quantity of gasoline, Mr. Larson states that the conflagration was caused by an overheated range, and gained such headway while he was at a neighbors on an errand, that it could not be checked.

Although the press stated that the damage was slight, Mr. Larson says that the building and furniture are a total loss, in the neighborhood of $2,000 worth of property being destroyed.

WILSON WON'T ACT. Paris, April 21.—President Wilson, it was learned today, probably will call the attention of the British delegation to the appeal for Irish freedom, presented yesterday by Frank P. Walsh, but will not act himself.

THE WORLD IN TURMOIL.

The era of the Napoleonic wars, with its great disturbances, showed nothing to compare with the turmoil existing at the present time. The world is really much larger now. Peoples everywhere are much more closely united in business relations. If not political, and there is scarcely a wild tribe in the most remote corners of the earth not affected by the great war. Des Moines, Iowa, April 21.—Famous for its investigation of state officials and departments, the Iowa legislature, with final adjournment at hand, has turned on itself with an inquiry into grave charges against the morals of certain of its members.

Immediately after their appointment last night, a committee of eight members of the house, acting on a resolution adopted by the lower chamber, began an investigation of formal charges by Municipal Judge W. G. Bonner that certain members of the legislature had "contributed to the delinquency of young women of Des Moines." Judge Bonner was called before the committee today.

CUSPIDOR AND KNIFE FIGURE IN BATTLE

Chin Duggan, a roomer at the Doyle block on South Main street, missed a suit of clothes from his room on Saturday and suspected one of the chambermaids of having done away with it. He said so to her with the result that a row, during which Duggan is alleged to have torn some of the clothing from the fair Hede, as well as to have flashed a knife and thrown a cuspidor at others who came to her assistance, was started. Duggan was fined $10 in police court this morning.

A. F. OF L. ORGANIZER WILL GIVE HIS VIEWS

Last night Organizer Tom P. Flynn of the American Federation of Labor met with local men to consider conditions in the Butte district. A proposed plan was submitted to Mr. Flynn, which seemed to be the solution of the local tangle. The proposition will be submitted to the Silver Bow Trades and Labor council at the regular meeting Tuesday night for its consideration.

Mr. Flynn will be present at the meeting and explain the stand he takes. All local unions are asked to send representatives to the Silver Bow council to hear the discussion and the action taken.

This meeting will be of great importance to the workers of this vicinity. All local unions should be represented. If an agreement is reached, the plan will be submitted to the American Federation of Labor at Washington.
