

NEW COURT TO DEAL WITH VICE PROBLEM AS PLANNED TODAY

Conference Will Discuss Advisability of Adding Another Branch to Municipal Court for Treatment of Unfortunate Women.

The establishment of a Misdemeanors Court, a new division of the Municipal Court, in which the social problem will be treated scientifically, is virtually assured.

A conference between President Judge Brown, of the Municipal Court; Director Porter and men and women representing social betterment organizations will be held late this afternoon to discuss plans for the establishment of the court.

The establishment of a Misdemeanors Court, a new division of the Municipal Court, in which the social problem will be treated scientifically, is virtually assured.

$50,000 FUND RAISED FOR SUFFRAGE CAUSE

$10,000 More Promised by Philadelphia Woman Who Desires Name Withheld.

The $50,000 suffrage campaign fund has been raised. It was completed today following months of work by suffragists throughout the State.

The money was raised as a result of numerous entertainments, fairs, bazaars and liberal contributions from those in sympathy with the woman suffrage movement.

The funds will be used to aid the fight for woman suffrage in all sections of the State. Already much of it has been spent carrying on the propaganda work of organizations. Thousands of pieces of literature will be bought with a part of the distributed State-wide.

FOODS IN SEASON

This is the first of a series of articles on food values and marketing tips to be written weekly for the EVENING LEDGER by Mrs. Elsie C. McKay.

The prudent housewife in setting out to buy her food supply should always ask herself two questions—"What foods are in season and where may they be best obtained at the lowest prices?"

Refrigeration and transportation facilities have reached such a high state of development that it is practically possible to have everything edible at any season of the year if one has the means to pay for it and but knows where to get it.

But the average woman is looking for wholesome, reasonable food at reasonable cost, and if she keeps her eyes open and follows the market quotations she cannot miss setting it.

The early spring season is, unfortunately, a "between season," when winter vegetables and fruits are apt to be a little "tired." Spring products, on the other hand, are forced and likely to be deficient in flavor, though they seem to excel in beauty and lusciousness.

Oddly enough, however, in these vernal days of lassitude, when the system demands a change from the heavier foods to those less heating ones which are rich in acids, oranges, grapefruit, lemons, apples and bananas have never been cheaper.

Oranges, which can be prepared in so many tempting ways for breakfast and lunch, are bought from 25 cents to 60 cents a dozen, fancy. Lemons at from 10 cents to 15 cents.

The tonic and liver stimulating properties of lemons are known to all, making them an ideal fruit at this season.

Grapefruit, luscious big ones, are in market at 5 cents apiece. Extra fancy ones may be had from 75 cents to $1 a dozen.

Bananas, both yellow and red, are plentiful and cheap. When baked they are more digestible and can be eaten by many who could not eat them raw.

Apples still are seen in abundance. A good supply of cold storage ones are still in the market. Eastern apples are very good at 20 cents a half peck.

Fancy figs sell now at 25 cents to 30 cents per box, the medicinal virtue of which is known to all.

Until berries arrive at reasonable, reasonable prices we must not scorn to make use of dried fruits, which, when combined with cereals, are very nutritious.

These, served with cereals, or made into tempting desserts, are a wonderful help until berries arrive in the markets.

Among the vegetables which are best adapted to this season's use are spinach, rich in iron and a splendid tonic, at 25 cents a half peck; old potatoes, at 20 cents per basket of 30 pounds.

There is a special potato selling in the market called "Cape May Red Skin." It is one of the best flavored and most popular potatoes grown. It is rare, and comes from South Jersey.

French endive is very good at 35c a pound. Celery and cabbage still continue good, the former at from 20c to 25c a bunch and the latter, old, at 5c to 10c, new from the South.

Carrots are obtainable at 15c a quarter peck for the old and new from 10c to 15c per bunch. Onions are 15c a quarter peck.

From the South we have string beans and eggplants. Cauliflower is selling from 15c to 25c, and asparagus, 5c to 10c bunch. Asparagus, 5c a bunch, are nice and fresh.

For those with unlimited means, and who always want the out-of-season products, lima beans may be had at 15c a half peck.

In meats, mutton chops sell for 35c, leg of mutton at 25c. Lamb chops, French ribbed, at 35c to 55c. Loin at 25c. Spring lamb, four to five weeks old, $1.50 to $2 for hind quarter and $2.50 to $3 for fore-quarter.

Small lambs, six to 10 months old, 35c to 50 cents a pound for chops and hindquarter.

Excellent oysters may be had at 60, 75 cents, $1 and $1.25 per 100. Clams are obtainable from $1 to $1.25 per 100 or 15 cents a dozen.

LENTEEN SPEAKER SAYS WE ACT LIKE HEATHEN

Rev. J. J. Mattes, of Trenton, Delivers Sermon in St. John's Lutheran Church.

The Rev. J. J. Mattes, pastor of the Church of the Saviour, Trenton, delivered the sermon at the Lenten services today at St. John's Lutheran Church, Race street below 6th.

"Like the child that needs assistance when first it begins to walk, so the soul in its earthly struggle needs assistance," he said. "As three days with Christ had not relieved 6000 from physical hunger, so three years with Him had not raised the 12 above the need of divine grace.

The further we go on our road the more we come to God, the more apparent the need of His help becomes. It is easier to take the first step toward common decency than to rise to the higher level of spiritual achievement.

The apostles depended first on Christ's presence, then on the grace of the Holy Spirit. God has not withdrawn that grace from us.

"In the Word and sacraments it is still here. But do we use it? We idolize the Bible instead of reading it. We say that we bear Christ's name without using it. We believe that the Real Presence is in the sacrament more with our hands than with our hearts.

We live like heathen and then wonder why the world is not more Christian."

SOLENN SERVICES FOR HOLY THURSDAY TODAY

The Gloomy Tenebrae Is Chanted in All the Catholic Churches of City.

This is Holy Thursday, the second day of most solemn services in Holy Week of the Catholic Church. The gloomy tenebrae, the mournful office of the Church which narrates the passion of the Saviour and indicates the sorrow attending the last days of His life, was chanted in the churches today.

After the sacrifice of the Mass this morning, the consecrated host was removed to the repository of flowers and lights near one of the side altars of the churches. A procession of acolytes and school children preceded the canopy under which the celebrant of the Mass carried the Blessed Sacrament.

All day devout Catholics visited the churches to kneel before the repository, in front of which two acolytes are constantly praying.

The most sombre ceremony of the church will take place tomorrow, Good Friday, the day on which the crucifixion took place on Mount Calvary. This is the only day on which Mass is never celebrated. The consecration is omitted, and the consecrated host will be brought in solemn procession from the repository.

FREED OF SWINDLING CHARGE Man Accused as Hotel Beat Exonerated—To Join French Army.

Henry T. Morgan, arrested Monday night on a charge of cheating the Bellevue-Stratford, Ritz-Carlton and Adelphi hotels, was exonerated before Magistrate Beaton in central police court today.

Morgan, son of a wealthy citizen of Hartford, Conn., and said to have been a representative in India of the Standard Oil Company, will sail in a few days for France, where he will become a member of a French aviation corps, according to Detective Farrell and Mulholland, of the Philadelphia office.

Detective Hogan, of the Ritz-Carlton, withdrew the hotel's charge against Morgan, and Henry M. Stevenson, attorney for the young man, asked dismissal of the case. When told that the Bellevue-Stratford wished to withdraw its charge, but had not appeared to do so, Magistrate Beaton criticized the management of that hotel. When he was arrested, the management acted as if it wanted to hang him, Beaton said, and it would have been as little as it could do to appear and withdraw the charges.

WALK CALMLY OUT. After emptying every drawer and filling up the satchel with loot the men knelt down on the floor and spent several minutes making sure that the satchel was closed. Then they walked calmly out of the office. Before closing the door both men cautioned the brothers not to raise any alarm.

"You know we can come back just as suddenly as we entered," said the tall man.

The men walked down the stairs. At the foot of the stairs were several women and men patients. In the crowd stood Mrs. Betty Jones, the negro janitress of the building. They passed her and walked across the street. A few minutes later the brothers came running down the stairs and told Mrs. Jones to get a policeman. While she was standing at the northwest corner of 8th and Walnut streets looking for a policeman she saw the two bandits, one of whom carried the satchel.

BANDIT'S PARTING JOKE Mrs. Jones didn't suspect the men. She stopped to talk to them a while. She said she was looking for a policeman.

"That is too bad," remarked one of the bandits, as he climbed into the automobile. There was no chauffeur. One of the bandits operated the car.

One of the Berahstein brothers telephoned to the Detective Bureau. Lieutenant Tate, who answered the call, sent Detectives Benz, Doyle and Special Policemen McDermott and Curran. When they reached the Berahstein office they found the safe open and one of the chairs overturned. The chair had been knocked down accidentally by the hold-up man who had rifled the safe.

The detectives questioned persons who have offices in the neighborhood to learn whether they had seen the bandits or the automobile. George R. Treasch, of the firm of Thomas A. Lee & Co., dealers in gold and silver, whose offices are at 712 Walnut street, said he had seen an automobile standing in front of 729 Walnut street about the time of the hold-up. He said there was no chauffeur in the car, but that the motor was chugging furiously.

THIEF HAD FALSE MUSTACHE. According to the Berahstein brothers, the man who pointed the revolver at them was about six feet tall, between the age of 35 and 38, of light complexion and light hair. Both were sure that this man wore a false black mustache. The second man was about five feet six inches tall, of light complexion and wore a dark suit and a light soft hat.

Immediately after the hold-up, Captain of Detectives Cameron assigned several detectives to visit garages in various parts of the city, to try to locate the machine. The automobile in which the bandits made their escape is described as a machine built to accommodate only two persons.
