

MEMPHIS APPEAL

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CITY. WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 20, 1871

THE MERCHANTS' TAX—ITS REPEAL MUST NOT INCREASE OTHER TAXES.

Everybody concedes that the merchant's tax is too high. It is ruining the merchant, grinding the people and injurious to our cities, as they cannot pay exorbitant taxes and compete with those in neighboring States...

But, say the pensioned pimps of the bond-holders, who propose to speculate on the sweat and toil of the horny-handed laborer: "Why remove the tax from the shoulders of the merchant? Not a bit of it. Every other interest is already weighed down and staggers under the load of taxes imposed by the interest on bonds issued in violation of the law...

In 1869 the aggregate population of Shelby county was 48,992. In 1870 it was 76,378. Of this latter 89,737 were whites and 86,840 blacks. In 1860, we had 226 free negroes and 16,963 slaves, making a total of 17,229. This compared with the 86,840 blacks of 1870 shows an increase of 19,411 in the last ten years.

proportion, and Eastern banking houses must have shared in the profits of ours for the greenbacks they loaned. Suppose we had all the banking capital we need here? All the profits would accrue here and money would circulate throughout the year would be the rule. We want capital. Let us have more banks instead of insurance companies.

GRANT openly favors the election of Ben. Butler as a candidate for the governorship of Massachusetts. Every Federal office-holder in the State is thus ordered, as shown in the contest in Wisconsin, to adhere to Butler or vacate his office. It thus becomes useless, in point of fact, so far as the Republican party is concerned, to hold conventions and nominate candidates. Grant manages the State in the South, under the protection of the Ku-Klux act, and things entirely his own way, and the people, when he may choose to assert his authority, will have no voice in elections. Having, practically, the power to appoint all State and Federal officers, the President is supreme, and the empire is already upon us.

The University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, becomes one of the most attractive seats of learning in the South. Tuscaloosa is famed for its beautiful and healthy. The broad, level streets of this rose-embowered little city are charming. Pomegrates, trues, magnolias and grand old oaks lend a divinity to classic shades. The institution is richly endowed, and Lieutenant Matury, who delivers the address at our coming fair, presides over and shapes its fortunes. His library, burned by a savage band of freebooters of General Wilson's command, is reproduced, and the old institution may yet achieve the purposes of its founders.
