COLLECTION OF RECORDS OF DECEASED SOLDIERS' GLAZES. The following has just been issued at the headquarters of the Grand Army of the Republic, Washington, June 25: of General Order No. 14.

The Commander-in-Chief calls attention to the following Congressional act, which will regard to the memorial copies of the 30th ult.:

The Congress of the United States, in the House of Representatives, June 22, on motion of Mr. Logan—

Resolved, That the proceedings of the different cities, towns, and villages, in commemoration of the gallant heroes who have sacrificed their lives in defense of the Republic, and the records of the ceremonial of the dedication of the honored tombs of the departed, shall be collected and bound under the direction of such persons as the Speaker shall designate, for the use of Congress.

EDWARD McPHERSON, Clerk of the House. WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.

Frank Moore, editor of the "Rebellion Record," is hereby appointed under the act of the "Scholarship" Congress, to be the "Rebellion Record."

In order to make successful this effort to perpetuate the record of a just tribute to our patriotic dead, department and post commanders, and all other officers and leaders, every thing pertaining to the ceremonies alluded to which can aid to complete the work proposed—namely, paragraphs, editorial and review accounts, and also manuscript copies of addresses and observations which may not have been printed by the press.

JOHN A. LOGAN, Commander-in-Chief. There is no generous Confederate soldier who will not give to the Congress of the United States for providing decent internment for the remains, and honoring the memories of the soldiers of the Union, who fell fighting under the flag of the country. If the South had won its independence, we are proud enough to believe that it would have gathered the remains of the invaders whose blood had reddened its soil, and given them decent burial, and permitted the country in whose cause they fell to establish cemeteries and there gather their remains together. The enemies of the generous dead at the grave of their object; and one of the privileges of a soldier is to pay respect to the remains of the enemy whose courage constituted his glory.

The enemies of the generous dead at the grave of their object; and one of the privileges of a soldier is to pay respect to the remains of the enemy whose courage constituted his glory.

THE JURY then retired and in a few minutes brought the following: VERDICT.

SEATS OF TENNESSEE, Knox County. We, the jury duly elected, do hereby find and swear, and charged by R. D. Fox, Esq., acting as Counsel for the Plaintiff, that the said Col. Ashby, on the 10th day of July, 1868, at the place above named, did shoot and kill the said H. M. Ashby, by firing at and shooting him three times with a pistol, against the peace and dignity of the State.

Given under our hands, this 10th day of July, 1868.

Col. Ashby, the deceased, was about forty-two or thirty-three years of age. He belonged to the family of the name of Ashby, during the war, in the name of Dick and Turner Ashby, of Virginia.

MURDER OF COL. ASHBY.

Particulars of the Affair.

We take the following particulars of the killing of Col. Ashby from the Knoxville Press and Herald of Saturday:

The difficulty between Col. H. M. Ashby and E. C. Camp terminated yesterday in the death of Col. Ashby. It appears that Col. Ashby went into Camp's office, on Main street, at about five o'clock yesterday afternoon, and after some conversation, Camp proposed to go out in the street and settle the difficulty. Accordingly they went out in the street, and Camp fired at Col. Ashby, and he returned the fire, and the two were killed.
