

PERSONS AND PLACES THAT FIGURE IN THE DAY'S NEWS AS RECORDED BY THE PHOTOGRAPHER

MORE THAN 300 OF CITY'S HOMELESS MEN SLEEPING ON BARE FLOOR IN FACTORY
A scene that may be witnessed nightly in a vacant building, now called the "Hotel de Gink," near the corner of 12th and Hamilton streets—living proof that the condition of the jobless men of Philadelphia is desperate. The men make themselves as comfortable as may be on the bare floor. Newspapers suffice as coverings for most of them. The place was provided through the charity of friends of the Sunday Breakfast Association.

THE MAN WHO MADE EMPLOYERS GASP
Henry Ford, the Detroit automobile maker, told the Federal Industrial Commission he was willing to take any convict out of Sing Sing and make a man of him. His firm's profit last year was over $25,000,000, with wages at $5 a day.

HUNGRY AND RAGGED MEN LINED UP TO AWAIT THE OPENING OF "HOTEL DE GINK"

The "hotel" has been open about two weeks and so far not a case of drunkenness has been reported among the applicants. Among those found in the line are former professional and business men as well as artisans and mechanics thrown out of work by the development of modern automatic machinery, which renders their skill useless.

A 42-CENTIMETRE STRAWBERRY

William Troelsch, of the Reading Terminal Market, found that this specimen filled about half an ordinary basket. It measured 10 inches in circumference and was pronounced king among its fellows.

BOSS OF WALLS OF IRON

Warden Robert J. McKenty, of the Eastern Penitentiary, on the street, in his unofficial clothes. His friends declare his grim face belies his character.
