RUST-PROOF WHEAT IS FOUND BY EXPERT

D 5 Wheat Discovered by N. D. Scientist—Large Amount Grown.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 16.—A new kind of rust-resistant wheat has been found by H. L. Bolley, a scientist at the North Dakota agricultural college.

The discovery of it is a fascinating story for those who appreciate the romance of scientific work. For many years wheat growers of the northwest have been cursed with the wheat disease known as rust. In some years it is worse than others. A remedy was needed.

Professor Bolley started out in quest of this remedy in 1903 with two theories: 1. That there was such a thing as "sick" soil, a soil on which the yield was reduced or spoiled, not through lack of fertility but the presence of disease germs. 2. That in countries where wheat had been grown on the same soil for hundreds of years, the farmers had probably developed disease-resistant seeds.

Seed From Russia. The second theory took him to interior Russia in 1903, and there, on the peasant farms, he found what he was after. He also found a flax which appeared to be immune to "wilt." Many samples were sent home, and then followed years of experimentation with as many as a thousand small plots of ground, testing these seeds and applying theory No. 1 about sick soils. Farmers were given small amounts of promising seed from time to time.

Out of these years of study has come a new rust-resistant wheat known now as D 5. North Dakota farmers have raised hundreds of thousands of bushels of it this year and the federal department of agriculture has based an entirely new grade on it.

Since their discovery that a new wheat was coming to the market the millers have raised a cry that it is worthless for flour. Professor Bolley points out that the Russians have always used it for flour and in regard to the millers' claims he says:

Merits of the Wheat. "Some interesting facts exist regarding the color of D 5 wheat. Millers have persistently said it was a bad wheat. For the first two or three years the elevators paid a premium for it because of its heavy weight per bushel.

The chief reason that it was brought over was that when I was in Russia I thought, 'Here is a durum wheat which the average man cannot tell from rye.' And when it came to handling it on the market that very result happened. Those who claimed that durum wheat was not being used for milling purposes and yet knowing that thousands of bushels were milled, bought D 5 and milled it along with the rest.

"But when it was found that there was a large volume of it, a huge cry went up just as in the case of velvet chuff, that it was a valueless wheat.

Superior Yields. "We do not claim that this wheat has superior milling qualities. I do claim that it has superior yielding qualities on constantly cropped wheat lands.

"It will be remembered that when spring wheat came into use, the eastern housewives claimed that they could not make good bread out of it. It will be remembered that when velvet chaff reached large production, the millers claimed it was a poor milling wheat and a poor baking wheat."

Professor Bolley has discovered through rigorous tests that under constant cropping the D 5 wheat is also subject to a disease called helminthosporus. Black points appear on the germ end of the wheat berry. But these tend to disappear with crop rotation and under new and dry land conditions.

CHILD LOSES EYE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

In an automobile accident Sunday night on the road between Butte and Helena, 6-year-old "Billy" Turnbull, son of W. N. Turnbull of 1747 Whitman street, was thrown through the windshield of his father's car.

Upon being taken to Murray hospital it was found that the child would sustain the loss of one eye. The boy is reported as resting well after the operation.

Over a year ago the citizens of Butte voted authorization to the mayor and city council to issue bonds for a permanent public market. The bonds were offered for sale and would probably have been sold, but for the financial conditions incident to our participation in the world war.

But now the world war is over. The armistice was signed and to all intents and purposes hostilities ceased last November. And the public market bonds should now be readily saleable. Arguments against the establishment of a permanent public market have been made by interests identified with the profiteering merchants of the city, who, during the war and since, maintained exorbitant prices for all food necessities. It was declared that the citizens of Butte, especially the housewives, would not patronize a public market and that they did not want cheaper prices, the same statement having been advanced that they would rather pay higher prices.

But the city curb market, the advertisements of whose merchants appears on this page and the success of which venture is assured, shows conclusively that the consumers of the city of Butte are entirely in favor of a permanent city market. The curb market, as constituted now is merely a makeshift. It is up to the mayor and the city council to fulfill the wishes of the people as expressed in their action in voting the city market bonds and to give us a real market.

Had it not been for the curb market, the cost of living in Butte, instead of being comparatively as low as it is today, would have been much higher than it was when the establishment of the curb market, with its attendant sales of foodstuffs at reasonable prices, helped to cut down the exorbitant profits of the profiteers.

To any observant man, woman or child in Butte, the fact is apparent that the sales of necessities at the market at reasonable prices has done much to curb the profiteers. And, while efforts are being made by the profiteers to kill the market, it behooves every person in the city who is not a profiteer to get behind the men and women, who, opening stalls at the curb market and selling their products at reasonable prices, have taken the profit out of profiteering and made prices for necessities in Butte reach the level at which you and I can buy.

At its original meeting the Consumers' League, foreseeing the efforts of the profiteers to wreck the curb market, signed an agreement binding each member to patronize the market, no matter how low the advertised prices on similar articles sold by known profiteering merchants. At this time, when every effort of the profiteers is being turned to wreck the market, it is the bounden duty of every citizen to patronize those men and women and establishments whose advertisements on this page show that they are members of the Butte Consumers' Market.

YOUNG BUTTE COUPLE JOINED IN MATRIMONY

John Williams, secretary of the Industrial Workers of the World No. 809, and Margaret Buckley, daughter of Mrs. James Buckley of 52 1/2 West Galena street, were married yesterday at 3 o'clock by Justice of the Peace Buckley.

Mary Owen and May Lowthion attended the bride, while several old friends of the groom were present.

Mrs. Williams was born in Walkerville 22 years ago, and has resided in Butte all her life. Mr. Williams came to Butte from Cleveland, O. He has been well known in Butte, having taken an active part in the labor movement for years.

He was in the first contingent of Butte men to leave for overseas, where he served continuously at the front from November, 1917, till the close of hostilities.

Mr. Williams brought many mementoes of the conflict home with him—among others, the scars of three different wounds, for each one of which he paid the price of a long term in hospital. He wore sergeant's stripes when he was mustered out, as well as the signet ring of a German soldier whom he killed in a bayonet duel.

After a brief honeymoon on the Pacific coast, the young couple will be at home to their friends at the Napton block.

MAYOR GIVES JOB TO LOCAL GROCER

Announcement has been made by Mayor Stodden that he has appointed T. C. Truscott, a grocer at 646 East Park street, to the position of city market master. Various protests are said to have been lodged with the mayor against the appointment.

Mr. Truscott, in addition to operating a grocery store, also operates two stalls at the public market.

MONTANA POWER CO. SIGNS NEW CONTRACTS

Contracts for another year were signed Monday between the Montana Power company and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The new contracts provide a uniform wage throughout the state of $7 per day for journeymen electricians.

This is no increase for the Butte and Anaconda electricians but gives wage increase to members in the towns whose scale previous to 1919 were below Butte and Anaconda. It is understood that the contracts as entered into are satisfactory both to the employer and employee.

Contracts have not as yet been signed with the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company, but will act upon the proposal from the company within the next few days.

Today's Anniversary.

Herod Agrippa.

There is a picture in a notable private gallery in Philadelphia to which one is gruesomely attracted upon entering the gallery. It is a small canvas. It depicts the massive, blunted face of Herod Agrippa who wears his hair in respectable curls. You stand before the picture, a nasty little cold chill creeping along your nerves. Scrutinizing the canvass you discover that in the curls of Herod there are twined and intertwined thousands of dear babies of the massacre of 2 A. D., recorded in the Gospel of St. Matthew. The infants writhe and clutch and twist in convulsive agony. Herod Agrippa met his Nemesis. Today, Sept. 16, is the anniversary of his being thrown into prison by order of Tiberius, Roman emperor, in the year A. D. 36. "Thrown into prison," meant the loathsome dungeons of the Mamertine in Rome, where twisting little things writhed along the flesh of the incarcerated. Retribution is a law.
