ACTION ON PHONE RATES POSTPONED

Public Service Commission Will Await Decision of Supreme Court Before Investigating Increase.

In response to numerous protests on the new phone rates, the railroad and public service commission of Montana, through the press, makes the following statement in a letter addressed to the Great Falls chamber of commerce. "Mr. R. F. Clements, Secretary Merchants' Association, Great Falls, Montana. "Dear Sir: This is to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 28th inst., together with copy of resolutions which were adopted at a general meeting of the Merchants' association of Great Falls, having reference to the increased telephone rates. In connection with this matter we wish to call your attention to the present status of the case. "Several months ago Mr. A. S. Burleson, postmaster general, on behalf of the government, authorized an increase in telephone rates throughout the entire states. A number of the public service commissions representing different states, opposed the increase, and through the supreme court of their respective states got out injunctions against placing the proposed rates into effect. "Case Appealed. "Mr. Burleson, with a view of determining the question as to whether the government had the power to regulate rates during war or an emergency period, appealed the case to the supreme court of the United States. As it was important that the question should be decided promptly, the supreme court set a date for an early hearing. The matter was argued before the court on May 6 and 7. After the close of the arguments the court recessed to May 19, but before doing so they issued a temporary order instructing Mr. A. S. Burleson, postmaster general, to place the advanced rates into effect and to collect same until such time as the question of the police power of the states was decided by the court. "On April 30 the federal representatives of the telephone company for Montana called upon the commission and submitted the new rates, which were to become effective May 1. The commission, having kept in close touch with the matter and knowing that the question was already before the supreme court of the United States, decided that there was nothing to be gained in getting out an injunction to prevent the rates going into effect in Montana, as the case now pending before the court, when decided, will dispose of the question as far as Montana is concerned, as well as all other states. Therefore the schedules were placed on file without the approval or disapproval of this commission. As the supreme court of the United States has taken the matter under advisement, there is no doubt but what a decision will be rendered in the near future. "Until the question is decided by the court this commission will take no action as it is evident that, before Mr. Burleson authorized the increased rates, a full investigation was made by condition of the telephone lines. The government has obligated itself to the telephone companies, and no doubt the increase in the rates was necessary in order to carry out its guarantee. "Co-Operation. "Since the railroads, the telegraph and telephone lines have been taken over by the government, this commission has co-operated with the government, and we believe that our action has met with the approval of a majority of the people. Due to the abnormal increase in the cost of labor, material and supplies, industries and all lines of business not under federal state control, have found it necessary to increase the price of their products and the goods which they handle in order to meet present-day conditions. The same is true of the telephone companies and a casual observation of the status of the telephone companies generally, therefore, would indicate that they are entitled to some relief. "If the supreme court, in disposing of the question before it, holds that the states have jurisdiction over the regulation of intrastate rates, this commission will take immediate steps to determine the reasonableness of the increased rates. "Yours very truly, (Signed) "RAILROAD AND PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION. "W. J. HAYNES, Secretary."

PLAN FOR JUNIOR "PROM."

Elaborate preparations have been made for the annual Junior "Prom" of the Butte high school which will be held at Columbia gardens next Saturday night. The gardens ballroom has been secured and an orchestra engaged.

THEATERS

AT THE ANSONIA. The most pleasing bill of the week is at the Ansonia. In addition this feature there is a comedy and a "Cyclone Smith" story. "The Crimson Gardenia," an entirely different Rex Beach story, is a drama of intense interest. The story has its setting among the French-speaking population of New Orleans. The story of the young New Yorker who, because of his life of bougeois idleness, thinks that romance is lost to the world, and who masks himself for the carnival in search of adventure, is one that holds its audience breathless. As he stands on a street corner arrayed in a black domino, he is accosted by the French girl who thinks it is her cousin whom she is aiding to escape the authorities. Not understanding, but fascinated by the air of mystery, he goes with her, his adventures in the counterfeiter's den, and his final winning of the girl make a plot well worthy of its author.

All the characters and especially that of Roland Van Dam, the New Yorker, (played by Owen Moore), are masterfully portrayed, and the picture is one of real merit. Chester Gillette's orchestra gave the picture an interpretation that only his organization is capable of giving. The management of the Ansonia is really fortunate in having six artists such as those now playing there. PANTAGES. The "Pan" bill this week is hardly more than "ordinary." It is one of those programs that one can sit through and be interested in, but would hardly remember it long enough to tell our friends. Monroe and Grant presented a tumbling act which aroused more envy than admiration. We would rather have taken a few "flops" on the big net ourselves than to have watched M. and G. have all the fun. Sam and Ada Beverley made a distinct hit in their sparkling little act. Their singing was very good as the voices seemed to blend perfectly. The Four Renegades gave some novelty character dances which delighted the audience. The Dutch girls' dance was, to use the expression of the lady sitting next to us, "Too cute for anything." In the Egyptian dance the girls also displayed talent. Joe Darcy, blackface comedian, presented something not exactly aesthetic. Much of his comedy was blackeyed and he could not seem to satisfy himself nor his audience until he "sprung a chestnut," which was not only old, but nauseatingly suggestive. This, however, seemed to delight the audience, composed as it was, largely of the "west side" bourgeoisie. The Kelly Field Players' act was a little drawn out but contained some numbers of real merit. The cartoonist delighted his audience and the drill of the "dark squad" of one proved a real entertainer. Lindsay Symons and his five artists gave a delightful musical interpretation, particularly to the character dances. If only we could always be assured that the rest of the program would be as high-class as the music!

THE RIALTO.

To those who have seen Douglas Fairbanks we say that "Knickerbocker Buckeroo" is a typical Fairbanks picture. As movie fans well know, when it comes to "caperin' round" Douglas is there, but at roll-call for histrionic artists we answer absent for him. However, Doug probably realizes this himself, for the picture is full of action and is truly a masterpiece in Fairbanks' particular line. The story of the eastern clubman, expelled from his club for having too much "pep," his trip to Arizona and adventures among the "bad men" offer a big field for the hero's act. This picture was advertised as having been six months in the making. This is probably some more fraudulent advertising, as there is nothing so stupendous in it as to require that much time in preparation. It is just a typical Fairbanks picture no greater than any that came before it.

FALSELY CALLED THIEF; ASKS $10,000 FOR BALM

Fred Burgmann, a veterinary surgeon of 1128 Maryland avenue, has filed suit against Ed Stouff for $10,000 damages, because Stouff, the complaint alleges, in the presence of divers witnesses called Burgmann a thief, saying that he stole numerous articles of value from the Butte & Great Falls Mining company. Burgmann says the charge was false and prompted by malice; that his reputation, and hence his business has been injured by Stouff's accusations; and that he is reasonably entitled to compensation for the injury done him in the sum of $10,000, and any further relief the court may see fit to give.
