WHAT EVERY WOMAN WANTS TO KNOW—THINGS THAT INTEREST MAID AND MATRON

ELLEN ADAIR SEES BOTH SIDES OF LIFE ON LONDON NIGHT

She Gets Glimpse of Derelicts by Thames Embankment and Witnesses a Romance in Restaurant.

A certain tender radiance clings about a London summer evening, when the roar of the traffic is hushed, and the sky is slowly changing in a long and pleasant twilight. The streets at 7 o'clock no longer teem with busy men, the trains have carried these to long-drawn happy have carried these to long-drawn happy evenings on the hundred golf links which surround the great city—to gay little tennis clubs—to quiet backwaters, where rows of gaily decorated houseboats line the old river Thames. The punts and skiffs at Hampton Court are filled with happy drifting couples, and moored beneath the overhanging willows the white-fearened gives touth is courting the flanneled river youth is courting the white-clad English river girl. Oh, happy youth! Dear Hampton Court! The old red palace in its stately Elizabethan beauty every summer witnesses the same old scenes as in those stately days 400 years ago when Anne Boleyn coquetted with the amorous King Henry, and idly with the amorous King Henry, and idly drifted, a happy Queen, in her short love dream on the river Thames.

That July evening, the night before I sailed for America, is still so fresh with in my mind. We drove around the London streets, the little oid lawyer man and I, perched high on the great motor-bus. And mingled with the pain of my recent loss, my lonely present, and my vague uncertain future. I felt a strange elation. For I was setting forth on the Great Adventure.

"Miss Adair" said my companion sud-denly, "you're a fine little girl, and I hate to think of you clearing off like this, with no one to help you. I hope that uncle of yours over in Philadelphia is a safe proposition. You wrote him last week, didn't you? He'il probably come to New York to meet you. I wish I could stay here in town to see you to your train tomorrow morning—but I can't. I've rung up a good bearding-house in Wengington and they've got a room for Kensington, and they've got a room for you there tonight. And tomorrow just taxi over to Waterloo Station, and a portaxi over to Waterioo Station, and post-ter will book you and your luggage right through to Southempton on the early boat-train. Got your ticket all right?"
"Yes, indeed," said I hurriedly, for I did not like to meditate on the fact that I was traveling sicerage—it was all I

LIFE'S DERELICTS IN LONDON. ourneyed many miles in silence, out Thames Embankment, when the derelicts, cast up from God knows where-the melancholy army of the Might-Haveof look like tramps and beggars!" No matter," said the little man, "they yonder lonely seats have often sat the greatest geniuses of the age-shabby-hungry-neglected-misunderstood. The don't believe it's true, cried I as six times in one day. vanitatum—how true that is.

"I don't believe it's true," cried I villantly. "for life is surely what we make it. I hate that dull philosophizing—the path of glory leads beyond the raye, and anyhow should include a very praye, and anyhow should include a very construction. The path of glory leads beyond the had arrived in South Dakota at 10 o'clock.

"I don't believe it's true, "cried I villant with the child witnessed a curious and depring sight, which was ever after to influence her future life and work. Dozerave, and anyhow should include a very prisoners spent."

the great restaurant a long line of taxis, is indaulettes, electric broughams was assembled. It was now nine still daylight. And we walked in together, through the cheerful entrance-hall, to a veritable Aladdin's Cave beled sweet odors with exotic perfumes. the East, great palms towered far above our heads to the vaulted roof, the glitter thousand lights sparked in one great INFLUENCE OF MUSIC

And the people: At softy-shaded lamp-lit tables there they sat-and oh! the beauty of the women! I know I saw rose-colored glasses that night, to me it was all Coulen Rose—and the strains of a dear Hun-garian melody were drifting from floor to gailery and dome. A pompous waiter waved us to a tiny table, rose-wreathed, rose-lit-mirrors, mirrors everywhere, looked strangely shabby in that gay

And then the red-coated lender of the orchestra stepped forward and the music changed. It began with a rague sighing of the wind-instruments, like the early stirrings in a wood in autumn when four-footed furry little creature are stealthily stalking over the fallen leaves—I could smell the pines and the bog-myrtle, and feel the fresh keen tank cadence deepened as the 'cellos softly caught the melody. It was all a by a shadow, so softly did they start. then my heart leaped strangely, for the wielin obligate swelled louder. It was the the heart-throbs of a universe it softly rose and fell, ruse and fell, was tender lilting cadence that refused plunge beneath the surface of things. that held that gay crowd, it the hush of a sudden silence. I could still hear the autumn stirrings in my English forest, and see the quiet unfolding of the little wood-sorrel as it relied its pink face and tender foliage to the morning sun.

And then, on a sudden sobbing breath, the music rose on a higher key-no words the music rose on a higher key—no words of mine could give its passion and its pain—nor yet its wild exuitant heauty! Up through the glittering gallery, up through the lofty paim trees and the great arched roof it drifted. I think to the very gates of heaven! It filled me with a yearning and a pain, and yet a strange new ecstacy I could not fathom. Beside us at the nearest table sat a slender lovely girl in a rose-pink gown. siender lovely girl in a rose-pink gown siender lavely girl in a rose-pink gown, and by her side an eager boy, a typical London youth, with a keen, clever face and fine dark eyes. As the melody rose and fell, rose and fell, I saw him suddenly grasp her slim hand in his big strong, sunburnt one. Higher and higher the cadence rose, and in it was the love that many waters cannot quench, and many flonds can never hope to drown. Then suddenly, on one breathless note many floods can never hope to drown. Then suddenly, on one breathless note wibrating with a tender passion, the music paused—and on that passionate note the boy leant forward. "Leonora," said he breathlessly. I turned my head away, for I felt I was rudely treading on holy ground. "Miss Adair," said the little, eld lawyer, "You have not even touched the boyr.

"You have not even touched the hors-d'oeuvres yet—and I wonder why your pretty eyes have tears in them:"

REV. DR. ANNA SHAW AGAIN CAMPAIGNS FOR SUFFRAGE

REV. DR. ANNA SHAW

Is Now Traveling in Northwest States, Where Question of Votes for Women Will be Fought Out at the Next Election.

was reddening in the west-past those her travels, and undergoing as arduous has ever be Embankment seats which hold life's a compaign as any soldier in the time Washington. her plan of action is as strenuous and her lecturing in towns, Miss Shaw gives speeches from the rear platform of the

these are down and out." I said. vember 1, she has addressed, and will have a paigning through seven States; First, in quently includes three or four minor South Linkota, with all its towns; then towns in a single journe; North Dakota, Montana, Nevada, Nebras- in ten different States now, and it is which Dr. Johnson often came here. North Dakota, Montana, Nevada, Nebrashout a copper in his pocket. Here ke Missouri and Ohio. In all those States in under the shadow of Westminster and the Houses of Parillament he sat alone, and the great question of woman's suffrage that this year will include many other States.

It is great question of woman's suffrage the voters, and the vanity of all earthly hopes. O. vanitas sometimes Miss Shaw speaks as often the parents at the age of four. They were shipwrecked at Queenstown as six times in one day.

grave, and anyhow should include a very pleasant life in this world. I mean to make the very most of my life."

"You have the courage of youth," said the little lawyer in his kindly voice, "and now that the hours are slipping by shall we return to dinner? Frascatis in the Strand is a famous place."

And later we arrived there. In front of the great restaurant a long line of taxis. and later on a large meeting in the Opera | early poisode. House.

States. Upon her the Kansas University | why some and a real gift in debate. Although a birth-mark: I was born that way

That valiant - hearted, indefatigable suffragist, she is far from being a miliworker in the woman's cause, the Rev. | tant, and, indeed, there is no necessity Dr. Anna Shaw, is once more out upon for militancy, for no suffrage campaigner her travels, and undergoing as arduous has ever been refused an audience at Better Results Can Be Had If Soil Is Heons.

"See those poor souls sitting yonder," exhaustive as any man could ever hope to undertake.

Build the little lawyer huskly, "life's to undertake.

Every night, from September 1 ill No
"Hur these are down and out." I said.

Thur these are down and out." I said. stopping place, so that Miss Shaw may have a fair sized audience waiting for continue to address, large meetings, and - her, and although she often has only

The vote has been granted to women character Miss Shaw is simple and House.

After a four and a half days journey home and her friends. She enjoys nothyond. In my country inexperience, I thought a new heaven and a new earth had opened—it was all so magnificent through with five and came take place. This domestic side in the last week she has spoken in three differ- very hard for her to have to leave her ent towns in one day, and on more than Her joys of gardening is another tie to one occasion six times on the same day.

The career of the Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw is that the tour she has now embarked is so well known to the Philadelphia upon will prevent her seeing the ripening of her fruit trees and the beauty of the Media grehard in fall.

the is an Englishwoman, a graduate in medicine of Boston University, a graduate many good tales are told. When she first from the theological department of Box. started in college she wore her hair cut ton University and president of the Na- short and once at a Chantauqua gatherton University and president of the Nas fug a pushing young man said to her; tional Suffrage Association of the United "We were just discussing and wondering conferred the degree of Doctor of Di- Mice. Miss Shaw, you would not wear Miss Shaw would have made a spien-did lawyer, for she possesses great pow-ers of oratory, a strong sense of justice you ask me, I will tell you! It was a

FRESH MEATS KEEP THEIR HIGH PLACE IN HOUSEHOLD LIST

Dealers Anticipate Rise in Prices Next Week-Market Basket Quotations Show Little Change.

The prices of meats, poultry, fish, buter, eggs, vegetables and seafoods at the closing of the week remain unchanged and no advance in prices is anticipated by the retail dealers except in the case of fresh meat. Higher prices may be asked for next week.

Mutton and lamb chops are retailing at 25 to 39 cents a pound. Legs of mutton 18 cents and lamb 25 cents. Shoulders of mutton are 12 cents. Sirloin steak is bringing 35 cents a pound and round steak 28 cents. Beef liver is 14 cents and calf's liver 40 cents. Hams cost from 17 to 25 cents a pound. Stewing veal can be had at from 15 to 20 cents a pound.

White potatoes are retailing at 60 cents a basket and sweet potatoes 30 cents a half peck. String beans cost 25 cents a half peck and green peas 40 cents. Tomatoes are 25 cents a half peck. Corn is bringing 25 cents a dozen ears and caulilowest prices quoted on peaches is 25 cents a box. Blackberries are 18 cents a box, huckleberries 18 cents and raspberries 10 cents a box.

The best eggs are 40 cents a dozen. Tub butter 38 cents a pound and print butter 45 cents a pound. Chickens are bringing from 25 to 32 cents a pound.

Fish and scafoods are comparatively cheap. Steak cod can be had for 15 cents a pound. Hallbut is 20 cents. Brook trout is 75 cents and sea bass is selling as low as 12 cents a pound. Catfish is 18 cents and flounders and butterfish are selling for 12 cents a pound. Sixty cents a pound is asked for fresh mackerel and the best oysters are not selling for more

THIS IS THE TIME TO PLACE ALL BULB PLANTS

Prepared.

Tulip and hyacinth, narcissus and daffodil, the little crocus that has such an to plant them all. They are all bulb plants that repay one generously for the little trouble in preparing the soil They will grow almost everywhere, but it goes without saying that the flowers will be large and fine if the ground in which they are planted has had some special preparation.

The earth should be spaded for eight or ten inches: it should be enriched with a fertilizer of some kind at that depth, and if a little sand is placed beneath the bulb itself, so much the bet ter. This will prevent the bulbs from rotting, if heavy rains should follow too he rule for planting hyacinths. Tulips can be planted four inches deep and four inches apart. They both need sunshine, but the snowdrop and the croous can be scattered over the ground or along hedges, or even between evergreens, and yet come up smiling.

and yet come up smiling.

There are many varieties of bulbs, and some of the Dutch kinds are especially expensive. But crocus and narcissus bulbs can be bought for 16 and 15 cents a Single tulips and the Roman hyacinth are to be had for $5 cents dozen. The price of the double tulip and the double hyacinth depends on the nationality of the bulb and the fame of its a dozen is a fair average price. Gardening is regarded by many people as an expensive hobby to ride, but not physicians. It means sunshine and fresh air and an interest in the out-of-doors. It is really more than an interest, for the woman who plants a garden lives in a state of constant and thrilling citement from the moment the i shoot of green appears, through the buding and blossoming time to the very end of the summer. And a woman who has once had a garden will probably spend the winter con-sulting catalogues in preparation for the

COLD STORAGE MEAT

Method Involving Freezing Rather Than Mere Chilling Favored. In these days when cold storage, the employment of preservatives in foods, and the adulteration of food products are being subjected to the most severe criticlam, a discussion held by the Society of British Medical Officers of Health on the refrigeration of food, and reported in the Lancet, should prove of interest, says the Medical Record.

the Medical Record, Dr. Hanna, who opened the discussion, referred to the fact that the United States was not only no longer sending cattle to Great Britain, but was taking for its own supply rattle from countries which had hitherto exported almost exclusively to Great Britain. He went on to point out that the methods of refrigeration of foodstuffs depended chiefly on the scien-tille fact that expanding air or vapor-taing substances, such as sulphuric acid. carbonic acid or ammonia, in assuming the gaseous form abstracted heat fro Fresh meat was carried from distant ountries either as hard frozen meat or hilled meat. Chilled meat arrived in a condition ready for consumption and retained the characteristics of fresh meat more closely than frozen meat, but the chilling process required great care, and the transport needed constant supervis-ion. The frozen method was the better as regarded preservation, althous sometimes damaged the cellular unctimes damaged the cellular and brows structure of the meat unless spevial care was taken in defrosting. Hanns gave it as his opinion that meat when thawed would keep with proper care as well as freshly killed meat after being taken from the refrigerator, even tr high temperature, a view not in accord-ance with popular opinion with popular opinion, course, refrigeration or chilling of Of course, refrigeration or chilling of foodstuffs is necessary when these have to be conveyed for long distances, as for example, from North or South America example, from North or South America to Europe, but great care must be exercised both in the process itself and the defrosting. That, however, animal food thus treated does not undergo a certain amount of deterioration is a view opposed, at least, to popular ideas, and certainly the suggestion that refrigeration may improve the flavor of meat is one not borne out by experience.

THE NEW BASQUE GIRDLES WITH LONG SLEEVES

BEFORE THE SANDMAN COMES

THE CARDINAL'S BREAKFAST

fast of fruit and cereal, and may- frail and easily bent. he a poached egg on toast, did this very minute? Of course, you know they cat worms and grubs and the air. insects, but perhaps they like cereals, too. Notice some time when you are walking where birds are and see if you can find some that eat grains and seed as well as worms. that makes such a gay streak as he as he went. flies across the garden likes seeds the seed time of the year, when every plant in the garden has its own little pods of seed, you need not throw out any bait, as he is wise enough to come there and help himself of the feast that Nature has spread for him. All summer long a certain cardinal had kept his eyes on a very beautiful garden. Some day he was sure he would get some extra fine food from that garden. Above all, he had his eye on the big tall sunflower way back at the end of the yard. Early in summer, this sunflower was a lovely big blossom, so big and cheerful and sunny did he look that he made the whole garden seem like one big smile.

But now the sunflower's big goldy petals were all dried up and blown away, and the soft velvety centre was dry and hard with big fat seeds. You would think the flower was prettiest when in blossom-but the didn't care a bit about a blossom- 31. that's different—that's about the very and cuffs. hest thing to eat he knows of.

For days he watched the seeds dry up-with a soft peck he would test them, but no-they were not quite right, and with a whisk and a song he flew away.

But finally a morning came when the seeds were just right and be decided to stay for breakfast.

led, singing joyously, just as a little child runs around a gaily lighted birthday cake, Then he lighted on it to get the first course. But alas! The flower stem that had been so brave and strong when the Correspondence of general interest to women readers will be printed on this page. Such correspondence should be addressed to the Woman's Editor. Evening Ledger.

S YOU sit down to the nice break- | flower was young was now old and

The bird slid off into the air. Even the weight of the dainty carthe birds are eating for breakfast at dinal bent the face of the old flower so far front that the bird slid off into

"Well, well," said the puzzled cardinal, to himself and he began planning what to do.

At last he decided to get them on the fly, so he made a quick dash, very much better than grubs and worms, and if you throw out wheat, he will surely visit your garden. In the seed time of the year, when every the seed and got another, and then another, till several seeds the seed and got another, and is banded with jet spangles. The effect of the dream is altogether charming, and it has a value for the womankind in the fact that it could be seed and got another, and then another, till several seeds the seed and got another, and then another, till several seeds the seed time of the seath skirt is velled in net, tunic fashion, and is banded with jet spangles.

ground and ate his fine breakfast in a eisurely and gentlemanly fashion (Copyright, 1914, Clara Ingram Judson.)

Tomorrow-Green Apple Dolls.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Among the novelties of the season. ollar and cuff sets in great variety, find conspicuous place. The long sleeve is responsible for the return of the separate cuff and it is shown in linen stiffly starched, or in sheer lawn and batiste, delicately embroidered and sumetimes edged with lace. Collar and cuff sets of linen can be purchased for as little as 50 cents. The collar is wide and flaring and the cuffs are from four to six inches wide, Sheer lawn, edged with a bias fold of pink or blue, attached by the ornamental the necessary $300,000 for the purpose of cardinal wouldn't agree with you. He picot, forms a dainty set that is sold for > of cuffs the same.

> A smart little waistcoat with a collar attached can be bought for 75 cents.
>
> A new idea in the shape of a high collar, exactly like a man's, is made of organdic.

A stiff crayat of narrow black ribbon ties in a conventional bow in front. The match are straight and severe fith a bow of black ribbon to fasten The set coats $2.00.

A plaited collar, wired at the back, vest with plaited ruffe and plaited cuffs, form a novelty that sells for $2.25.
A pretty conceit in the way of neca ornamentation is the collar made of plaited moire ristson in some one of the beautiful colors now in vogue. It is completed by a jabe of lace that falls from both sides half way down the A chemisette of organdie, with an emraidered collar, trimmed with lare and utton of the lingeric variety, costs $3.50, it cuffs to match. or the linen and the pique collars there the crepe de chine necktie, not only a great variety of shades, but figured a a great variety of shades, but ngured and flowered also, and even embroidered. The narrow black velvet ribbon that lates back at least to the beauties of he court of Louis XIV appears this mall, of Blagree silver and chinestones, There is an organism of similar design at each side, no wider than the ribbon, and a class at the back. ded to stay for breakfast.

Round and round the flower he cirteasonable at the price of $1.59.

Former Fashions-Gowns May Combine Several Materials-Elbow Sleeve Lingers.

Fashion may be responsible for many outre and sensational frocks, but simplicity is always attainable without departing from the dictates of the season.

BASQUE GIRDLES

AND LONG SLEEVES

Models Show Revival of

MARK NEW MODES

For evening wear black has a charm that never wanes. Aside from its assured elegance, it has a practical value that makes it a wise choice for the woman of few evening dresses, while at least one black frock is a necessity to the woman of many.

Silks, satins, velvets, nets, chiffons and laces, the whole gamut is run for evening wear this year.

Or, one may chose one material and trim it with another and even combine two or three in such a way that it would be hard to know the foundation from the ornamentation.

Simplicity is the keynote of the gown illustrated, while at the same time it has the high basque girdle and the full length sleeves, which, though revivals of another day, pass as novelties with a new generation.

The bodice is cut surplice fashion, the V in back as well as in front coming down to meet the girdle. It is untrimmed except for the narrow band of jet, which is repeated in greater width at the wrists and still greater on the tunic, while the high girdle is solidly jetted. The under bodice is of satin and is sleeveless. But sleeves are fashioned of the net of the outer bodice, along mousquetaire lines, tapering to the wrist the net of the outer bodice, along mousquetaire lines, tapering to the wrist and ending in heavy bands of jet.

These bands have the appearance of bracelets and make the hands appear both white and small. It is in such details that the artistry of the designer is shown.

There is always a charm shout a mater. There is always a charm about a material that conceals and reveals, and a white skin never looks through filmy black.

These long sleeves are graceful affairs, and are finding favor as a fashion for afternoon frocks in place of the elbow sleeve worn so persistently both winter and summer and spring and autumn for several years. Not but that the elbow sleeve will have its devotees, for it means a freedom and comfort that the full length sleeve and the revived knuckle, Sarah Bernhardt sleeve can never give.

The new girdle that comes up above the bust and well below the waist is made, in the instance of the evening frock shown, of jetted net, alightly draped.

The jetted net is neither too stiff nor too heavy to show the outlines of the figure, for the uncorseted figure is exceedingly popular still, and nothing stiff that would confine it too closely could hope to have present-day approval.

The satin of the skirt is repeated at the confinent of the skirt is repeated at the top of the girdle, very much after the fashion of a binding of wide ribbon. The

The pretty little scarlet cardinal hat makes such a gay streak as he lies across the garden likes seeds

The pretty little scarlet cardinal passed the flower, pecking out a seed as he went.

Without stopping to even taste it,

The satin skirt is veiled in net, tunic

It could be reproduced just as it stands, black satin, veiled in net, jet-spangled basque girdie and jet trimmings, or it ould serve as a model for other ma-The distinctive fashion notes are, of course, the long sleeves and the basque girdle. These should be preserved, or the gown would lose its modish effect. But the jet might be replaced by a number of things if the style of the frock was developed in another color or another material. Gold and silver tissue would serve very well for this purpose. They are highly decorative and would make the basque girdle most effective.

And apropos of these tissues, they are seen in colors this season and in the soft shades that strike a responsive chord in all beauty-loving breasts.

WAR DELAYS LIBRARY Wilmington Postpones Canvass to Raise $300,000 for Building. WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 17 .- War has made itself felt in the project to raise erecting a new library building in this city. The managers of the institution have decided that because of the unsettled condition of business due to the war it would be unwise to start the subscriptions at this time. As soon as business recovers, however, a determined canvass will be made for funds and it not expected there will be any particular difficulty in securing them.

The managers will raise the $300,000 in addition to the funds already on hand building somewhere in the Tenth and Market streets, which is to becity and county building is completed. How Many Shots Will Be Fired?

and while the site has not yet been se-lected, it is intended to erect the new

The question is often asked how many shots are fired in an ordinary battle, and, although it would be impossible to make guess in regards the small arms, the cientific American gives the following figures relating to the artillery:

The number of rounds that will be fired during an ordinary battle can only be imagined. We have data from the Russo-Japanese, was the control of the c Japanese war showing that at Ljacpan one battery fired 2600 rounds in one day. while another fired 3504 rounds, making for each gun about 413 rounds in one day. This was not an uncommon occurday. This was not an uncommon occur-

In carrying on a modern war.

The most common projectile of the 3-inch calibre is the shrapnel, which is in tiself a gun, arranged by time fuses so that at the desired height it is made to burst, shooting forward out of a shell 20 lead balls, each effective to kill a

Burnwell Coal

This brand of ours actually produces the finest results in the range and heating plant.

Sold only by E. J. Cummings 4 Yards: Main Office, 413 N. 13th St.

W.A.Bender

READING TERMINAL MARKET Stalls 606-608-610