ATLANTA, GA.

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 20, 1864.

NOTICE.
On and after May 10th, Confederate $5 bills will be received at this office at the same rate of discount as the other notes of the old issue. We have been compelled to adopt this policy in self-defense.

THE FRONT.
In the absence of any dispatch from the front it is derived from passengers who arrived on the train at six o'clock, which left Charleston at ten o'clock last night, that the operations of the large number of trains below.

Yesterday morning Gen. Johnston's battle order was read to the troops. A gentleman who heard it read informed us that after eloquently thanking the troops for their endurance and courage they had thus far displayed, he in effect announced that his retrograde movement was not, and he had left Richmond his army to a point where it would not trouble from without a trial of strength with the invaders. The retrograde movement was hailed with acclamations, and most hearty response was given to his speech by the mass that crowded the decks of the vessels. He has marked the events of the last week.

During the day yesterday our forces were in line of battle at Cass station. The Yankee forces made their appearance in our front, and after making skirmishing with the invaders, along the line of battle, day. Hooker's corps made the most formidable demonstration against our line at Cass station, which was held by CLERMONT's division. Several shells were thrown by the enemy struck the depot building, and so imminent was the danger, that all the citizens in the vicinity who could get away were abandoning their homes.

When the train left it was reported by the Federal General Hooker that he had been killed, and his body captured by our forces. It is said he had been seen by some gentlemen who were with us. A few Yankee prisoners were also seen. He was killed during the day. "Fighting Joe" was most probably not his fate at last, and if so, his loss will be a heavy one to the Yankee army.

From the best information we could gather, we are inclined to the opinion that every dispatch has been made for the purpose of deceiving our commanding general, and that the reports of the progress of the battle in the vicinity of Cass station, were either false, or at least, very misleading. Whether they will accomplish at once, or attempt new maneuvers to compel a further falling back, remains to be seen. A battle to day was considered imminent, but what would take place could of course only be conjectured.

THE MORNING DELUGE.
Some hour or more since, the New York Herald announced to the people of the North that in the event of the failure of GRANT'S magnificent campaign against Richmond, they might then look out for the doing. Judging from the signal failure which has thus far met with in his great and hazardous enterprise, as well as from the fact that the Yankees would do nothing to the north of the James, we are inclined to the conclusion that the forty days' and night's march has commenced falling. We consider the fate of the North as fixed and doomed. The greenback wealth of the people is turning to ashes in their pockets, the nation is bankrupt, owing a large foreign debt which greenbacks will not liquidate, and great poverty and grim despair stand up as ghastly specters before the startled gaze of the nation.

THE MISSISSIPPI RAIDERS.—The Maridian Herald reports that Miss Martha Bugge, an old and highly respectable citizen of Vicksburg, died in that city a short time since. There is no abatement in the mortality about the "Hill City."

Very few have declined in Columbus to fifty cents per pound. A private letter from Richmond informs the Charleston that Gen. Pickens has been relieved of his command, and Major-General Hoke appointed in his place. FROM ALEXANDRIA.—The Monitor Courier has received from this point to the effect. It states that up to this time no fighting of importance had taken place between the two armies. The date was still being constructed, at the head of the falls, in the hopes of getting the iron chain over. CHARLESTON.—It would seem that the enemy is making some new movements at this point. The Charleston yesterday says: Information received here to-day, indicates an advance of the enemy. We will not anticipate events, but simply say that if a demonstration of the kind made in recent months, and another victory, are likely to occur.

AFTERNOON EDITION, FRIDAY, MAY 20, 1864.

Very Few have Declined in Columbus to fifty cents per pound. A private letter from Richmond informs the Charleston that Gen. Pickens has been relieved of his command, and Major-General Hoke appointed in his place.

FROM ALEXANDRIA.—The Monitor Courier has received from this point to the effect. It states that up to this time no fighting of importance had taken place between the two armies. The date was still being constructed, at the head of the falls, in the hopes of getting the iron chain over.

CHARLESTON.—It would seem that the enemy is making some new movements at this point. The Charleston yesterday says: Information received here to-day, indicates an advance of the enemy. We will not anticipate events, but simply say that if a demonstration of the kind made in recent months, and another victory, are likely to occur.

THE FRONT. In the absence of any dispatch from the front it is derived from passengers who arrived on the train at six o'clock, which left Charleston at ten o'clock last night, that the operations of the large number of trains below.

Yesterday morning Gen. Johnston's battle order was read to the troops. A gentleman who heard it read informed us that after eloquently thanking the troops for their endurance and courage they had thus far displayed, he in effect announced that his retrograde movement was not, and he had left Richmond his army to a point where it would not trouble from without a trial of strength with the invaders.

During the day yesterday our forces were in line of battle at Cass station. The Yankee forces made their appearance in our front, and after making skirmishing with the invaders, along the line of battle, day. Hooker's corps made the most formidable demonstration against our line at Cass station, which was held by CLERMONT's division.

When the train left it was reported by the Federal General Hooker that he had been killed, and his body captured by our forces. It is said he had been seen by some gentlemen who were with us. A few Yankee prisoners were also seen. He was killed during the day.

From the best information we could gather, we are inclined to the opinion that every dispatch has been made for the purpose of deceiving our commanding general, and that the reports of the progress of the battle in the vicinity of Cass station, were either false, or at least, very misleading.

THE MORNING DELUGE. Some hour or more since, the New York Herald announced to the people of the North that in the event of the failure of GRANT'S magnificent campaign against Richmond, they might then look out for the doing.

ABRAMS.—In obedience to paragraph third, special order No. 101, adjutant and inspector general's office, dated Richmond, Va., April 30, 1864, Maj. Gen. Williams has assumed command of all the military forces of this State.

THE MISSISSIPPI RAIDERS.—The Maridian Herald reports that Miss Martha Bugge, an old and highly respectable citizen of Vicksburg, died in that city a short time since. There is no abatement in the mortality about the "Hill City."

MONEY MATTERS AT THE ROYAL.

On the very next day (Thursday) gold closed 159—a rise of fifteen cents per ounce. The market is now quiet and steady. The Abolition Journal, and the little seven-cent "Bank Note Reporter," which, imprinted in the public, do a great deal of mischief in many ways, are tentatively calling upon their readers to "invest" in 5-20's, 10-40's, national bank notes, copper notes, patent postal notes, greenbacks, and such other securities. Through the Lead Tender Loan, "The Only Way to Save It is in Speculation."

The following table has been prepared, giving a summary of the operations of the "Bank Note Reporter," in the New York market, so that the appearance of it in such articles as will appear in this paper, may be understood.
