

MEMPHIS APPEAL

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 26, 1872.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET FOR SHELBY COUNTY.

For Sheriff, W. J. P. DOYLE. For Chancellor, SAMUEL P. WALKER. For County Trustee, A. WOODWARD. For State and County Tax-Collector, GEORGE R. POWELL.

THE MECHANICS FOR GREELEY.

In every section of the Union, the mechanics are rallying to the support of Greeley. They know that his election to the Presidency would be a high compliment to the laboring masses, and they feel interested in his success. All concede that Greeley has committed errors of judgment—erred in political economy, but everybody concedes to him great talent and honesty. They who live by hand physical labor—the mechanic, the artisan, the mason and the plowholder—the day-laborer in every humble vocation of life—all these have never a word to utter against the integrity and kindly simplicity of character of the white-coated philosopher who would rather be fooled in doing a generous act than earn a reputation for sagacity by some hard, cunning stroke that sets him up as an oracle or levies him with the trail of the serpent over him. Here, then, is a vast element in politics, drawn from all parties, which will come up with enthusiasm and perfectly intelligible will give their support to the Democratic nominee. The American laborer becomes daily more of a thinking character, and he runs naturally to the admiration of a true man. Already the prestige to the deafening of the "Horse" begins to rumble on the air and awaken the free press of our country to invigorated life. One hears it on the street—once catches it in the workshop—and no intelligent man doubts the result. It will result in the triumph of election of Greeley. He will be lifted to the highest civil magistracy in the world, upon the wings of man who gets his living by the sweat of his brow. No one who has not studied the labor movements of the past few years knows how many well-informed, bright, capable leaders there are among these working men. The politician may not do much with them, but in their own behalf, with their own purposes and peculiar pride, they will stand by the Greeley ticket, advancing it to victory. With these men Greeley has strength—no Republican of the Grant class has any strength with them which can be compared with Greeley. They begin to see the viciousness and inconsistency of the Grant policy and desire a fraternity with their Southern brethren which they cannot at present enjoy. They are not content with the social odium, of carpeting indignities, which are now so justly complained of in the South. They see that Greeley will abide by the untrammeled will of the people. They see that Grant never meant it, and that Grant's gang of managers will allow no candidate of theirs to pass it.

GRANT'S sudden abandonment of the capital when Congress adjourned, and his supreme devotion to horses and dogs at Long Branch, and neglect of public duties have wrought marked indignities upon Northern public opinion. It is stated that while communities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, heretofore Radical, have hailed to Greeley, the World's and Chicago Times' hostility to Greeley has penetrated these remote. CONGRESS appropriated fifteen thousand dollars to test the practicability of Greeley's new mode of cutting of tube through which hollow spheres, containing newspapers, goods, etc., are moved by atmospheric pressure. They are yet within a brief period, read the New York papers, and the following tables on the morning of their publication.

MISSISSIPPI and CHILD, of Dyersburg, were at the Peabody yesterday for the purpose of securing the subscription of one hundred thousand dollars exacted by Dyersburg by Memphis and Paducah Railroad Company. Dyersburg raised the sum, and sent two of the wealthiest, most enterprising citizens of the place to announce the fact formally to the railroad managers.

AN EX-U. S. SENATOR. Paul de Gassagne has fought another duel. The State horticulturist of California has fifteen thousand dollars a year. Schuyler Colfax Smith languishes in an Indiana jail for mail robbery. Mr. Spurgeon is said to be quite willing, if he can be induced, to be elected to enter upon parliamentary life. Dr. Phillips, Bishop of Exeter, England, has been elected to the chair of divinity at the University of Cambridge. Houghton, editor of the Christian (West Virginia) Herald, committed suicide last Tuesday, because of domestic difficulties. The late Parson Stevens bequeathed forty thousand dollars to the Stevens High School in Clarendon, New Hampshire, his native town. Gilmore was threatened with "brain fever" on the day of the jubilee, but the disease was so alarmed at the prospect of the noise that it fled. M. D. Conway says that Miss Kate Phelps' successful anti-slavery lectures in London will probably have the effect of breaking down the prejudice against female lecturers in this country. General Massey is still comparatively a young man, and he looks much younger than he really is. He is small and slight, with a finely outlined face, soft bright eyes, and smooth dark hair, shaven back from his high narrow forehead. The story of Mr. Greeley's white tooth and his "hot food" is the latest present time. The candidate for White House honors passed the "Horse" ordeal with flying colors. He is a habit of late years, a brown dress coat, black dress coat, black trousers, single-breasted black frock coat, black velvet, and a dark brown straw hat. The "latter somewhat" the worse for the "Horse" is a small, neat, clean-shaven man, with a high forehead, and a pair of eyes that are like a man who has seen more of what he is than what he looks like.

COLONEL RICHARD R. SOMERVELL. The card of this gentleman appears in the APPEAL, announcing himself a candidate for Congress. Colonel Somervell is an old and honored citizen of Tipton county. He has served the people in the State Legislature, and his extended acquaintance and great popularity will make him a formidable competitor for the nomination. Colonel Somervell has always been a farmer, and his ability and industry and practical sense would make him a useful member of Congress. Colonel Somervell is a consistent and answering Democrat, allied upon as a wheeler in Tipton, and is squarely and fairly for the nomination of Horace Greeley. He has been the largest for the white candidate, but he has never given credit, and will go before the proposed District Convention with a name united.

GRANT'S sudden abandonment of the capital when Congress adjourned, and his supreme devotion to horses and dogs at Long Branch, and neglect of public duties have wrought marked indignities upon Northern public opinion. It is stated that while communities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, heretofore Radical, have hailed to Greeley, the World's and Chicago Times' hostility to Greeley has penetrated these remote. and Reform flag, and pledged ourselves in every possible channel, we would support his ticket. The Democratic people finally believed. The greatest and best and most eminent Liberals felt it, and led the way and raised the flag, and the Democratic North and South have hailed it with joy; and if they have not, as a few yet presume to say, pledged themselves, then they ought to do so, and will refuse to crown our mountain of misfortunes with a last word of perfidy. I am a true citizen of Kansas, true ally to the honor and rights of the South, and sharing the passion and indignation of all hard-hearted, and as a strict States Rights Union man, now that the war is over, and considering any contrary policy hereafter a policy of endless war on this continent, and as a Southern Democrat, I cannot and do not consent to break with the Liberals. Even if I were without more to say, I should regard this as a great day, I have scarcely touched the mass of facts that are weights and the gravest reasons, and in favor of strong our people Convention the open and manly adoption of the action taken at Cincinnati.

He is a habit of late years, a brown dress coat, black dress coat, black trousers, single-breasted black frock coat, black velvet, and a dark brown straw hat. The "latter somewhat" the worse for the "Horse" is a small, neat, clean-shaven man, with a high forehead, and a pair of eyes that are like a man who has seen more of what he is than what he looks like.

PERSONAL. Paul de Gassagne has fought another duel. The State horticulturist of California has fifteen thousand dollars a year. Schuyler Colfax Smith languishes in an Indiana jail for mail robbery. Mr. Spurgeon is said to be quite willing, if he can be induced, to be elected to enter upon parliamentary life. Dr. Phillips, Bishop of Exeter, England, has been elected to the chair of divinity at the University of Cambridge. Houghton, editor of the Christian (West Virginia) Herald, committed suicide last Tuesday, because of domestic difficulties. The late Parson Stevens bequeathed forty thousand dollars to the Stevens High School in Clarendon, New Hampshire, his native town. Gilmore was threatened with "brain fever" on the day of the jubilee, but the disease was so alarmed at the prospect of the noise that it fled. M. D. Conway says that Miss Kate Phelps' successful anti-slavery lectures in London will probably have the effect of breaking down the prejudice against female lecturers in this country. General Massey is still comparatively a young man, and he looks much younger than he really is. He is small and slight, with a finely outlined face, soft bright eyes, and smooth dark hair, shaven back from his high narrow forehead. The story of Mr. Greeley's white tooth and his "hot food" is the latest present time. The candidate for White House honors passed the "Horse" ordeal with flying colors.
