PUBLIC-SPIRITED PEOPLE URGED TO ATTEND MEETING

Questions of Phone Rates and Street Car Fares to Be Discussed and Action Against Both Be Taken.

A special and urgent invitation to every public-spirited citizen to attend the mass meeting to be held tomorrow night in the courthouse under the auspices of the Good Government League, has been issued by Chairman David Wittenberg. The meeting will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and a number of matters of public interest, particularly with reference to the increased telephone rates, the asked-for increase in street car fares and the proposed establishment of public parks are scheduled for discussion. At last week's meeting committees were appointed to investigate the status of the telephone and street car fare matters. These committees will report at tomorrow night's meeting, when some definite action on the part of the citizens is expected in opposition both to the phone rates and to the increased fares.

MAYOR APPROVES "BIG FOUR" SITES FOR PARKS

Waxes Enthusiastic After Visit of Inspection to City's Breathing Spots Yesterday Afternoon.

Assurances of the early establishment of a series of small parks for the city were given last night by Mayor Stodden immediately after he had returned from an inspection trip to various sites, in company with a delegation of city officials and citizens who are interested in the project for more breathing spots.

"With the transfer of the supervision and expense of the Clark playground to the school board and with a 2-mill levy for park purposes," said the mayor, "I feel sure that a simple but desirable system of parks can be inaugurated at but little expense."

The inspection party first visited the site of 40 acres owned by the city at the limits of the city on Garfield avenue. It was ascertained that while the tract now is in a rough state, it can be improved and made a presentable park site for little expense. It was stated that J. L. Wharton, manager of the Butte Railway company, had promised the extension of the car line in event a park is established there.

Thompson park was next visited, and all members of the party expressed themselves as delighted with the beauty of the place. It was stated that the board of trustees in charge of the park have about $25,000 to spend in improving the park.

The party then visited the county park of 35 acres near Lake Ave., which was donated to the county by W. McC. White of the Tidewater Investment company, and later visited a point at Harrison and Harvard avenues, which had been suggested as the site of a municipal swimming pool. The latter site forms a natural basin, which at little expense, it is said, can be transformed into an excellent pool for children, the water of Blacktail creek traversing the property.

Sites of small triangles at Casey and Phillips streets and at Warren and Olympia streets, which it is proposed to park and seed, were inspected also.

The inspection party comprised the mayor, Peter H. Holland, Frank I. Austin, Frank A. Silver, John A. Wilson, aldermen; E. J. Strasburger, commissioner of public works; Samuel W. Billings, building inspector; Dr. Peter Potter and J. L. Dorsch of the committee on parks and playgrounds; Malcolm Gillis, Gustave A. Lobbenberg and J. E. Roche, manager of the Montana Power company.

TRIAL OF LEADERS

fair. The state exercised all three of its peremptories, the defense exercised four challenges, waiving the final.

A Sea-faring Man.

Bruce is a sea-faring man, short and stocky, sparse gray hair and gray mustache, tanned, oil-stained hands, an intelligent, typical migratory rebel proletarian. He was born in Albany, N. Y., of Scottish parentage. Attorneys for the defense are George V. Vanderveer and Ralph S. Pierce. Prosecuting Attorney Fred C. Brown. Assistants Charles E. Claypool, C. D. Amodey, Judge, Walter M. French. The prosecutor read his opening statement, purporting to be the history, birth and development of the I. W. W., "which seeks to overthrow organized government by forcible resistance to laws, injury to property, intimidations, murder, sabotage, direct action, striking on the job, slowing down, duplicating Russian revolution, advocating general strike, stirring up discontent, purpose to destroy profits and overthrow capitalism," and said Bruce was guilty of being a national organizer of the body.

Attorney Vanderveer merely stated: "We will see how much of this the state is able to prove," and waited his opening statement.

The state's first witness was Police Sergeant P. F. Keefe. He testified to arresting Bruce Feb. 20 at the Seafarers' club and identified credentials, supplies and literature alleged to have been taken from Bruce's person.

Vanderveer objected and was overruled on the illegal seizure of identified material.

Keefe was forced to admit the truth of a newspaper report (Post Intelligencer) that he had opened the defendant's sealed letters at police headquarters. He said it did not matter in the case of the I. W. W. He also admitted that an officer struck Harry Krepps in the jaw when arrested with Bruce.

Justifies Brutality.

Asked if it was a hard blow, he replied that it was not as hard as he ought to have got.

Attorney Vanderveer immediately excused the witness, leaving the impression of brutality in the jurors' minds.

Robert P. Collins, a detective, was the second witness. He was formerly with the department of justice. He testified to investigating Bruce and identified literature he claimed the defendant admitted reading and approving.

"Educates" Policeman.

The third witness, T. L. Allison, who was a member of the military police, who had been ordered by the government to join a union, joined Construction Workers' Industrial union No. 573 June 6, 1918, and took delegate credentials and went to a camp at Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, he identified literature given him by spent by the prosecuting attorneys in taking testimony against "Red Dawkins" by Harrison George and "Patriotism and the Worker," by Gustave Hervé.

The jurors appeared intensely interested in this last named pamphlet. The case is being backed by the central labor council, and assumes national importance on account of open shop and conspiracy features.

"BIG FOUR" ARE GOING EASY

Will Not Interfere in Pole-Ukrainian Scrap Until Paderewski Arrives. Consider Austrian Treaty.

(Special United Press Wire.)

Paris, May 23.—"The big four" today discussed the military "prisoners of war" terms of the Austrian treaty. The reparations section pact was completed at yesterday's meeting.

The decision was reached yesterday to withhold action in the armed disputes between the Poles and Ukrainians over territorial matters until Premier Paderewski's arrival, which is expected tomorrow or Sunday.

Brookdorff and five other members of the German delegation met last night to confer with members of the German government. The committee appointed to consider the Germans' proposals regarding the League of Nations, has replied that it considers the present covenant more practicable than the German plan, although, it was added, the German suggestions can be considered when the league finally is organized. In regard to "obligatory arbitration," the committee said its universal applicability would be remarkable.

"We are glad the German government favors disarmament," the reply concluded.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Butte high school senate had the largest attendance so far this year at a meeting held last Wednesday. The business meeting was especially spirited. Many motions were discussed, among which was one concerning the senate's annual banquet. A committee was appointed to make arrangements. Mr. Milkin gave an interesting address at the end of the meeting.

WOMEN HAVE EQUAL VOTE IN CONFERENCE.

Washington May 23.—The first national political "powwow" in history to be attended by both men and women opened here today with chairmen of both the men and women's republican state central committees sitting as delegates.

Republican party chieftains at the opening of the conference said that women delegates would have an equal voice with the men in deciding organization maneuvers and policies to be outlined with a view of carrying the party to victory in 1920.

The prospects for the passage of a constitutional suffrage amendment during the present session of the 66th congress are also expected to come up for discussion.

The conference, which met at 10 o'clock this morning is to continue through today and tomorrow, ending with a banquet tomorrow night.

HOLD CHILDREN'S FIESTA.

A children's fiesta, to which admission is free, will be held this evening beginning at 8 o'clock at the Woman's club. An interesting program has been arranged under the direction of Mrs. Herman Thalmueller of the mothers' department. Children attending must be accompanied by their parents, it is announced.

Today We Celebrate.

The Paris commune. Revolutionary outbreaks following defeat at arms is nothing new. The bolshevik movement in Russia and elsewhere in Europe is simply on a larger scale than similar outbreaks that have taken place in the course of the world history. There was the Paris commune, for instance, which held the French capital in its grip and thousands of the governmentists were killed before the government regained possession of the city. The assault of the government troops upon Paris, which had begun on May 21, 1871, was reaching its height on his date, and was followed by the surrender of the city. The bolshevik elements of Paris—and there are some bolsheviks there as well as in all other countries—will this coming Sunday make the pilgrimage to the Pere la Chaise cemetery, where those who were killed in the commune of 1871, lie buried. The wall surrounding the burial place of the communards is inscribed with a tablet which reads: "Aux morts de la commune, 21-28 Mai, 1871."

In the seven days of terror, which Parisian proletariat has commemorated for many years by an annual demonstration, about 25,000 men, women and children were shot. Driven from barricade to barricade, they fought on until, driven against the wall, they were mowed down in heaps. The ground round the walls enclosing the last resting place of these communards is now barren and weed-grown, as there has been no demand for burial plots so near to the bolsheviks of that period.

The insurrection of the people of Paris which led to the brief reign of the commune began in March, 1871. The populace of Paris was aroused to a frenzy by the successes of the Germans and the terrible sufferings they endured during the siege. The majority of the members of the national assembly inclined to the restoration of the monarchy, and the governing body of France was therefore viewed with suspicion by the republicans and radicals. Thus it came about that the red flag was raised and the people seized control of the city and proclaimed the commune. While the commune was marked by many bloody deeds and wild excesses, just as similar demonstrations of today are marked by excesses and cruelty, it was useful in proving the utility of any attempt to restore the old royalist regime in France.

During the fighting between the Parisians and the government troops in May the former battled with a courage and tenacity which was almost unprecedented in a disorganized mob. After the troops forced their way through the city gates they had to pay dearly for every foot of ground they gained. Behind their barricades the communards contested every advance of the soldiers, and the murderous hand-to-hand fighting in the streets continued for a week. When at last they realized that they were defeated, the communards sought to destroy Paris. The women were even more terrible than the men, and they succeeded in applying the torch to many famous edifices, including the Palace of the Legion of Honor, the Hotel de Ville, the Library of the Louvre, the Palace of the Tuilleries, and numerous others. Many played no part in the suppression of the mob. Men, women and children were shot down, and for a year after the collapse of the commune there were numerous court-martials and executions. Besides the thousands slain and executed, 13,000 were transported or sent to prison. The commune was the most terrible insurrection of modern times.

Prince Arthur was created Duke of Connaught 45 years ago today, May 23, 1874, thus becoming the first royal prince whose leading title was Irish. Four years later the Duke of Connaught's establishment act was passed, making the same provision for the duke as for his brother Alfred. Connaught was long a nominal king, and the name, as a title of honor, is thus historic and royal. The O'Connors were the rulers of Connaught in Celtic times, and in the 12th century Roderick O'Connor, of Connaught, became king of all Ireland. After the Anglo-Norman conquest of the Emerald Isle, Richard de Burgh, the Great, became Lord of Connaught. Later, the title of Lord of Connaught passed to the earls of Ulster. The Connaught title in 1764 passed to Prince William Henry, brother of George III, who was created Duke of Gloucester and Edinburgh, in the British peerage, and Earl of Connaught, in the Irish peerage. The title passed to his son, who died in 1834, when the Connaught earldom became extinct. Forty years later the Connaught title was revived and conferred on the prince who later became governor general of Canada.
