

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

For Tennessee and Ohio valley, warm and clear with occasional falling barometer, partly cloudy and possibly rainy weather.

OBSERVATIONS YESTERDAY.

Table with columns: Time, Barometer, Thermometer, Wind, Clouds, etc. for various locations like Memphis, Nashville, etc.

WENDELL PHILLIPS, not Ben Butler, is the candidate of the Greenback party for governor of Massachusetts.

M. H. ALLEN, formerly of the Winona Advertiser, has been nominated for mayor of the counties of Choctaw and Montgomery.

The Illinois corn crop will be more than a three-fourths average, according to the reports to the department of agriculture at Washington.

GENERAL LONESTREET is now a candidate of Georgia, in which State he is managing a sheep-farm. He is a candidate for United States marshal of the State.

The Fisk university jubilee singers, a colored organization of Nashville, called from New York yesterday by the steamer DeWitt on an extended professional tour throughout Europe.

BEACON of trust has compelled James Van Tassel, auditor of Orangeburg county, and J. P. Mays, one of the county commissioners of Orangeburg, South Carolina, to fly to parts unknown.

The Fisk university jubilee singers, a colored organization of Nashville, sailed from New York yesterday by the steamer DeWitt on an extended professional tour throughout Europe.

CHARLES PROBERT, and very sensibly, too, against the proposed Deputies to factory House, and says: "The country does not live behind fortified castles; it lives in the breasts of its citizens."

The Democracy of Lowndes county, Mississippi, have nominated James C. Neilson, J. Harris Field and Art. J. Ervin for representatives. John A. Saal for treasurer, Major James B. Bell for sheriff, A. L. Myers for assessor, and E. D. Minter for surveyor.

JUDGES LOCHMAN proposes to cease certain property now in Chattanooga, belonging to the State of Georgia, in behalf of the bondholders of that State, forces the State into court as a defendant, and compel her to plead to the bond question on its merits. A good scheme for the lawyers.

MANY of our exchanges since the first instant have noticed us in a kindly and very generous spirit. Graced by such evidences of appreciation by our conferees, we assure them that we reciprocate all the good feeling which they contain, and shall endeavor to deserve their good opinion in the future.

THE canvass in Mississippi will be opened at Okolona, on Wednesday, the twelfth instant. The following speakers have been named: L. Q. Lamar, Hon. Charles E. Hooper, Governor J. M. Stone, Colonel Kinloch Falkner, Hon. W. H. Sims, Hon. W. L. Heuminger, and Hon. T. C. Catehings.

The Nashville American is sensible. "By all means," it says, "let us have the national reunion of the blue and the gray, and reach the climax of quiz. That will be the end of the very costly and unproductive quiz, the scene of dramatic, sentimental clap-trap and display. There is nothing more beyond. Nothing more in that line is possible."

THE merchants of Chicago, bright, smart and enterprising, do not indulge in coining. Always hopeful, they look on the bright side of the picture. Predicated upon the fact that the States tributary to them will have fifty million dollars more money in circulation than last year, they confidently look for a twenty-five per cent. increase in trade, all branches being busy.

This news from the recent elections in California continues to be gratifying. Yesterday's dispatches announce that the counting of the city vote of San Francisco would probably be completed by Sunday morning, and will not likely change the result heretofore indicated. The returns from Nevada count change two senators and three assemblymen from Republican to Democratic.

DR. BLISS, Senator Morton's attending physician, related to a reporter of the Washington Nation that he had "enjoyed perfect quiet, and a rest from official labor, and insisted that [Morton] shall not hazard his complete recovery by attempting to cooing his recovery."

GEN. BROWN, it is now authoritatively announced, will be a candidate for United States senator, to fill the place shortly to be vacated by General Grant. Among the other probable candidates are Ex-Governor Joseph E. Brown, Ex-Governor Smith, Congressman Julian H. Burdette, and Ex-Congressman P. M. B. Young. The campaign is already opened, as the legislature chosen this fall will be the one to elect a senator.

The Clarksville Tobacco-Lovers, noticing a dispatch mentioning Hon. John F. Houston as the coming man for speaker, says: "So far as we know, Colonel Howe has never announced himself a candidate, or even sought to bring his name prominently before the press, and this fact makes it all the more complimentary, while it is an acknowledgment of his eminent ability to fill the position which so many others are seeking to secure."

JUDGES BRACKEN, of Pennsylvania, says the Baltimore Sun has written a letter on the subject of the proposed increase in the army as one means of solving the labor question. Judge Bracken thinks this would not be a remedy, but an aggravation of the disease, and with grim humor suggests that it would be better and cheaper to charge the national treasury with fair wages to employ, and let the corporations have the fruits of their labor as clear gain.

The fact will fly when congress meets. Conkling is on the war path, and refuses to be conciliated. He will control the Rochester convention, the resolutions of which "will denounce Hayes's civil service as extra-constitutional, and may possibly proclaim against his abandonment of the south." Conkling says he has received over one thousand letters imploring him to protest against Hayes's aid and Democratic policy. He is in good health, and satisfied that Schurz, Frantz, mean his ruin, and therefore he quits his post and assumes the aggressive.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE New York World says that the interest in Mr. Black's exploded rejoinder to Mr. Stoughton is very keenly in "sporting" with the subject.

SOME of our congressmen have been making speeches to the constituents at Washington. Hon. J. D. C. Atkins addressed an audience on the topics of the day, and last Monday General Whithouse addressed a large assembly at Pulaski. From the Columbia Journal we learn that the general was very successful.

REVERSED the condition of the country, exposed to the attacks of an assassin, as well as the fact that the Republican legislature, under the great poverty and necessitous distress, are the great evils of the day, exhibiting to the eyes of the people the most deplorable and disgraceful condition of affairs.

THE Panola State has a lengthy and very sensible article on Memphis and her trade, which, just at this time, will be appreciated by our merchants as seasonable, as well as just. Taking an article from the APPEAL as the groundwork for the fair conclusion that we have enjoyed and merited a prosperity all the more marked when contrasted with the condition of things in other States.

THE rain continues falling in torrents on every street, and in every branch of business, and a merchant from the interior can supply himself in Memphis as well as in New York, and has his orders filled more promptly, and satisfaction more certainly assured, because, in the event of error of any kind, it can more readily be corrected near home than at a distance, and as a general rule New York merchants don't like to allow themselves to be bothered about small things. Not only, therefore, is it to the interest of our farmers and planters, but equally so our merchants, to sustain and build up Memphis.

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

FOREIGN.

Funeral of M. Thiers—All Business Suspended in Paris—The Streets Crowded and the Most Respectful Manifestations of Grief Made by the People.

The Pope's Health Falling—Osman Pasha Moving to Retake Egypt—Servia Supported by Germany and Encouraged by Italy—Value of the Capture of Lovatz.

PARIS, September 8.—Deputations from many provincial towns have arrived, and others are expected, to witness the funeral of Thiers. Large numbers of people are expected from the provinces, and many English visitors are here with the same object.

Washington, September 8.—The national flag at all consular and diplomatic departments, in respect to the late Ex-President Thiers, of France.

Washington, September 8.—The clear-akers' strike ended today by Krohn, Feiss & Co. according to the demand of the strikers, discharging all the women in their employ.

New York, September 8.—The steamship (Cable) from Southampton, bringing one hundred thousand pounds in gold coin, and another steamer brought six hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Dayton, September 7.—W. H. Grandeur, charged with committing a forgery in Grand Rapids, Michigan, last month, was handed over to Sheriff Waldston, of that city, today, who left with him this afternoon for Ohio.

New York, September 8.—Bank statement—Increase, $142,100; specie increase, $3,500; legal-tender increase, $2,000; deposits increase, $1,123,400; circulation increase, $185,100; reserve increase, $29,500.

Harrisburg, Pa., September 8.—The railroad rioters convicted here last week were sentenced to the State Prison for a term ranging from two to six months, and to pay fines of from twenty to five hundred and ten dollars.

Washington, September 7.—The secretary of War has addressed a letter to General Schofield, commanding the Department of the West, approving his order which provides summary and severe punishments for leaving the ranks.

Pittsburg, September 7.—A dispatch from Johnston to the Associated Press of this city says that George A. Burt, assistant manager of the Cambria iron works, and son-in-law of Hon. D. J. Morrill, died there this afternoon at five o'clock, of cholera.

Baltimore, September 8.—The German synod of the United States began its annual session last evening with the annual service by Dr. C. F. Johnson, pastor of the German church. The synod represents forty-nine churches, with a membership of about eight hundred.

Boston, September 8.—Charles H. Gould, bookkeeper to Thomas Parker, Main street, was arrested yesterday for an unknown offense, and taken to the city prison, where he was held for the money-raiser and escaped.

Atlantic City, N. J., September 8.—A very heavy rain storm began last night, and continued all day. The tide is higher than ever before known here, doing great damage to property, and the railroad cars were blown off the rails. The railroads were covered with two or three feet of water, extinguishing the first on locomotives.

New York, September 8.—A heavy storm yesterday sent a tremendous sea rolling in upon the coast, and much property was blown away. The Long Branch and Coney Island railroad track of the New Jersey and Southern railroad, at High Point, was washed away, but repairs have been made and the trains are again running.

San Francisco, September 8.—The investigation of the management of the custom-house was commenced by the treasury committee of the senate this evening. The case was discovered in which one million dollars of sugar entered without paying duty. The sugar was apparently the property of the duty—thirteen thousand dollars.

New York, September 8.—Five steamships left for Europe to-day. The shipments of grain and canned goods to Europe are two hundred thousand bushels of the former, and twelve thousand cases of the latter. Cheese exports aggregate about thirty-five hundred boxes; butter, thirteen thousand six hundred boxes; fresh, one hundred and forty tons; live horses, thirty-four.

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickliffe for all it claims to be worth, the whole story rests still upon the word of Crawford. Wickliffe's information is derived through letters from Crawford. It is Crawford, at last, who says he is Osman Pasha, and it must be borne in mind that in Robert's 'bright lexicon of youth' lying in its dust on the floor of the arts. Respect for the truth he always regarded as a relic of barbarism. Besides, he would almost as much enjoy the notoriety of being Osman Pasha as he does of being a successful lawyer."

THE Knoxville Tribune is absolutely cruel. It knocks the pins from under the Osman Pasha, and says: "One fact which has been overlooked in weighing the evidence adduced in support of the theory that Osman Pasha is Crawford. Taking the letter of Wickl