SPORTOGRAPHY

By "GRAVY."

Duffy Lewis was the second Yankee player to get a home run this season. Sam Vick was the first.

Zimmerman was the first Giant to be punished by the umpire. Some day some players will learn that there is no use in arguing with the ump.

Hal Chase has not yet begun to hit the ball in his accustomed style, but his fielding is as brilliant as ever.

Pete Kilduff, former Giant, who has been making a strong bid for the job as regular third sacker on the Chicago club, is at present on the shelf with a lame arm, but it is certain that as soon as he is fit to play again Fred Mitchell will assign him to the far corner permanently. Kilduff's rival for the job is Charlie Deal, who is beginning to show up. Kilduff is a good ball player now and will be a better one in the future, for he is a plucky youngster with a good pair of hands and a clear head and he can hit the ball hard. He spent the greater part of last season in the navy, but was discharged early this spring. John McGraw rated Kilduff highly but traded him to the Cubs in 1917 for Al Demaree at a time when it was absolutely necessary for the Giants to get a right handed pitcher who could

SHALL THE RAILROADS GO BACK TO PRIVATE CONTROL?

Great Falls Railroad Man Demands Vote Be Taken of All Railroad Men in Country on Question of Striking Against Turning Back Railroads to Capitalists.

King Burleson has thrown off his mask and shown up in his true light as a tool for the employing classes, by giving the wire and telephone lines back to the above drivers, private control.

The drive is now on by our friend Lord Hines, to force the railroads back to private control. Our open hope and ambition taught us to remain out of the clutches of these inhuman vultures.

The Great Northern system federation of Great Falls, Mont., has passed the following resolution, and requests all railroad locals to endorse and adopt the same: First:

Resolved, That we demand of our international officers, that tons of literature be sent out to combat the filthy lies that are being published by the black flag artists, or so-called money interest.

SOCIALISTS

25,000 majority socialists were holding demonstrations against the treaty.

Before the independents appeared Chancellor Scheidemann, addressing the crowds, declared, "Protest is Germany's only remaining weapon."

The German government, he said, believes the eastern plebiscite would be advantageous to Germany and regards a victory in the Saar basin certain in event of a vote.

From another source it has been learned that Germany will also urge that the indemnities be lumped in one sum instead of the provision that an indefinite amount be collected during a long period, so that German workmen and financiers may know the extent of their obligations.

Germany's counter proposals to the peace treaty, it was learned from an authoritative source, will be considered as follows: Insistence on fulfillment of Wilson's principles; request for a plebiscite in eastern and western provinces; acceptance of principle of full disarmament, but with reservation for two hundred thousand troops necessary to maintain internal order; complete agreement for elimination of German navy, but with insistence that merchant ships be retained to insure country's economic development.

This information is obtained from an official in close touch with delegates at Versailles. He made the statements without qualification.

DON'T FORGET ELECTRICIANS' BALL.

hardly have the brains to learn Spanish or French. I suppose modern business does need brains, but it is sufficient to have them in the heads of the firms. Then if they (the subordinates) get sick and die the organization goes on without immediate disaster. The more numerous the organization the less each has to do. There is then no fussing with individual temperaments, no loss if any one is absent or sick and trade is not held up. I believe this is called "efficiency" by the experts nowadays.

At any rate it results in a large office force, each of whom does one thing and as it is so simplified high pay cannot be expected in reason. Hence we shall find more and more girls in business. First, because their main interests are elsewhere and they can do their mechanical tasks automatically, and secondly, they exist on lower salaries because they live with their parents or families and eke out a living that way. And thirdly, as such tasks inevitably in time make the person utterly useless by dulling his brain, the recruits must come from those between the ages of 17 and 25, a class which can take small wages as it is hopeful of drifting into matrimony any day. Certainly the only women I saw around were those within those ages.

Office managers seemed to be between 30 and 40, but also so weary looking with nervous tension that one felt sure they would die before 45.

In other words, modern business is the factory system applied to minds. And the contemplation of it made me feel discouraged completely.

I took a history exam a few days ago as it came up, and as I saw in the paper that by a decision handed down by the Washington (D. C.) board of education "Bolshevism, League of Nations and other heresies" are not to be mentioned in the classroom, I suppose that decision will hold for these circumstances ought to be the most solemnest job imaginable.

I most assuredly do not believe all I read in the press about the Russian revolution. Not that I have access to any sources of real information. All our press here is capitalistic to the bone. The Hearst paper let more cats out of the bag than other papers, but Mr. Hearst never forgets that he has "steep millions to preserve. He allows less cant to appear in his papers about the war and reconstruction and does try to support the working classes. He advocates municipal ownership of public utilities, a recall of judges, a reform of the constitution, and a more intelligent use of the ballot by the people. His ideas suggest that there is a lot to be said for the Soviet ideas of government, while bewailing the excesses of bolshevism, by which I meant anarchy. Readers are urged to have an open mind yet on Russia. But when it comes to just what really happened in Seattle, or Colorado, his papers are as silent as the rest. And, of course, Montana is never mentioned. No papers ever write clearly about the deportations or make any attempt to explain clearly to the minds of the masses the nature of any attempt to explain clearly to the minds of the masses the nature of any of the problems and evils now affecting society. I think society of education that tolerates a proletariat such as we have today, and does everything in its power to increase and maintain the conditions that keep masses of men in such misery and compromise and financial arrangements at Paris is going to make men content to be slaves, which is the only thing the factory system seems to have accomplished; nor will publishing headlines that bolshevism is dying out in Russia make the slightest difference.

It does not seem possible that any period in history can show the same cynical disregard of the true desires that animate the heart of man. Labor has been so fearfully exploited that I sometimes fear the coming revenge will burn everything up in irretrievable disaster. So it does not seem very worth while to bother about leagues of nations.

Everything here, press, speeches, magazines, theaters, books, is pro-English. It is not merely the English, which is the only thing that the 'aris conference has evolved so far for the United States, but an attempt to create the belief that we are all English and as much a part of the British empire as Wales. Not a whisper must be heard against the British, their institutions, or their practices. They are perfect. Text books are rewritten to show that England has always been our friend and everything good we have in life comes from her. Not only contemporary history is twisted, but past facts are mainly changed. If one suggests that English practices in Ireland or India or South Africa show evil qualities, one is smiled at and called pro-German.

It almost takes courage to praise the part the Americans took in the war. Every soldier from the front with whom I have talked says the Americans were always scrapping with the English for the insults and arrogancies which the English were heaping on them.

What I hate so about New York is that no one has time to talk about anything but business and not much even of that. We have a mayor, "a man of the people," and, of course, the papers, hate him, and make little of him and his attempts to help the people, and they believe the papers and no one makes any effort to give the man credit for trying to correct some evils or even discuss the evils. They think enough contribution is given to human thought when they say, "Oh, Hyman is stubborn."
